Astronauts Fit, Ready

Kevin Steen

One-Man Ambassador For Skylab Is Only 12

Nave Creek, Ariz. (AP) — Kevin Steen, a 12 year old who physicians say should have died of cancer by now, has become a "one-man ambassador" for the Skylab space program, his father says.

"When he was in the hospital last week, he was always telling someone of the space program," Orion Steen says "You always find him with a space book or something like that in his hand."

Young Steen made news last year when he was invited aboard the USS Ticonderoga to watch the Pacific splashdown of Apollo 17 astronauts

Nearly three years ago, doctors at the Mayo Clinic had operated on the slender, blond-haired youth for the ninth time. In eight earlier operations, cancerous parts of one lung and other organs had been removed.

After the ninth attempt, physicians said Kevin's case was hopeless, that cancer had spread into virtually all parts of his abdomen

"They told us they would have had to remove just about everything to get rid of the cancer," his father said "They told us he'd be dead within six weeks."

Today young Steen is in what physicians call a "state of remission." The cancer may or may not become active again.

Both Kevin and his father say a patient's will to live may have something to do with it. In Kevin's case, the space program has kept him keenly interested in life.

"I want to say that maybe the space program has helped me, and maybe other people with problems can become interested in life like this," Kevin says "I don't know what tomorrow will bring but I've learned to live with that"

After he returned from the Ticonderoga, Kevin turned his attention to Skylab, scheduled to be launched Monday with a three-man crew joining it Tuesday.

The junior high school student silk-screened 400 envelopes, addressed them to friends and then sent the entire package to Navy Rear Adm J L. Butts, commander of the Ticonderoga, once again the prime recovery ship He says Butts will mail them from the Ticonderoga later

In addition, Kevin says he has corresponded directly with the Skylab astronauts, and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration has sent him a complete schedule of Skylab

He was taken off drugs two months ago "as an experiment to see if the cancer would stay in remission," his father says "He started having stomach cramps last week and we took him to the hospital, but the doctors couldn't find anything wrong"

Schedule of Skylab

Cape Kennedy, Fla (AP) — Here are highlights for the first mission to Skylab, the nation's first manned space station — all times Central Daylight:

May 14, 12:30 p.m. — Unmanned Skylab launched on Saturn 5 rocket

May 15, noon — A Saturn 1B rocket launches astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Paul J. Weitz and Dr. Joseph P Kerwin into orbit aboard a modified Apollo spacecraft.

7:40 p.m. — The astronauts, rendezvous and dock with the Skylab space station. The spacemen then eat dinner and sleep, still aboard the Apollo craft.

May 16, 8 a.m. — The astronauts board Skylab and start two days of moving-in activities.

After moving, the astonauts' work schedule, varying from day to day, will revolve around experiments in medical, scientific, earth resources, astronomy and materials processing fields.

The astronauts will be awakened at 6 a.m. each day and retire at 9 p m They will get a day off approximately once a week and will be given periods for recreation and eating.

June 10, noon — Astronaut Conrad and Kerwin move outside the space station to gather exposed film from six astronomy telescopes.

June 12, 7:46 a.m. — After deactivating the Skylab and preparing it for a 56-day visit starting in August by the Skylab 2 crew, Conrad, Weitz and Kerwin move away from the space station.

12:03 p.m. — The astronauts fire a rocket engine on the Apollo craft to drop it out of orbit.

12:44 p.m. —Skylab 1 ends with splashdown in the Pacific Ocean.

Launch Monday

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Fit and ready for their space adventure, the Skylab 1 astronauts were to fly to Cape Kennedy Sunday to await the start of their 28-day mission aboard America's first space station.

Astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz were to pilot their own T38 jets from Houston to Patrick Air Force Base near Cape Kennedy, arriving about noon.

The spacemen were to move into crew quarters five miles from the launch pads for the Saturn 5 rocket which will launch the Skylab space station and the Saturn 1B rocket which will hoist the astronauts.

With 16 months of intensive training behind them, the astronauts took the day off Saturday "to relax and loaf" in quarantine quarters at the Johnson Space Center near Houston, officials said.

Conrad, Weitz and Kerwin will watch the blast off Monday at 1:30 p.m. EDT of the Skylab. They'll be awakened early Tuesday to suit up for their own launch at 1 p.m.

Preparations for launch continued to be trouble-free Saturday.

Workers at the launch pads started final phase operations on the Saturn 5. The 33-story booster was placed on internal power for a time to test on-board batteries and an on-board emergency detection system.

At another pad, 8,700 feet away, workers put in place a protective cover, which shields the astronauts' Apollo command ship during launch They prepared to power up the spacecraft to test its electrical systems.

Weather forecasts for both the Monday and Tuesday launches were good. Weathermen called for a warm, partly cloudy day for the launch of Skylab and an "almost clear" day for the second blastoff

The three astronauts went through day-long medical examinations Friday, in the last day of formal training. Doctors said they were ready to fly.

The astronauts have been in quarantine since April 24. The isolation was ordered to protect the spacemen from any disease which might delay the launch or fell them in space.

Wives and families of the spacemen were scheduled to arrive at Cape Kennedy over the weekend Mrs. Kerwin and Mrs. Weitz and their children were expected Saturday Mrs. Conrad with her four sons was flying from Houston Sunday.

The launch of Skylab will project the American space program into a new era.

For the first time, astronauts will concentrate on studying how well man can live and work in space for long periods. The astronauts' health and the bodily changes brought on by living in weightlessness will be carefully monitored throughout the four-week mission.

Such medical studies are considered essential for future space exploration, such as months-long missions to other planets.

The Skylab 1 astronauts will use complex experiments aboard their 100-ton, house-sized orbiting laboratory to study the sun and the stars. They also will focus instruments on the earth to gather data on earth resources

The Skylab 2 and Skylab 3 crews will rocket up to the still-orbiting space station in August and in November for 56-day missions each

Election Reform Plan Expected

From News Wires

Washington — President Nixon is expected to ask Congress this week for a bipartisan commission to recommend ways of cleaning up American election practices in the wake of the Watergate scandals

The commission would be asked to recommend major reforms in the conduct of election campaigns and to design steps, both by new laws and by voluntary agreement, to insure fair election practices.

Leonard Garment, the acting counsel for the White House, is said to be drawing up the plans

White House sources said Nixon was working on the proposal this weekend at Camp David

A White House source said Congress would be asked to set up the commission, possibly with 20 members, by joint resolution

"It will look into everything," the source said. "Its mandate will be as long and broad as possible consistent with relevance"

He said the commission would be asked to come up with solid recommendations within nine months to be ready for the 1974 congressional elections

The commission would be made up of both senators and representatives and would include the chairmen of the two major political parties It would also include six persons outside of government, selected by the President on the basis of their political expertise

The commission would look into such things as dirty politics, the cost and length of campaigns, the electoral college system, the relationship between local and federal elections, campaign advertising, strong enforcement of or replacement of the fair campaign practices committee, which is now a voluntary organization, and into campaign financing.

The new presidential initiative comes after a week of new disclosures, new indictments, a shuffling of presidential appointees at top levels and the collapse of the Pentagon papers trial — all of them touched by the widening stain of the Watergate scandals

Congressional leaders applauded the plan.

"It sounds excellent," said Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, "but why take that long? You can do it in a couple of months at the most. What needs to be done is already apparent.

"These commissions, if they drag on, become meaningless," Mansfield added. "It should have a deadline of no later than 60 days"

House Speaker Carl Albert was unavailable for comment, but a staff member within the House Democratic leadership reacted favorably to the plan, and predicted it would have the support of Albert and the majority leader, Thomas O'Neill Jr.

The House minority leader, Gerald Ford of Michigan, said he hoped the proposal "will be the format for immediate congressional action The commission's work should be promptly handled. I wouldn't limit them to 60 days, but a mandate for action is needed in time for the 1974 elections"

Ellsberg, Russo Plan Different Life Styles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo, exulting in their triumph over espionage, conspiracy and theft charges, said Saturday they plan to follow very different paths in their future lives — Russo continuing to fight for causes, Ellsberg seeking privacy and contemplation

"I expect to continue what I did in the past — a fairly private life of research, writing and reading," said the 42-year-old Ellsberg, whose actions in copying the top-secret Pentagon papers rushed him to the center of antiwar activities

But the balding Russo, 36, said he was taking an airplane immediately to a Chicago conference to consider plans for possible impeachment of President Nixon.

Both Ellsberg and Russo have declared their intention to sue government officials, possibly including Nixon, but Ellsberg said

"I personally have thought enough about Richard Nixon for my lifetime . I hope to never think of him again"

Russo said he would finish a book he has been writing throughout the trial — "Writing that book helped get me through the trial" — and would remain a political activist

Both men termed dismissal of charges against them a victory, though Russo acknowledged the issues which brought them to trial were never resolved

Chief among those issues was the question of whether the government has the right to keep secrets from American citizens. In dismissing the charges Friday, U S. District Court Judge Matt Byrne harshly condemned government misconduct in the case — including Watergate and White House involvement — but he said nothing about the secrecy issue

"It was ambiguous," said Russo "It was not the kind of clear-cut resolution we would have wanted We were not able to let the trial go to the jury but I don't think this one trial, this one case, could have resolved these issues

"So there is a lot that goes unresolved," Russo added. "The war still goes on All of us who have opposed this war still have a job to do." He referred specifically to U S. bombing of Cambodia

Ellsberg and Russo, both onetime researchers on government projects, made the comments at a news conference in which their attorneys supported the two men's declared intentions to sue government officials. It was also revealed at the news conference that the trial cost the defense nearly $1 million

Ellsberg's chief attorney, Leonard Boudin, said he will file a civil suit in Washington against the government and seek damage payments for the costs incurred during the trial

"The evidence against the President is substantially circumstantial so far," Boudin said. "We will not name the President (in a suit) until we think there is evidence to justify his being named That evidence is piling up day by day."

The man who directed the Ellsberg-Russo defense fund, economist Stanley Sheinbaum, said the trial has cost the defendants $900,000.

"It's easy to say this is a high cost for two men to pay for their freedom," said Sheinbaum. "I think it is the best money spent in a very long time in this country"

He said that despite the contributions of some 25,000 persons, the defense has a deficit of between $50,000 and $75,000

Another Ellsberg attorney, Charles Nesson, said he believed the trial had signaled the beginning of a "reawakening of a spirit in this country — a reassertion of the principles of integrity and personal honesty."

The attorneys said they hoped their planned civil suit would provide a forum for more investigation of Watergate and White House misconduct

Documents received by the judge during the trial indicated, among other things, that defendants in the Watergate case had participated in burglarizing the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist and White House aides had known about the burglary

Russo said "It was a great victory not just for Dan and me but for a lot of people I think that millions of people around the country felt it was a victory for them"

Russo said he believed the trial would make individuals realize they are not powerless "I knew that feeling during this trial — the feeling that I was just a grain of sand," he said "Now I know we do not have to feel alienated and powerless like single grains of sand"

Both Ellsberg and Russo, addressing a throng of reporters who had covered their trials from the inception commended the news media for fairly reporting the events of the last two years

Ellsberg drew laughter when he told the reporters "It's been a good relationship we've had over the last several years, but it's over now I'm going back to my wife"

Teacher Shortage Return Expected in 15 Years

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States may have a surplus of more than a million teachers within five years but can expect another teacher shortage within 15 years, according to a new federal report released Saturday

In the immediate future, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare said, "one potential teacher out of three will have to seek a job elsewhere or, in the case of women returning, to the labor force, may decide to stay at home."

The report said that the surplus will be temporary, occasioned by the World War II baby- boom now graduating from college.

In the long run, it said, "the total number of elementary and secondary school pupils and, therefore, the demand for new teachers, is likely to increase markedly in the late 1980s"

"The current flattening in the enrollment curve is only a pause, not a plateau," the report said. "If these projections are borne out, we can expect a return of the 'teacher shortage' within 15 years."

The HEW report also predicts what it calls a Ph D glut," or more persons with doctorates than education can find jobs for.

The study estimates there will be a net gain more than 300,000 PhD s in the labor force by 1980, and that four to five times as many will have to seek employment in government and industry than in the 1960s

Inmates Fight In Florida

Bushnell, Fla. (UPI) — Inter-racial fighting among the 800 inmates of the Sumter Correctional Institute developed into a riot Saturday night and law enforcement officers surrounded the prison to prevent escapes.

"When reinforcements get here, we're going to move in and clean up this institution," Superintendent K. D. Conner said. He called for emergency riot squads from other prisons and help from sheriffs' departments and police in surrounding areas.

Viet Cong: U.S. Planes Bombing

Saigon (UPI) — For the first time since the cease-fire went into effect nearly 15 weeks ago, the Viet Cong charged Saturday American warplanes have been bombing inside South Vietnam despite the truce

A U S Embassy spokesman said without elaborating the charge was "false," but an informed source said there was a possibility American planes had flown over the border by mistake while on bombing raids in Cambodia.

Syphilis Treatment Study Said Racist Violation

A federal study in which black men suffering from syphilis were left untreated for more than 20 years after a cure for the disease was discovered as a racist violation of human rights, the Alabama Advisory Committee to the U S Commission on Civil Rights said today

Unions in both Australia and New Zealand have threatened to refuse to handle French flights and shipping if France pursues the testing, expected in the next few weeks

Charles Taufa, the federation's president, said the retaliatory move is not politically motivated "but an economic and social defense of French Polynesian workers. We are neither for nor against the bomb. Our only problem is feeding workers"

Mrs. William Kienast rests in her Liberty Corner, N.J., home with her quintuplet children who are now 3 years old. From left are Ted, Gordon, Sara, Abigail and Amy.

Five Times 'Terrible Twos' Makes Kienast Life Flexible

LIBERTY CORNER, N J (AP) — The William Kienast family lives an organized, but flexible life despite its set of three-year-old quintuplets still in the throes of the "terrible twos"

The television and newspaper cameras still focus on the attractive family during birthdays and other special occasions And Mrs Kienast is aware "a lot of people are genuinely interested in our gang"

But for the most part Peggy Jo and Bill Kienast are going about the ordinary business of bringing up seven children in this rural Somerset County community

Their large putty-colored house on Mike Brook Road flanked by fields and woods was a picture of pastoral serenity at 2 on a recent afternoon The mood continued inside the house But in an hour or so it would be shattered by Amy Abigail Sara Ted and Gordon, awakening from their naps

While they slept, their mother took advantage of those quiet hours to do a chore that was only possible when the quintuplets were not underfoot plastering the walls of a third floor room

"I have to complete the wall while I have time because they're so curious They're so interested in everything," said Peggy Jo Kienast "What one doesn't think of, another does They're not over the terrible twos yet

As she applied the mixture to the wall Mrs Kienast explained the area in which she was working will eventually be the sitting room of a three-room suite with bath There will also be four bedrooms and laundry room on the second floor

Since it was a Monday the housekeeper who works Tuesday through Sunday was off and Mrs Kienast's mother a frequent visitor was on duty scrubbing crayon marks off the center hall walls

The family has a business agent who has arranged guest appearances on talk shows There have been a few product endorsements, too, but Mrs Kienast said They're not knocking down our door for us to do commercials"

Abigail is the star of a public service commercial for The Institute of Good Vision

The message is for parents to have young children get eye examinations" Mrs Kienast said "We noticed that Abigail's eyes were beginning to cross and she had difficulty focusing She's very farsighted and has been wearing glasses now for six months

None of the other children requires any special attention

Our pediatrician used to come to the house at first but now we take them to his office in Morristown And our dentist doesn't want to see us the mother said smiling

Still wielding the trough and plaster while talking about the family Mrs Kienast perked up at the sound of a brief, muted cry from the second floor

"That's Sara" How did Mrs Kienast know?

"It just sounds like Sara," she said

A few more sounds were heard from below, but the quintuplets remained in their rooms

"They're all locked in," Mrs Kienast explained "They haven't been in cribs for over a year and I can't have them wandering around"

A day at the Kienast house revolves around some set routines Dinner for example is served in shifts First the quintuplets, then Meg, John, and the housekeeper, and, finally, the parents

Meg helps out with some of the responsibilities, and Kienast "does whatever needs to be done" His favorite chore, his wife joked is putting the quintuplets to bed at 7 p m

What's it like when the quints are up and about? Try snacktime after their nap

"I don't like to wear shoes," Amy announces "And I'm not going to eat dinner I don't like anything"

"I like 'Sesame Street,' says Ted Gordon is busy gulping down his drink and reaching for more cookies

After their snacks, the youngsters are off in all directions One minute they are in the playroom where there are five of everything — five stuffed monkeys, five toy cars, five of this and five of that The next minute they are in the kitchen again playing games at the table

Finally, they are all collected to pose for a photograph with their mother on the den sofa When it's all over, the quintuplets do something in unison applaud

A person who worries shouldn't have more than one child at a time and very few of them advises Mrs Kienast

In no way will I get pregnant again

Charles Conrad Jr. goes through a Skylab 1 training session

Skylab: Home In Orbit

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Astronauts flying in America s earlier spaceships say they were "just camping outrellyroughing it But in Skylab the nation s spacemen have a home

The 118-foot-long spacecraft was designed for living in space and living fairly comfortably In previous spacecraft, the essential idea was to survive

Skylab astronauts have private bedrooms, a shower a dining room, an exercise area a library of books and music, gourmet-type food, an occasional day off and even a dart board

"Skylab doesn t quite have the service and accommodations of a luxury hotel, said one space engineer "but the view is much better

The station is scheduled to be launched from Cape Kennedy Fla on Monday Astronauts Charles Conrad Jr Joseph P Kerwin and Paul J Weitz will join it the next day

Skylab has the roominess of a three-bedroom 1 600-square-foot house

But in space Skylab should seem even larger, according to Conrad, commander of the first mission aboard the orbiting laboratory

The volume of a spacecraft seems to expand once you get into zero g — gravity " he said

Zero g or weightlessness, affects almost every activity of astronauts living in Skylab

Instead of walking on the floor of their spacecraft the astronauts expect to float or swim along the ceilings and walls flitting from one place to another with the flex of a finger

This may sound like fun but zero gravity can be troublesome and can make even the simplest of tasks difficult

For instance if an astronaut wants to turn a bolt with a wrench he has to be anchored Otherwise instead of the bolt turning when the spaceman applies muscle the astronaut himself will be twisted

A slight motion can cause an astronaut to drift away from whatever work he s trying to do And tools can t be just placed on a work bench They have to be secured somehow or they will drift away

To overcome these problems Skylab is lined with foot and hand restraints and with patches of a fabric adhesive called Velcro Floors have a triangular grid and the spacemen can wear shoes with three-sided cleats To remain in one place the astronaut locks the cleats into the floor

Weightlessness affects even basic bodily functions On earth for example, rest room facilities depend upon gravity to make water fall and hence to flush Such facilities on Skylab operate with a slight air vacuum which provides the flushing action

To shower, an astronaut steps into a collapsed cylinder and raises it to form an enclosure

"Inside you ve got two hoses — the goesoutta hose and the goesinta hose," said Weitz

The "goesoutta" hose sprays water and the "goesinta " hose vacuums it up

Most of the water will cling to either your skin or the inside of the enclosure said Weitz When you re done you holler to your buddy and he turns on the vacuum cleaner

Weitz said the astronaut taking the shower then uses the hose to vacuum away water from himself and the shower stall

It sounds simple, but the trick is that each astronaut gets only three quarts of water per shower and only one shower per week A shower on earth uses three quarts in about 30 seconds Somehow the Skylab spacemen must soap up and rinse off before the water runs out

Sleeping may also take a bit of getting used to

In a place where there s no weightlessness there s also no up or down An astronaut can't actually lie down without possibly drifting away As a result the spacemen sleep in bag-like restraints which are attached to the side walls of their bedrooms To a person standing on the floor the slumbering spaceman appears to be sleeping on his feet

Eating on Skylab should be an adventure, promoting not only good nutrition but also fast reflexes

The Skylab menu includes such things as steak soup, lobster and other gourmet-type foods The adventure part of the menu comes in getting the food from plate to mouth in weightlessness

Unlike earlier space flights Skylab s flight plan gives the astronauts a near-normal work day and an occasional day off

For those leisure hours there is recreation equipment aboard Each astronaut has a selection of books and music recorded on cassettes There also are playing cards with special zero-gravity holders three rubber balls for playing catch and a dart game which uses Velcro instead of sharp spikes

Skylab astronauts also face a multitude of housekeeping chores

Garbage has to be carefully stowed in bags or it would float away When full, the bags are stuffed into a large trash tank which has an airlock

To gather any splattered food or moisture floating around the inside of the spacecraft, the astronauts have a portable vacuum cleaner

But there s one bright spot for the outer space housekeepers There'll be no wash day blues

Skylab fashions consist of shirts, slacks and jackets made of a gold-colored, fireproof fabric The astronauts change trousers once a week and socks, shirts and underwear every two days

For the 28-day Skylab 1 mission, there are individually tailored wardrobes for each crewman and enough changes for the entire mission

Honest Campaign Finances

One of the essential cleanup jobs in the wake of the Watergate flood will be to launder the laws of the republic pertaining to the collection and dispensing of campaign funds.

Such a project, mentioned by President Nixon himself in his speech to the nation two weeks ago, has been made more urgent by the indictment of two former cabinet officers in connection with alleged favors extended in return for a secret $200,000 cash contribution to Mr. Nixon's reelection effort.

Even given the thrust of current scandals, campaign reform will have to have irresistible pressure from concerned citizens and their organizations if needed changes are to be made. No greater commitment exists for champions of the democratic system.

It is well that such groups as Common Cause, whose concern is for good government rather than political or economic gain, already are spelling out proposed changes. The goals of that organization are recited on this page in an article by its chairman, John Gardner. The objectives of limiting campaign contributions, public financing of campaigns, public disclosure and the like deserve serious consideration by citizens and lawmakers alike.

If there is one objective that is paramount in this effort, it seems, that is the full public disclosure of both where campaign funds come from and what they are spent for. It may be helpful to try to regulate the source and the amount of funds and the way they can be spent, but the most effective judge of what is proper, we believe, will be the informed voter.

With this goal in mind, The Sunday Journal and Star offers an added safeguard: the establishment by law of disinterested clearinghouses into which all campaign funds must be deposited and from which all campaign expenditures must be withdrawn — with full records, open to the press and public, of both the source and the destination of the funds.

Receipt or expenditure of any campaign funds without going through the assigned clearinghouse should be subject to harsh penalities, including possible forfeiture of any office that might be won.

The key to this plan would be to make the clearinghouse, or trustee, as disinterested and as objective as is humanly possible. Obviously it should not be controlled by the candidate or a political party; nor should it be a government agency. Possibly the function could be directed by the judiciary. Perhaps it could be performed by independent accounting firms or by selected accountants.

The important thing is that a credible, reliable source would exist for full revelation of the handling of campaign funds.

Let anyone who wants to contribute to a candidate or party do so, in whatever amount he wishes; let the candidate or party spend that money in any way — but, by all means, let the public know of all these transactions.

This newspaper hopes the public and officials alike will give consideration to inclusion of this device in campaign reform plans taking shape.

Ethics in Horse Racing

Viewed against both the potential for hanky-panky and the actual graft that has come to light in other states, horse racing in Nebraska is a paragon of honesty.

This status results largely from the diligence of the managers of racing operations in the state. Possibly the brightest example of such upstanding management has come of late from Tom Brock as executive director of Ak-Sar-Ben in Omaha.

Mr. Brock's untimely death at 53 leaves a huge void in horse-racing circles in Nebraska and the nation.

It also leaves a challenge to those who will carry on such activity in the state to maintain the lofty standards that have been set by this genial gentleman.

In an enterprise in which ethics are constantly subject to assault, Tom Brock has demonstrated it is both possible and preferable to uphold the highest ideals.

Line of Reluctant Scapegoats

Washington — The reason the Watergate case has broken open is that everyone involved is leaking to the press to save their own skins.

I work in a building on Pennsylvania Avenue which also includes offices of several newspapers.

The other morning there was a long line outside the building of people implicated in Watergate. The line ran around the block.

A policeman stopped me at the door. "Get in the back of the line, Mac. Some of these people have been waiting all night to tell their stories to the press."

"I'm not a suspect in the Watergate case, officer. I'm a newspaperman going to my office."

Some people in the line heard me and tried to shove documents at me.

"Let's have none of that," the cop said. "You can show him your documents when you get inside."

One man, a former White House aide, shouted, "I can tell you the whole story on the Ellsberg break-in."

Another said, "He doesn't know anything. I've got Ellsberg's psychiatrist's couch hidden in my home."

Someone down the line said, "Don't listen to him. I have a blockbuster of a story. Howard Hunt and G. Gordon Liddy wrote Clifford Irving's book about Howard Hughes."

Someone else yelled, "I have the names of everyone who contributed a million dollars to the Committee for Re-election of the President. Give me a break. I've been waiting since 6 o'clock last night to leak it."

"I'm sorry," I said, "but I don't write that kind of story. Why don't you leak it to Jack Anderson?"

"You can't get near his office. I waited two days to leak it to him and I never got closer than a block away."

The police officer said to me, "I wish you wouldn't stand out here, sir. These people are desperate and I don't want a riot."

"I can't understand why all you people are so desperate to talk to the press," I said.

"You dummy," one shouted. "If we implicate others we can get immunity from prosecution."

"Why should we be the scapegoats?" another shouted. "We want to get the guys who put us up to this."

"If we get our stories in print," a third said, "then the public will know we were just little fish in a big stagnant pool."

The police officer said, "You can't stay out here, sir."

"I'll go upstairs," I said.

The policeman opened the glass door and the crowd pushed forward waving their incriminating evidence.

He shouted, "All right, you people, stop shoving or I'll make you go to the back of the line."

WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Subjectivity Demands Scrutiny

One can hardly make it through an average day without being exposed to some degree of personal bias on the part of someone. Recently, a news story told of a study which showed alcohol to be a problem for all Indians.

Now, one might at first think that the study showed alcoholism to be an inherent problem of Indians. Actually, what the study sought to put across was that the history of deprivation that can be associated with Indians makes alcohol a problem for them.

The idea was not that an Indian might become an alcoholic simply by virtue of his ancestry or the color of his skin. But the report opened the door to such thoughts on the part of people who might not read the article in its entirety or not completely understand it.

Another recent news study dealt with a professor in England who has been harassed by students after he published findings to the effect that Irish and Negro Americans were less intelligent than their English and white counterparts.

The harassment is not of great interest to us but the fact that a college professor still would be putting out such bunk on the so-called intelligence of racial groups is not a very comforting thing. It demonstrates that man certainly has not yet reached that level of intellectual attainment to which he should aspire.

With the past few days, this writer had the occasion to read a young college student's review of a book. The review outlined the theme of the book as a play upon the totalitarian aspects of our society.

Government was presented as the prosecutor of all those who get out of line in our society and execution was given as the standard method of dealing with those who failed to comply with so-called norms of society.

Thus, it was not a democracy in which we live but a dictatorship, and an unusually cruel one, at that.

Now, the point of all this is, as Sen. William Proxmire has alluded, that there is an abundance of subjectivity in this world, a virtual plethora of opinion, rumor, prejudice, innuendo, etc., and a sometimes alarming absence of fact and objectivity.

Given a thoughtless populace, the natural consequence of this would be disastrous. Given a gullible and uneducated society, such a bombardment of subjectivity could lead all the way to human slavery and certainly to the ultimate wasting of our human resources.

The world, by virtue of unprecedented advances in communications, certainly has grown smaller but this places upon the individual a greater rather than a smaller responsibility to be informed and to think for himself. A society skeptical of all that it hears, sees and reads is one with the best chance of survival and human progress.

The greater is man's knowledge, the greater is the challenge to his comprehension and mental integrity

Watergate's Lessons: Reform, Reform

By John Gardner
Chairman of Common Cause

It is not too early to grasp the lessons of Watergate. When we set out in the cold light of morning to pick up the pieces of our national dignity, there are some highly specific and concrete things we must do.

What can we do to spare the nation -- at least for a time — a repetition of the shattering episode?

How can we restore confidence in the public process? More precisely, how can we make the public process worthy of confidence?

To estimate the scope of the task it is necessary to recognize most Americans see Watergate as the capstone of a corrupt political process. Such sweeping condemnation is unfair, but we had better face realities.

As the public process now functions, it invites corruption — makes it easy and makes it pay. In some areas of politics and government honesty not only isn't the best policy, it isn't even an option. Unless we address ourselves to that problem, the Watergate affair will pass, but the dirty business will continue.

If one examines all aspects of the public process — the functioning of city, county and state government, courts, parties, Congress, Executive Branch — one finds virtually all corruption involves two ingredients, money and secrecy: the scandalous capacity of money to buy political outcomes, and the widespread habit of doing public business in secret.

What Can Be Done?

What can we do about those two elements? A great deal.

The first step is total redesign of our present system of campaign financing. Watergate could not have happened had it not been for the secret cash sloshing around in Maurice Stans' safe, in Herbert Kalmbach's secret bank account and in various black satchels. There are honest donors to political campaigns and honest recipients — bless them! — but their existence doesn't outweigh the fact the system legitimizes buying and selling of politicians.

The Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 is far better than earlier legislation, but failures of enforcement could destroy its effectiveness. It is clear the clerk of the House and secretary of the Senate cannot play policemen against their own employers. And a politically entangled Department of Justice will not go in for tough enforcement. It never has. It never will.

After the 1972 election the clerk of the House forwarded 4,900 complaints of violations to the Department of Justice — and Justice acted on three of them. An independent election commission must be established to enforce the law.

The long term solution is public financing of election campaigns. The ingredients:

- Provision of federal funds for campaigns by qualified candidates.
- A limited role for private contributions including a strict limit on size of individual gifts — say $250 for congressional races, $500 for the presidential race.
- An overall limit on expenditures for a given race.

John Gardner

- An end to organized committee giving, and to all forms of pooling contributions.
- A bar to transfer of cash in political campaigns.
- A role for political parties in financing general elections.
- Creation of a hardnosed oversight and enforcement agency to ensure compliance, with heavy fines (up to $100,000) for violations.

These steps call for a drastic alteration in current practice — but drastic steps are necessary. A country proverb says, "If you want to clear the stream, get the hog out of the spring."

The second step toward repair of our political process is lobbying disclosure. The citizen should know what special interest is spending how many dollars for what purpose. The present lobbying regulation statute is a sham and a fraud. It contains loopholes big as triumphal arches through which special interests can march. And march they do.

Closing Loopholes

Common Cause has drafted legislation that would close the loopholes and enable us to know, with respect to every lobbyist, what he is lobbying for, who is paying him how much, how much he has spent, and what he has given or loaned to public officials in money or services.

In addition, disclosure requirements would cover those who solicit others to lobby (e.g. voluntary membership organizations that urge their members to lobby). And the law would apply to lobbying of the Executive Branch as well as Congress. The present law ignores the Executive Branch, despite general recognition that it is the scene of some of the most intensive lobbying and grossest betrayals of public trust.

The third step requires complete disclosure by public officials of their finances. Only then will we put an end to conflict of interest in which a public official has a personal financial stake in the very matters on which he is legislating. Such conflict exists in both houses of Congress and even more blatantly in state legislatures.

Every public official should disclose sources of his income, and members of Congress should sever all ties that may lead to conflict of interest.

Fourth, there must be an end to secrecy that shrouds and corrupts so much of the public process. From local to federal government, politicians and appointed officials have conducted far too many of their most important deliberations in secret — as though it's none of our business how they conduct our business.

It is now up to the Executive Branch to demonstrate its commitment to open government. Unfortunately it will probably not do so unless Congress passes more stringent legislation.

Equally important to open government is passage of a federal "shield" law for newsmen.

Finally, we must educate the public on hazards of a politically entangled Department of Justice.

Consider the scandalous refusal of the Department of Justice to enforce campaign spending legislation. The subversive effect of such non-enforcement is incalculable. It mocks the law-abiding citizen, undermines our system of justice, and erodes the moral stature of everyone remotely connected with it.

Choosing Attorney General

The attorney general should be chosen for his reputation as a professional of unquestioned integrity who places the law above party loyalty. The department should retain the broad range of its law enforcement powers but should be relieved of responsibility for advising and defending the administration and drafting and advising on the President's legislative program. The latter activities could be moved to the executive offices of the President.

Legislation should be written which requires appointment of a special prosecutor in cases involving possible impropriety on the part of highly placed administration officials.

Some of the measures discussed above involved far-reaching changes. But the public is ready.

It's important to recognize, however, that what the grass-roots American feels is skepticism not cynicism. Americans have a kind of stubborn, patriotic feeling that evil will not triumph, that something resilient and indomitable in our national life will prevail.

But we have to make it happen.

'How dare they bomb the innocent?'

Nebraska's Fourth Estate

In an editorial labeled "A Pattern That Doesn't Change Much," the North Platte Telegraph discussed the western Nebraska senators, "who turned their backs on western Nebraska in the crucial vote on establishing a university campus at Scottsbluff."

The editor concluded that "Sen. (Richard) Marvel has been a consistent supporter of outstate, western and central Nebraska, and Sen. (Herb) Duis has often been helpful. But aside from those exceptions, we have seldom had much help from central Nebraska sources. The pattern does not change."

The Scottsbluff Star Herald reported it is "unlikely" something can be worked out for the American College of Justice idea for use of the Hiram Scott College facilities.

"If the university ceases to be interested in HSC, the land and buildings undoubtedly will be sold to repay those who helped hold it together."

The editor of the Chadron Record sees as a better use of the Hiram Scott College facilities, establishment of a School of Veterinary Medicine. "This is something that is needed in Nebraska, with its prominence in the livestock industry."

A bill — requiring that union members have the right to vote by secret ballot on the question of whether to strike, and whether a strike should continue — proposed by U.S. Sen. Carl Curtis would avert "costly labor strikes" or "result in less damage," opines the York News Times.

"We really can't see how Curtis' bill would hurt the unions to any significant degree, except perhaps to the egos of the labor leaders who prefer to dictate policy."

"Well we can now have a belt in our drinking water," wrote the editor of the Lexington Clipper, undoubtedly with tongue-in-cheek when he discussed the new state law requiring fluoridation unless the electorate of a community votes to disregard the law.

"We may be a poor judge but we have a hunch there will be some voting done in this here state. We doubt that the 'againers' will win but those who are opposed to the idea of fluoridation are not a half-hearted group of people."

The Omaha World Herald was pleased that Sen. John DeCamp asked the Legislature to hold for further study his bill to set up a commission to run a state lottery.

"It seems to us that before Nebraska makes a decision on such a radical change in the method of state financing, legislators and public should know exactly what they might be getting into.

"For one thing, before a lottery was adopted it should be established clearly that the state's tax structure was no longer able to generate sufficient revenue. We doubt that that state of affairs has been reached in Nebraska. We doubt that the eventuality is even in sight," the editor concluded.

Natural Foods

Ravenna — Thanks for the column Organic Gardening in the Sunday Journal and Star. Robert Rodale, the writer, is also the publisher of a monthly magazine by the same title.

Many are discovering for the first time the thrill of cooperating with God in raising their own healthy food without the polluting pesticides. It is very satisfying when you can produce blue ribbon vegetables without further depleting the nation's diminishing resources.

I do not want or need artificial fertilizer which is in short supply and is produced for the same farmers who were short of natural gas and petroleum firms which are preparing us for gasoline rationing and other crisis measures.

Manure and compost put all the needed ingredients back into my soil, not just three major ones found in almost all fertilizer formulas.

Watergate Surgery Inadequate

Joseph Kraft

Washington — "I feel like a cancer surgeon." Ron Ziegler said after announcing latest changes in the White House staff and Cabinet That unguarded comment by the White House press secretary announces the decisive feature of the President's approach to Watergate.

Nixon and his men still have not got it through their heads that they are part of the cancer. In consequence, all the moves the President has so far taken to rebuild the administration are inadequate.

The basic fact is that Watergate, in sharp contrast to the arguments being advanced by both the President and Vice President Spiro Agnew, is very, very different from past scandals. What sets Watergate apart is the element of selfless dedication Ehrlichman, Dean, Hunt, Liddy and the other Watergate villains did not do what they did to line their pockets after the fashion of the heavies in such affairs as Teapot Dome

On the contrary, they acted out of loyalty to Nixon. In the interest of helping him a little they dragged into the shabbiest campaign practices institutions traditionally held above politics

Proof in Quality

The only proof against that kind of abuse lies in the caliber and quality of the men around the President Devotion to an individual over an institution has to be rooted out.

The White House staff, of course, is a first candidate for change It makes sense to bring in at the very top a man of stature and independence who can stand up to presidential pressure — a man like John Connally But not Connally himself in the ambiguous position of unpaid part-time adviser

For with all due respect to a man I admire, Connally has a potent ambition to be President — a job he can only get from Nixon. He has a wide range of corporate interests in matters — including oil, gas, cattle, real estate, banking and aviation — intimately affected by Presidential decisions. So, far from being a guarantee of an independent White House, the designation of Connally only raises a new conflict-of-interest problem.

The second big candidate for regeneration is the cabinet Nixon to be sure has taken one important step in that direction by making James Schlesinger, the strong-minded former head of the CIA secretary of defense But even the Schlesinger appointment is part of a reshuffle of familiar faces not an accession of independence from the outside

Lawyer-Like

The other important replacement Eliot Richardson who left the Pentagon to become attorney general-designate is already giving a good example of how entangling past connections with the White House can be Richardson has been lawyer-like in the extreme, as distinct from straightforward in addressing himself to the question of whether Nixon wanted to keep from the Pentagon Papers trial the information relating to the burglary of Dan Ellsberg's analyst by operators working under White House order

He admits a vital witness former White House aide Bud Krogh had the impression Nixon wanted the information suppressed But Richardson never asked Krogh where he got that impression Well, why didn't Richardson ask Krogh? The suspicion has to be that he didn't want to know

Moreover, the Cabinet refurbishment also has to go much further. A second look needs to be taken at several of the secretaries and not a few of the under secretaries. And with all due respect for the attractive personal qualities of William Rogers, it's not illegitimate to ask why the secretary of state should be so ignorant of foreign affairs.

In sum Nixon has not yet begun the kind of surgery Watergate truly requires He and his men are still in a defensive crouch The outlook is for matters to get worse

Banana Bargain

UPI TELEPHOTO

The monkeys at Omaha's Henry Doorly Zoo are and will be eating fine for some time. They got the benefit of a semi-trailer truck accident near Bartlett, Iowa. When the van dumped its 38,000-pound banana load along the roadside, the trucking firm decided the only fit thing to do was donate the load to charity—the monkeys.'

Hughes: Grain Reserves Sold

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Harold Hughes said Saturday the Agriculture Department sold nearly all the nation's feed grain reserves to big grain companies in late March with "unexplained haste" and on terms favoring the traders

The Iowa Democrat asked the Government Accounting Office to investigate the transaction, including the rationale for stripping the government's reserves when bad weather was diminishing if not wiping out the upcoming corn crop

An Agriculture Department spokesman said the USDA would have no comment on the Hughes contentions except to say the sales were initiated before this spring's disastrous flooding in the Midwest could have been foreseen

Hughes said the closing-out sales occurred when the floods already were serious.

A Hughes aide said the grain sales are, in effect, a repeat in microcosm of last year's mammoth sale of wheat to Russia, where the huge trading conglomerates bought most of their wheat supplies while prices were low and the public, including the farmers, had no inkling of the size of the transaction with Russia.

Corn prices have soared in the last month, since the sales were completed during the worst of the Mississippi River system flooding, the Hughes aide said.

Hughes asked GAO comtroller Elmer Staats to determine the buyers of the feed grains, their profits and the USDA's rationale for selling the entire reserve stock of grains at a time when weather-caused shortages appear imminent.

"I think the tax-paying as well as the farmer is entitled to know more about the terms of these sales and why it was deemed desirable to strip the government completely of reserves to meet future emergency needs, especially in a time when weather conditions may seriously curtail corn production in the Midwest," Hughes wrote Staats.

"These sales were made with unexplained haste and under circumstances which tended to favor the big grain traders," he said.

Throughout the Midwest, a Hughes aide said, about 43 million bushels of grain were sold by the USDA to the big grain firms.

Sen. Harold Hughes

Hughes said that in Iowa "an effort was made to get rid of all the Commodity Credit Corp. corn stocks in a single day."

"As it worked out, a total of about 13.5 million bushels of corn from government bins plus more than 10 million bushels from warehouses was sold on a cash basis with in the space of a few days," he added.

Hughes described the sale terms as very favorable to the grain firms.

No down payments was required and the buyers were guaranteed free storage until transportation is available, Hughes said, which may be awhile considering the tieup of boxcars for the behind-schedule shipment of wheat to Gulf ports for transport to Russia.

Bombing Costs $250 / Million

Washington (UPI) — U.S. bombing in Indochina, in the first two months after the Jan. 27 Vietnam cease-fire, has cost taxpayers $250 million to $260 million, the Pentagon reports

The figures cover February and March

NASA Picks Mars Site

Washington (UPI) — An enormous, 20,000-foot deep canyon has been chosen as the landing site for the first of two unmanned space missions to Mars, according to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA).

The first landing possibly will occur on July 4, 1976 — the United States' 200th birthday.

NASA officials said Monday that the Viking spacecraft will be launched from Cape Kennedy in August and September, 1975. They will land on Mars after a year-long, 440-million mile trip

Man Vows To Marry, Then Jilts 20 Women

Kingston, Jamaica (UPI) — The 20 women, dressed in their finest, began arriving two hours before the flight from the United States was due at Palisadeos International Airport.

The women, ranging in age from 25 to 40, gradually discovered they were all waiting for the same man on the same plane for the same reason.

He had promised marriage to each of them.

The man, an American citizen whose name was not disclosed by Jamaican authorities, never showed up on the flight Thursday.

The first to become suspicious were airline employes Cedric Perum and Sonya Penso. They noticed the parade of women coming to the counter to ask anxiously for the same man.

Jamaican authorities said the man had carried on a relationship with each of the women through correspondence and had written letters promising to marry them all.

Some of the jilted women said they were convinced the man actually arrived on the plane wearing a disguise, had looked over the group, picked out the one he wanted and gone off with her. There was no confirmation of that.

Arsonists Plague Ohio River Town

NEW MARTINSVILLE, W Va (AP) — The night has become a fearful time for this Ohio River city of 7,000 as a small volunteer fire department tries to cope with arsonists who have set 23 fires in four nights

The blazes have been aimed at commercial buildings in the downtown area, and only one has been major. Mayor Harry Zohn says all but one are known to be the work of arsonists.

"It's made our citizens edgy," he says, adding that he hopes arrests will come soon.

He says "the straw that broke the camel's back" occurred early Saturday when a three-story building on Main Street was almost totally destroyed.

That blaze broke out at daybreak after officials thought they had "secured" the town through one night without a fire

Volunteers have been patrolling the streets in 10 unmarked cars throughout the night hoping to spot any suspects, but there have been no arrests.

The town's four pieces of fire fighting equipment have been located strategically for quick access to any area of the city where a blaze is reported

Officials from the state fire marshal's office arrived Friday to begin their probe Assistant State Fire Marshal E. L. Roush said he has never seen such a concentrated effort by arsonists in his 40 years of police and fire work

Roush said 17 fires were reported Tuesday night, three Wednesday night, two early Friday and one Saturday In some cases gasoline was used to touch off the fires and in other instances trash or debris has been set on fire, he said

Some residents believe a series of drug arrests late Monday and Tuesday prompted the fires as retaliation, but Zohn discounts it

"I'm not sold on that," he says

But Roush doesn't want to discount the closely related timing of the drug arrests and the arson cases

Zohn, who became mayor of the Wetzel County seat several weeks ago, says he ruled out a curfew because that would only cause late-hour businesses to suffer from a lack of customers

Patrol-Car Crash Kills 6, Injures 3

Fredericksburg, Va. (UPI) — Six members of a Chesapeake, Va family were killed and three others injured early Saturday when their station wagon was rammed by a state police cruiser near here

William Nagy, 40, his wife, Sandra, 35, his wife's father, George Sapper, 69, and three children — John, 3, Sharon, 10 and Sandy, 11, were all dead on arrival at Mary Washington College Hospital in Fredericksburg.

A state trooper at the scene said the station wagon apparently stopped at a stop sign at the end of the access ramp to Interstate 95 and was pulling out to head west on U.S. Route 17 when the cars collided The station wagon overturned on impact

Both cars were demolished and early morning traffic along Route 17 was blocked for about two hours until the wreckage was cleared away, police said

Businessmen Told To Cut Price Hikes

Hot Springs, Va. (UPI) — Cost of Living Council Director John T Dunlop told influential businessmen Saturday they should go slow on price increases in 1973 if they expect to see economic stabilization controls relaxed

Addressing 115 top corporate executives at the spring meeting of the Business Council, Dunlop blamed much of the inflation surge on sharply higher prices for farm products and world-traded commodities.

Businessmen have little influence in these areas but Dunlop told the executives that their pricing decisions still are an important factor in holding down inflation

To that extent he said, "1973 should be a year where the business community exercises moderation on the price side"

He added in a briefing with reporters, that it was "a fair inference to say that if prices move unreasonably in 1973, there would be strong political pressure and community pressure for continuation of controls"

Gallup Poll

Public Opposes More Bombing

Princeton, N J — The latest nationwide Gallup survey shows Americans opposed to the bombing in Cambodia and Laos by a 2-1 margin. By approximately the same ratio, they think bombing will lead to a reinvolvement of American troops in Southeast Asia

By an overwhelming majority, the public wants congressional sanction of further military action in Southeast Asia

The peace agreement signed in Paris last January ended active American involvement in the fighting in Vietnam. United States forces have continued bombing, particularly in Cambodia.

Nearly 6 in 10 Americans (57%) disapprove of the bombing and 29% approve, 14% have no opinion Correspondingly 59% feel the bombing will lead to renewed American troop commitments in Southeast Asia, 26% think it will not and 15% have no opinion

By a 6 to 1 margin (76 to 13%), Americans feel the President should seek a vote of approval from the Congress before further military action in Southeast Asia

Earlier this month, President Nixon termed the situation in Laos and Cambodia "fluid," and warned that in continuing to violate the peace agreement North Vietnam risked "revived confrontation" with the United States.

Presidential critics have said Nixon should seek congressional approval before undertaking acts of war such as the bombing of Cambodia

Large majorities in all major groups support congressional approval prior to further military action in Southeast Asia Approximately the same proportion of Republicans, Democrats and Independents (three in four) think approval of Congress should be required before further U S military commitments

Here are the questions asked with the findings

"As you know, U.S. planes are bombing Communist positions in Cambodia and Laos. Do you approve or disapprove of this action?"

	Approve %	Disapprove %	No Opinion %
National	29	57	14
Republicans	40	47	13
Democrats	20	64	16
Independents	32	57	11

"Do you think this action will lead to our getting involved in Southeast Asia again with U.S. troops?"

	Yes	No	No Opinion
National	59	26	15
Republicans	46	38	16
Democrats	67	19	14
Independents	61	25	14

"Do you think further military action in Southeast Asia should require a vote of approval by Congress, or not?"

	Should	Should Not	no Opinion
National	76	13	11
Republicans	77	18	9
Democrats	79	7	14
Independents	77	16	7

The findings reported are based on interviews with a total of 1 548 adults, 18 and older, interviewed in person in more than 300 scientifically selected localities during the period April 27-30

Aged Are Sexually Oppressed—Report

(c) Chicago Daily News

Honolulu — A frantic husband whose 70-year-old wife had run off with a new love, hunted her, shot her and then himself His intentions were lethal but his aim shaky, and both recovered His age 75

A frustrated Lothario hurled a make-shift Molotov cocktail concocted from a prune juice bottle filled with kerosene through the window of his unfaithful lady love. His addiction to prune juice was well known and led to his arrest. His age: 78.

A jealous husband caught his 65-year old wife in bed with another man and blasted him with a shotgun His age 81

A University of Florida report cited these incidents to show that sex is a driving force in the Geritol Set and that society's abhorrence of grandparents cavorting in bed makes the aged the sexually oppressed of the nation

"It is indeed strange that what our prejudiced culture regards as virility at 25 becomes lechery at 65" Dr Stanley R Dean told the American Psychiatric Assn

"As one old chap said to me with righteous indignation, 'I am not a dirty old man. I'm a sexy senior citizen."

Dean recalled the "poignant story" of thousands of old people living together in sin because to get married would mean losing pensions and Social Security

It is a mistaken belief, said Dean, that aging women exhibit a greater sexual decline than men Rather it is the male's loss of capacity that is reflected in her sexual activity

"There is no reason why the milestone of menopause should blunt the female's sexual capacity, performance or drive," he said.

"How many elderly women leading lives of quiet desperation, must secretly envy the aging movie actress who has the means and the effrontery to indulge her sexual whims

Brezhnev to Visit U.S. For Summit June 18-26

Washington (UPI) — Soviet leader Leonid I Brezhnev will arrive June 18 for an eight-day visit of intensive talks with President Nixon aimed at a breakthrough in Soviet-American relations, the White House announced Saturday

Brezhnev will spend most of his time in Washington with Nixon discussing disarmament, trade, the Middle East and expanded cultural and scientific exchanges

White House foreign policy adviser Henry A. Kissinger, just back from four days of preparatory discussions with Brezhnev in Moscow, briefed reporters on the Soviet leader's long-awaited visit after the June 18-26 dates were officially announced simultaneously in both capitals.

While Nixon was in Moscow nearly a year ago for summit talks, he invited Brezhnev, General Secretary of the Soviet Communist Party, and Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and President Nikolai V Podgorny to make a return visit to the United States

Kissinger said Brezhnev probably would spend "something less than 90% of his time" in Washington, indicating the White House talks with Nixon would last about a full week Then Brezhnev will fly to California, possibly visiting the Western White House at San Clemente as Nixon's guest, before returning to Moscow

Kissinger confirmed that further progress in the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) would be a prime subject. But their discussions also will touch on economic relations, agricultural research, oceanography and other expanded contacts, as well as the potentially explosive Middle East, he said.

On trade, Kissinger hinted at important new advances by noting that the Soviets planned to waive their controversial exit fee on Jewish emigrants to Israel

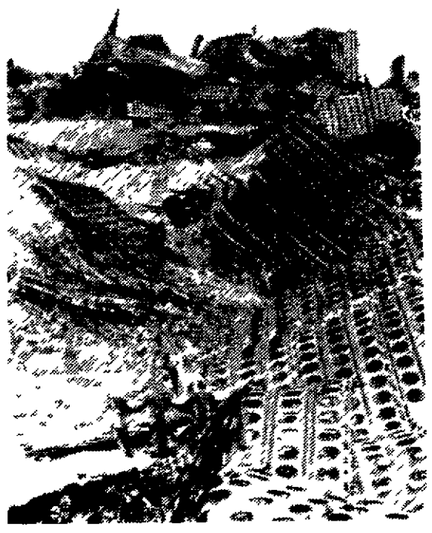
Is there anything that can be done about the mass of rusting iron behind the state National Guard headquarters?

—J M , Lincoln



ACTION LINE· After a few calls we learned that the scrap at one time was used in building temporary airfields and is the property of Offutt Air Force Base

Sgt Robbie Peavy with the redistribution and marketing service at Offutt said that the material has been let out for bids twice but the salvagers have failed to carry through

Peavy said the metal is going up for bid a third time and he believes the problem will be taken care of He said contractors have indicated they can t make any money if they have to pay for the loading themselves so Offutt has asked the Guard if they would provide some manpower

Capt Leonard Krenk with the Nebraska National Guard said the Guard is aware of the problem and will if necessary provide the manpower He noted that efforts to get rid of the scrap metal have been going on for a year

Sunday Journal and Star Colorphoto by Randy Hampton

Mrs. Winfred Pearson works on a painting at the Pearsons' farm. The windmill behind her is like many of the windmills in her work. She prefers to paint on barn doors instead of canvas

It All Started With a Sunday Journal and Star Story

Barn Doors Are Genoa Artist's Medium

By Helen Haggie

Genoa — It all started when Mrs Winfred Pearson read a story in the Nov 22 1970 issue of The Sunday Journal and Star Mrs Pearson is now using barn doors instead of canvas for her work

The 1970 story said Hazel Johnson — known as Tiny to her friends — had "dabbled in art practically all my life," but neither oils, watercolors, pen-and-inks nor other experimental media scored in popularity like the barn doors

Mrs Pearson hasn t been painting all her life However husband Winfred has His mother was an artist and he received some training in painting from her

Painting is his hobby During the spring summer and autumn daylight hours he farms 280 acres near here Mrs Pearson works with him driving tractors feeding livestock and choring in the the fields

About five years ago she decided she wanted to join her husband in his hobby of painting

"At first she used those paint-by-number kits," Pearson said, "but I told her she should have some instruction and really paint "

He sent her to study under Mrs Forest Corn of Columbus and the kits were abandoned Now both Mr and Mrs Pearson paint in the evenings both belong to the Columbus Area Artists and every time they enter works in that group s shows one or both bring home prizes

Like a Duck to Water

When Mrs Pearson discovered the barn door story she took to it like a duck to water The grain of the weathered wood is perfect for the acrylic paint I use she said and there is no canvas to be stretched nor any framing to be done

It takes her seven to eight hours to complete a painting and the doors sell for a tidy sum

The completed doors show farm scenes for the most part, but Mrs Pearson has painted still lifes on a couple.

She met Tiny Anderson last September during an art workshop at Halsey It was a happy meeting for me Mrs Pearson said

When Mrs Pearson heard that the hog barn was to be torn down at the old site of Camp Merrill she couldn t wait to get her hands on the doors

Proposal Made

She proposed to the American Baptists, who own the camp that if she could have the doors she would paint them and donate them to be used in a fundraising campaign for the new Camp Merrill near Linwood Eight doors from the hog barn now are pieces of art

"I guess I got excited about having the doors to paint on, and then, too, it is a missionary project," Mrs. Pearson said

The new camp Mrs Pearson said which is to cost about $250 000 will serve four major areas of Christian life evangelism family living Christian education and leadership training and home missions

The money from the sale of the old campsite is being used to purchase the new 560 acre site But $150 000 will be needed for facilities Mrs Pearson said

When the national convention of the American Baptists is held in Lincoln May 23 27, the barndoor paintings will be on display in the hospitality lounge at Pershing Auditorium Written bids for purchase of the doors will be received through May 26

Mrs Pearson hopes they will bring more than the ones she has sold before It is for a mission you know she says

The Pearsons hope to be at the convention on Saturday May 26 — if the farm chores permit

Brady Dike Up To Halt Floodwater

North Platte (AP) — State and Lincoln County Highway Dept employes late Saturday were continuing to construct earthen dikes at Brady to keep floodwaters out of the community

The South Platte River was expected to crest in North Platte about 10 a m. today. The crest was expected to be one foot above flood stage, but only minor lowland flooding was expected

Mayor Robert Phares said Saturday that as a precautionary measure county and city employes were filling sandbags and putting fill dirt in a dike on the west edge of North Platte

The mayor said he did not expect any floodwater in North Platte itself

Earl Johnson, state Civil Defense official who was coordinating efforts at Brady, said he expected some flooding in the community but that no houses are in danger.

Fewer than five miles have evacuated lowland areas along the Platte River between North Platte and Brady in expectation of the floodwaters

The State Roads Dept said Saturday the Roscoe spur from Interstate 80 had been closed temporarily because of high water

The department said personnel were at the scene to reroute traffic and that the closure was not expected to last long Roscoe is about seven miles east of Ogallala.

Department personnel also cut the Brady spur to Interstate 80, hoping the move would prevent flood damage in the community

Hiram Scott Issue Not Dead

By Dick Herman

Lest anybody think the Hiram Scott College issues is settled perish the thought

Two actions last week provided solid evidence that the move to incorporate the defunct private college s facilities into the University of Nebraska system is still strong and may ultimately be successful despite Gov J J Exon s veto of LB179 the Hiram Scott takeover bill

On Thursday, Exon and NU President D B Varner conferred with four Scottsbluff businessmen about possible future state acquisition of the Hiram Scott campus

The next day, Scottsbluff Sen Terry Carpenter sponsor of the ill-fated LB179 offered an amendment to another bill relating to the University system That amendment proposes that the NU Board of Regents establish a new College of Rural Health and related subjects

Rural health training programs were one of the principal missions of Hiram Scott under Carpenter s earlier bill

Forgotten by most in the public warring over LB179 and its subsequent veto slaying is the fact that the Board of Regents could acquire Hiram Scott entirely on its own — without getting prior permission from either the governor or the Legislature

The original stature, going back to 1869, creating the board and granting it powers permits the regents to "acquire real and personal property for the use of the University "

Should the Legislature pass a resolution either directing or rather strongly suggesting that the regents take Hiram Scott College as a no-strings-attached gift Exon could be completely bypassed

In such a circumstance the regents could be caught directly in the middle of an uncomfortable squeeze play Exon on one side and a legislative majority captained by Carpenter on the other

The volume of belligerent reaction and anger of Scottsbluff residents to the veto reportedly was greater than some Exon associates had anticipated

It marked the first time in the Exon administration's life that a small but vocal group took up political cudgels directly against the Democratic chief executive.

Axe Exon ' bumper stickers do not make the most pleasant reading for gubernatorial supporters also looking down the road to 1974 reelection campaign

In his veto message Exon did not foreclose the University s takeover of Hiram Scott College at some future time

But he noted an unsatisfactory program of long range planning as well as financial support and the question of use of empty dormitories as well as the equity of holders of dormitory bonds

Public Units Worried Less Over Power Than FPC Is

By Harold Simmons

Officials of Nebraska s two major public power districts said they are in a better position to meet peak power supply demands this summer than a recent Federal Power Commission (FPC) report indicates

Both the Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) and Omaha Public Power District (OPPD) said they anticipate no problems supplying all the electrical power Nebraskans may need this summer — assuming there are no unusual mechanical failures or natural disasters

An FPC spring survey of estimated summer power demands and generation capacity puts Nebraska in a section of the nation where the FPC said there are potential problems because of the small margin of excess generation capacity '

In the FPC survey, Nebraska was lumped in with six other states where total reserve capacity — the margin of generation capacity in excess of estimated peak demand — was only 13%, the lowest of the serious regions surveyed in the nation

Several Weeks Ago

Nebraska officials, however, said that when the Cornhusker state is considered alone, it has a reserve capacity in excess of 20% not the 13% indicated for the seven-state region

Dan Rice, NPPD director of rates and contracts said a current update of information submitted several weeks ago for the FPC survey shows that NPPD and OPPD which supply about 90% of the electricity used in the state have an adequate reserve capacity

NPPD and OPPD together estimate a peak demand of 2,538-megawatts (mw) and have a capacity to supply 3,071 mw, he said, a margin of 533 mw

Dan Kelly an OPPD assistant general manager said the FPC survey because it was based on data obtained several weeks ago failed to show that OPPD has 116 mw of additional generating capacity this summer plus a new contract to purchase 50 mw of power from Kansas Gas and Electric Co

Only 12% Reserve

Also Kelly said, OPPD expects to have its Ft Calhoun nuclear plant operating at 20% capacity this summer, which would mean another 91 mw of power This however, may not be a reliable capacity, he noted

Don Schaufelberger, NPPD deputy general manager and vice chairman of Mid-Continent Area Reliability Council Agreement (MARCA), which covers the seven-station region referred to in the FPC survey, said the group had planned on only a 12% reserve for the summer of 1973, increasing this to 15% for the summer of 1974

The reserve capacity is lower this year because of more stringent methods of determining generation capacity plus the fact several power plants are not being completed on schedule

Nebraska s two nuclear power plants in addition to several other plants in the area will not be meeting earlier schedules of producing full power this summer

Coal Major Fuel

In addition to expecting to meet electric power supply demands this summer neither OPPD nor NPPD expects any fuel problems

NPPD s major fuel is coal which is in good supply OPPD is having no problems obtaining natural gas

Both districts have peak power generating units that use fuel oil but are experiencing no particular difficulties obtaining supplies

You Can Fuel Some of the People Some of the Time But . . .

Small Cars Go Faster—From Salesrooms

By John Gleason

The small economy car is becoming an ever larger proportion of American car dealers' business; import dealers say they are selling more cars than ever before.

The general feeling of 15 Lincoln area car dealers is that people are becoming more economy conscious and that there is a sense of preparation for any gasoline shortage or price increase.

Dealers note that as laws of supply and demand come into play, the cost of the small car will probably rise. However, they point out that competition has forced the American dealer to allow discounts when people buy the small car, and they say the increase will merely be the discontinuance of discounts and selling the cars for full list price.

Five Out of Ten

A number of several dealers said that while you couldn't say there's a shortage of small cars, they are having trouble keeping up with the increasing number of orders

Gotfredson's report that five out of every ten cars they sell is an economy type car. According to Bob Stratman, Gotfredson's sales manager, "this is an increase of 30% from a year ago."

The trend to the smaller car is probably going to cause a proportionate price increase. "I definitely think the "74" models will show more of an increase than heavier cars," Stratman said.

Stratman believes the trend toward the small car will continue, but he thinks there will always be a market for the big car. "Some people just won't give up the space," he said.

A spokesman for De Brown's said they are selling three small cars out of every ten they sell. "They're interested in economy, especially young married couples," he said. This represents a doubling in sales for De Brown's on the smaller cars.

'A 30% Increase'

Guy Dean of Dean Bros notes that Ford is coming out with a new model in response to the trend. "The percentage of new car sales will be more toward the small car, the big car will slack, but not a lot," he said. Dean added: "I think Ford is gradually phasing into more of the smaller car market."

According to Dean about 50% of next year's market will be in the economy car class, or a 30% increase over the past year. He believes this will cause a price increase for the small car. "We have to discount our American compacts because of competition and I think the increased demand will allow us to get full list price out of them," he said.

Earl Moses, sales manager for Meginnis, said they are running about three small cars out of every ten sold. He notes this figure has remained steady, although more people seem to be showing an interest in smaller cars.

"People are aware of the gasoline situation and concerned, but until we experience a shortage we won't notice the difference in sales," Moses said.

No Trouble

According to Henry Misle, of Misle's, they are presently debating the extent of the trend themselves. He said their rate of small cars to big cars sold is 25-30% He noted the supply has been good and they don't anticipate any troubles in getting new cars in stock.

Mowbray's report a 30% increase in their small car sales from a year ago. "They're about 80% of our sales; this is compared to about 50-50 a year ago," said sales manager Tom Brooks.

Brooks believes the luxury cars will retain their present sales in the market, but that there will be a drop in intermediate sales and an increase in the compact sales.

Brooks concurs in that there will probably be an increase in the cost of the small cars. "I think the dealer will have to stick with the list price, and there will be fewer discounts on small cars than in the past," he said.

"The trend toward the smaller car has been going on for some time, but has accelerated in recent months," according to Gates Minnick, sales manager for Duteau. He added that there are two other trends affecting the sales, these are smaller families and a tendency to have two small cars, instead of the traditional "family car "

'Just As Good a Job'

Minnick said that about 60% of their sales is in the small car market and noted that he feels people have found out that the small cars do just as good a job as the larger models.

Bill Petty, sales manager for Vanice, said they don't have a model that he would really classify a compact, but he notes they have had their best four months since 1968.

"Hopefully with the new safety devices the insurance rates will drop and compensate for higher gas prices," Petty said. He added that Pontiac plans to come out with a compact in the fall to compete in the small car market.

Randolph's business is about evenly divided between economy and big car sales. Dick Randolph believes its premature to try and predict what gas prices are going to do to car sales. As to a price increase, Randolph said: "I think American made compacts will go up; imports are already going up because of the dollar devaluation."

Just About Doubled

Not only has the trend influenced the American dealers but it has had a major impact on the import market. "It started in January. I would say our sales have just about doubled," said Abe Novicoff of Standard Motors.

Novicoff said his sales have been so "brisk" that he is having trouble keeping models in stock. "We have had more imquiries because of the gas shortage question; younger people are trending toward sports cars," he said.

Bob Flynn of Behlen Motors concurred with the problem of keeping models in stock. "We're constantly out of them but our quota hasn't been raised," he said. He estimates their sales have tripled and that they are selling small cars in a 9-1 proportion over their medium sized cars.

Uni Auto Sales started business in January of 1972 and Richard Spitz, sales manager, said their business has doubled and possibly tripled from a year ago. "I would contribute about half of this to worry about a gasoline shortage," he said.

Ted Rose, of Doan-Rose, reports a "marked" increase over a year ago. He said that people seem to want to drive for the smallest price possible. "The impending gas shortage is definitely a factor in our increased sales," he said.

Sales Have Tripled

LeRoy Kubicek, Mid City Toyota, said the fuel crisis is definitely having an impact on his business. "Since the fuel oil shortage became known in January, our sales have tripled and the units in stock are about 5% of normal," he said.

"It (gasoline shortage) has really been a boost for our business," said Rex Carpenter of McDonald Volkswagen. He places their sales increase at 10 to 25%.

"The price of used compacts has risen drastically in the past 60 days," Carpenter said. For new cars, Carpenter predicts the imports will stay at their present list, but domestic cars will no longer be sold at a discount and will go for their list price. Carpenter said the sales increase has also affected their inventory. "We have 10 or 11 in stock compared to a normal of about 40," he said.

Pirate Buried In Paris Crypt

Paris (AP) — The remains of a French pirate who briefly captured Rio de Janeiro from the Portuguese in 1711 were found in the crypt of St. Roch church in Paris. The skeleton of Rene Duguay-Trouin, a pirate who became an admiral in the navy of king Louis XV, was transferred to his home town of St. Malo.

Board To Award Manor Contracts

Lancaster County commissioners Tuesday will award the contracts for draperies, linens and nursing home equipment for Lancaster Manor on the basis of bids received last week.

After the bids were received last week, the commissioners referred the matter to Lancaster Manor Administrator Jerry Gibson for consideration at last week's Lancaster Manor Advisory Board meeting.

At that time, the board recommended that the low bid on the draperies be accepted and that the single valid bid submitted on the linens and the only bid submitted on the other equipment be accepted.

However, Gibson suggested that perhaps the bid time should be extended one more week or the single bid on the equipment be rejected and the items put out for bid again since there was only one bidder.

Other business before the County Board Tuesday is an explanation of the operations of the day center at the house on the Orthopedic Hospital site recently purchased by the county.

The property is currently being used for training persons recently released from the Lincoln Regional Center prior to rejoining the community.

Two items will be added to the agenda, according to Commissioner Jan Gauger. The Lincoln Electric System has offered to install lighting at the intersection of 84th and Pioneers and over the bridge on Superior St. near 40th. LES would charge a monthly fee for the service. In addition, notice will be given for bids for fire equipment for Trabert Hall.

Other business on the agenda includes:

—Application for renewal of amusement license for Merle's, Inc.

—A letter from the county clerk regarding data processing system for county vendor claims.

—Action directing county clerk to publish notice to gravel contractors and contractors

—Request from Charlie Huff regarding amending minutes to reflect basis for decision on Rural Water District 1

—Request from James Arnot for funds for operation of Youth Service System for 1974.

Reporter: Press Has Potential for Good

Persistent, dogged reporting caused the dam to break in the Watergate case, according to a Washington newspaper correspondent honored in Lincoln Saturday James Risser, a native Nebraskan, also interpreted the Watergate issue as "one of the most ruthless and corrupt actions in (U S) political history "

Risser addressed the annual awards breakfast of Kappa Tau Alpha University of Nebraska-Lincoln (UNL) journalism honorary He is the son of the late J Vaulx Risser, who was president of Midwest Steel Works, and Mrs Ella Risser, Lincoln

The group presented him with a Distinguished Journalist award for his Washington coverage for the Des Moines Register Kappa Tau Alpha specifically cited Risser for his series of stories on forestry mismanagement in the U S Interior Dept Reportedly the series put him running for a Pulitzer Prize

Risser, a 1964 UNL graduate, who also holds degrees in psychology and law, said the exposure of the Watergate case is "one of the best examples of the power and potential for good that resides in the American press " He predicted that at least six more high government officials will be indicted in the case and that the story will be major news for at least another year

Journalists have a special duty to act on behalf of the reading public to force officials to tell the truth and reject the philosophy that the end justifies the means Risser said Many newsmen and broadcasters buried their head in the sand' when the Watergate issue first surfaced saying this is the way politicians always act he said

Risser, who has spent he last four years in Washington said the thing most needed on the Potomac beat is more investigative reporting

"There's too little probing below the surface of events," he said. He also noted what he termed neglect of many minor governmental offices. While about 2,200 reporters cover Washington, Risser said, not one major newspaper in the country has a full-time reporter covering the Dept. of Agriculture.

The reporter, sporting wire rim glasses and longish hair, sidestepped a question from the audience concerning columnist Jack Anderson's contention that Nebraska Sens Roman Hruska and Carl Curtis are "Washington's two worst senators "

"I'm not going to comment on personalities," he said straight-faced Then he cracked, "But I'm not about to dispute with Jack Anderson "

Kappa Tau Alpha also initiated 13 members They are Cheryl Robbins, Logan, La Gayle McMillan Broken Bow, Jane Menninga, Palmyra, Robert Ralston, Flint, Mich , Paula Wood, Lincoln, Susanne Schafer, Omaha, Alice Chue, Tema, Ghana, Liane Wetterer, Wood River, Kenneth Kirk, Lincoln, Phil Witt, Winside; Rebecca Ross, Woodbridge, Va , Susan Guffey, Lincoln, Lise McClendon, Lincoln

Olen Tagged Right Along

Lancaster, Pa (UPI) — "We're gonna have to make a new study of the wording," said a policeman Friday after a resident from York sent in his auto license plate along with $17 in parking fines

"You are hereby notified to return the tag along with the fine," a letter sent to Olen R Bradburn read The tag the police wanted was the one placed under Bradburn's windshield wiper at the time of the parking violation, not the license plate

On Farms Now

Curtis: Fuel Is Needed

Sen Carl Curtis, R-Neb, said Saturday that Nebraska farmers need fuel and they need it right away

Curtis said he is not sure those involved in petroleum production and distribution "really understand agricultural needs."

He said that if something doesn't happen soon he will renew his demand for mandatory fuel allocation

Curtis said he is sending telegrams to Deputy Treasury Secretary William Simon, Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz and heads of 15 major oil companies asking what they intend to do about the shortage of fuel for agriculture

Earlier he told officials he would "Burn them at the stake" if something wasn't done to help farmers. "This could be the beginning of the burning process," Curtis said.

He said there is "no indication the voluntary allocation plan will work in time to help farmers

Curtis said he has been getting calls from farmers who are worried about the possibility crops may burn if they aren't irrigated He said one farmer told him he started to irrigate a new alfalfa field and had only enough fuel to run the irrigation system about 20 hours

Curtis said the farmer told him the dealer was unable to furnish him any more fuel.

He also quoted a central Nebraska fuel dealer as saying his tanks were dry, his customers nearly out of fuel and his supplier unable to furnish more fuel

Fluoridation Governor Signs Bill

Nebraska became the ninth state to enact statewide fluoridation of drinking water Saturday as Gov J J Exon put his signature on LB449

Though there was no ceremony Nebraska Dental Assn President Donald Herzog of Grand Island hailed the new law as an action "that will result in two-thirds fewer cavities for children of Nebraska as well as stronger bones for adults

Dr. Herzog said the association "is pleased that this session of the Nebraska Legislature has passed the bill requiring fluoridation of municipal water supplies and that the governor has signed it."

Nebraska dentists have worked toward this end for some years concentrating their efforts this session under the leadership of Dr Herbert Seberg of Hastings

The governor noted Sen Thome Johnson s LB449 permits citizens of a community to vote themselves out of the mandatory public health dental protection This bill becomes effective Jan 1 1975

Shield Laws Open Doors—Radio-TV Man

President-elect Travis Linn of the Radio-Television news Directors Assn said at a round-table meeting Saturday shield laws for newsmen should be used as tools to open doors closed at both local and national levels of government

Linn, of Dallas-Ft Worth, said investigative reporting is becoming more important on the local level, but that newsmen are still faced with closed doors On the national scene, he said, the power in the White House has grown so that newsmen find it difficult to get information

Wherever there is secrecy there is corruption he told the newsmen adding that open meeting and record laws as well as shield laws need to be passed

Two association awards were presented during the session KAKE-TV in Wichita Kan was given the Edward R Murrow Award for investigative reporting and SCCO-TV in Minneapolis received the award for television editorializing

Rural Power

Funding Bill Is Lauded

A spokesman for Nebraska rural electric systems Saturday applauded the new rural electrification funding bill which President Nixon signed into law Friday.

"Now we can continue to meet urgent rural Nebraska needs through rural electrification," said Dick Wilkerson, general manager of the Nebraska Rural Electric Assn.

The bill pledges $618 million per year for rural system loans, of which $80 million will be available at 2%.

Since last Dec. 29, rural electrification loans have been made at a 5% interest rate under the Rural Development Act. On that date the administration discontinued making additional loans under the Rural Electrification Act of 1935.

Wilkerson said that without the help of Nebraska's congressional delegation, "I don't think this fair rural electrification funding act would have been possible . . . they really went to bat for us."

Wilkerson said 22 of 32 Nebraska rural electric systems will qualify for 2% interest rate loans. These are systems that meet the criteria of less than two consumers per mile of electric lines, or less than $417 gross revenue per mile of line.

"We think the new act is both fair and similar to our original wishes," he said.

By July 1, 1974, rural Nebraska will need $17 million to update old electrical distribution equipment and improve electric service, he noted.

Sanitary Checks Started

State Agriculture Dept. inspectors in the Bureau of Dairies and Foods begin a new custom this Mother's Day — weekend checks on food service and sanitation.

Glenn Kreuscher, director of the state agricultural operation, said the weekend checks on food service and sanitation.

Glenn Kreuscher, director of the state agricultural operation, said the weekend checks will be made to protect against sanitation letdown during busy periods when additional part-time help is employed.

The director said a current federal survey of the food service establishment program throughout the state gave Nebraska the highest rating ever achieved by a midwestern state.

Lloyd R. Claiborne, regional director with the Food and Drug Administration in Kansas City, Mo., told Kreuscher in a letter about the results of the 2,200 mile federal survey in Nebraska.

"They indicate that Nebraska's Bureau of Dairies and Foods has maintained the food service program on a high priority basis and you should be congratulated for such an accomplishment," wrote Claiborne.

Dyas Scores Amnesty For Watergate Men

Nebraska Democratic Party Chairman Hess Dyas Friday denounced amnesty for President Nixon and those involved in the Watergate scandal.

Dyas said former Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird and former national Republican chairman Robert Dole are asking that Americans grant Nixon amnesty "for the kind of administration he brought into the White House."

While denouncing amnesty for men who refused to fight in Vietnam, "they are asking the American people to pardon the President for the fact that many who were close to him were not only involved in illegal acts but were involved in activities to subvert and destroy our system of government," Dyas said.

The contradiction is ironic, he concluded.

Health Board Plans Meeting

The State Board of Health will hold its regular meeting 9 a.m. May 21 in its Lincoln offices, the State Health Dept. announced.

On the agenda is a special report by Russell Murray on Nebraska's Venereal Disease Control Program. He is director of the program.

Weather, Travel Delay Repairs

By Kandra Hahn

In most cases, you have to close streets to improve them. That's Bob Obering's problem.

The city public works director is sitting at the helm of what he judges to be "the most energetic street resurfacing program we've ever had," which means that portions of many of Lincoln's streets are impassable.

Obering is acutely aware of maneuvering problems in the city. He, like most Lincoln citizens, tries to use the streets.

He knows things are rough for cross-city traffic but says it may get worse before it gets better.

The current dilemma arises in part from an accelerated street repair and reconstruction program begun after a winter particularly harsh on Lincoln's streets. Some juggling of city funds was required to get a $1.7 million project off the ground around April 15.

The project is now moving ahead as weather permits

More Planning

Obering said that this project has received "much more planning than we've ever had before" and includes more complete interdepartment coordination than in the past.

But Obering points to the extraordinarily short construction season in Lincoln. "We have to be done by Sept. 1 on account of the State Fair and football season and we can't get to work before April 1," he says.

Obering says that some contractors have tried to work under traffic conditions but such a practice is usually unsatisfactory — and roughly 30% more costly to the city.

"Even though we put up barricades, people drive by at 35 miles per hour," says Obering. This knocks out portions of pavement, throwing it against workers.

Only 30% of Lincoln's total arterial mileage is included in the big project. But small component projects are scattered in time and distance through the next few months and across the city so that crosstown travel is difficult and will be for some time

Obering says that that's the only fair way of handling the project. Otherwise some section of the city would be completely knocked out all at once.

Some University Place citizens, perhaps sensitized by the long closing last year of their lifeline — 48th street, have complained nevertheless that their area is being picked on.

Recent closings near 27th and Cornhusker, at 70th and 56th on Vine, and at 33rd and Holdrege have created a near siege effect on the community, a situation exacerated by the stagnation of the 48th St resurfacing project north of Adams.

Closed Last Summer

Not included in the $1 7 million project, that segment of 48th has been closed since last summer. Obering says that the contractor, Dobson Bros., was ahead of schedule last fall but inclement weather has virtually eliminated significant work on the project. Some gas mains were completed over the winter but the site is temporarily abandoned.

Obering says he foresees a week of just cleaning up the site before the resurfacing gets underway. He said the city had considered getting the work done under a temporary enclosure during the winter, but the project proved too expensive.

The contractor is not near assessment of "liquidating damages" (like late penalties) under its contract with the city, according to the director. Obering blames the weather "They've been trying to get into the project for the last three weeks," he said.

Weekly Meetings

Obering points to weekly meetings with all contractors involved in the large street program as indications that citywide work is being balanced as much as possible.

He says there is some talk that work on some of the major arterials this summer may be attempted under traffic. Workers would work on one side of the street when the flow was heavy on the other side and reverse sides when the flow did.

Church Meet Topic Is Disaster Relief

Disaster relief will be discussed this week at a Community Service Seminar sponsored by Seventh-Day Adventists.

About 100 church officers from a five-state area will meet Monday at Union College to coordinate disaster relief efforts. The five states in the central union are Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Colorado and Wyoming.

Church disaster workers help the Red Cross, Civil Defense, Salvation Army and other groups' relief efforts following hurricanes, floods, fires and tornadoes, said Howard H. Voss, disaster service director for the five-state region. They provide food, clothing, electricity and shelter and help with rescue efforts.

Nebraska Seventh-Day Adventists collected nearly six tons of clothing for disaster relief in 1972, said Lincolnite James Gray, Nebraska disaster service director.

The latest innovation is a mobile disaster van at Grand Island. Voss said he hopes to equip more vans this year.

C. E. Guenther

Betty Ahnberg

Conference participants will learn how to equip vans and what items to stockpile for emergencies. Seminar speakers include C. E. Guenther, world community service director, and Betty Ahnberg, Ohio conference federation president.

In addition to disaster relief, the Adventists will coordinate ongoing programs to help the aged and delinquent youth. Nebraska has a "friendship camp" for problem children at Lexington. A new Good Neighbor house at 27th and Y Streets will teach first aid and nutrition as well as store emergency goods, Gray said.

The purpose of the conference, which ends Thursday, is to "provide better help faster," Voss said.

Rocks Around the Clock—Up to 6 p.m.—at Fairgrounds

More than 400 ploys for a rock hound's fancy are on display through 6 p m today at the State Fairgrounds Exposition Hall

An estimated 1,500 spectators began the visual tour of Lincoln Gem and Mineral Club's 15th annual gem show Saturday. Groups from Omaha, Shelton and other parts of Nebraska were there to wheel and deal with dealers from as far away as Texas, California and Oregon.

Rock hounds, known for their propensity to travel for special rock finds, spoke Saturday of their fear that traveling times may be increasingly limited as the predicted gas shortage becomes a reality

Fuel shortages will "certainly change the aspects of field trips," said Lincoln Gem and Mineral Club President Roger Pabian

More Chartering

Pabian looks for more travel in large groups — more trips with five or six to a car instead of two or three, and more chartering of buses

Traveling in large groups, he says, has the advantage of lower cost, but the disadvantage of slowness and the problem of landowners who often don't want large groups on their property

Show Chairman Ralph Ulrich thinks the fuel problem will cut the number of people who travel across country by camper. Local collectors will be spending more time exploring gravel pits and river banks in Nebraska and less traveling out of state, he predicts.

"There's just as much collecting in Nebraska as in Colorado," he says "The only reason you go to Colorado is to collect something different "

Getting that something different, he and Pabian agree, may soon mean more trading by mail Some goes on now, they said Or it might mean more rock swaps like the one the Lincoln group is planning for this August

May Be Fewer

The fuel problem is real for people out in Shelton, too, but Harold Liggett of the MidState Rock Club came on down to Lincoln, anyway He ventured a guess that some of the longer trips he and his group make — to South Dakota, Wyoming, Kansas and Texas, for instance — will be fewer than in the past

Lincoln area rock hounds are fortunate, in the shadow of a fuel crisis, to have the prestigious national Gem and Mineral Show coming to their very doorstep next year.

The 1974 show, according to Ulrich, will be worldwide in scope It will take four large fairgrounds buildings with some 112,000 sq ft of usable space to house it

600 Camping Sites

Planners project that 35,000 to 40,000 people will attend and those who travel from distances afield will need some 600 camping sites

So while the sand painting and the petrified wood pictures, the fossil sculptures and the jade carvings are special treats at this year's show, planners can assure that there's lots more to come next year

China Radio To Broadcast English Lesson

Hong Kong (AP) — Canton Radio, in south China's largest city, is going to broadcast a daily 30-minute English lesson three times a day, two Communist newspapers reported

Ta Kung Pao and Wen Wei Po said the lessons will continue for 18 months They will teach pronunciation, intonation and about 1,000 sentences in English

Zoning Change Hearings Set

The City-County Planning Commission Wednesday will hold public hearings on two change of zone applications for commercial development near Emerald and at 39th and Normal Blvd

Planning Director Doug Brogden is recommending approval of Dean Roy's request for business zoning at the southwest corner of 39th and Normal Blvd The land consists of approximately one-third acre

However, Brogden is recommending denial of Edward Piening's request for highway commercial zoning on the south side of Hwy. 6, east of Emerald. About four acres are involved.

The planning commission also will hold a public hearing on the application of MAPCO, Inc., for a zoning change to I Industrial from AA Rural near Waverly

The developer proposes to build an anhydrous ammonia terminal, storage facilities and accessory buildings on a 70-acre tract, located south of Hwy. 6 and three miles northeast of Waverly

Brogden is recommending approval of the application since the property was developed as a utility depot with a pipeline already running to the site.

The commission also will hold public hearings on:

Contract Study

Postal Workers Convene

The Nebraska Postal Workers Union (NPWU), an affiliate of the American Postal Workers Union, convened in Lincoln Saturday to study national contract negotiations to restructure the state constitution and to elect new officers for the two-year period until May, 1975.

Postal workers' contracts expire July 20, according to Terry Fletcher, general president of the Lincoln Local, APWU. Contract negotiations for the two year period until July, 1975, are underway.

Membership in the Nebraska organization is 1,800, he said, or about 90% of all those eligible.

Jeems Robinson, Hastings, was elected general president of the group. Other officers were Wally Helaney, Omaha, clerk craft vice president; William Bang, Omaha, maintenance craft vice president; Paul Nielsen, Lincoln, motor vehicle vice president; Louis Clyde, Omaha, special delivery vice president; Don Churchill, Fremont, secretary-treasurer and Ardyth Gerst, Omaha, legislation and education director.

The new officers will serve two year terms, Fletcher said, instead of the one-year terms of past elections.

Some 80 NPWU delegates selected North Platte as the site for the 1974 convention.

Nebraskaland Ethnic Groups Helped

Nebraska ethnic group promotion received a shot in the arm Saturday when the Nebraskaland Foundation approved $2,000 to be used in conjunction with federal matching funds to promote pride of heritage, ethnic handicrafts, and the preservation of ethnic artifacts.

Walter A. Baer of Wilber presented the small group of members an outline of what will be done for ethnic promotion at the 1976 bicentennial.

Bear will also make the presentation to the Bicentennial Committee for its approval. The Foundation wants an ethnic fair of all Nebraska ethnic groups.

Charles Chace of Lincoln was elected president of the group at its annual meeting. Baer, was named vice president. Secretary of State Allan Beermann was named treasurer and Mrs. John (Peggy) Flower of Omaha was named secretary.

Andy Hove of Minden was named administrative vice president and Don Searcy of Kearney, Max Brown of Lexington, John Kingsbury of Ponca and John Sanders of Auburn were named to the executive committee.

The 10th annual Circle Tour will be held from June 20 through 24 and has been sold out since April 1, according to outgoing president Ken Wortman.

The four-day tour will depart from Lincoln with over-night stops at North Platte, Scottsbluff and Red Cloud with scenic stops at Kearney, Ogallala, Bridgeport, Kimball, McCook, Macon, Inavale, Ruskin, Fairbury, Endicott and Beatrice.

The group is contemplating a two-day fall trip because of the tour popularity.

A special citation for the city with the best tourism promotion was agreed to. Frank Marsh will donate the plaque.

Nebraska Resources

By Harold Simmons

Dr. Edward Teller, the famed nuclear physicist sometimes referred to as the "father" of the hydrogen bomb, is one of the few so-called experts on energy who concedes he doesn't have the answer to current energy problems.

Looking 10, 20 or 30 years down the road, Dr. Teller sees solutions in nuclear power with fision and fusion reactors, MHD, coal gasification, geo-thermal power and other sources.

But for the next few years, Dr. Teller said he simply doesn't have the answer to energy supply problems.

As the doctor put it, he's a research and development man. The short-range supply problems are up to the "financial and political wizards."

Electrical Power

A good many Nebraska municipalities are likely to find themselves locked into a single source of wholesale electrical power in future years, regardless of what the towns might like their options to be.

The wholesale service area agreements that the Nebraska Public Power District (NPPD) is working out with rural power agencies, will in effect eliminate any competition between NPPD and the rurals in determining who has the right to provide wholesale power to municipalities.

The municipalities are not a party in the agreements that will limit their future sources of wholesale power. But towns do have an opportunity to voice their opinions to the Nebraska Power Review Board, which must approve the agreements.

The wholesale service area agreements, although billed as a move to eliminate possible future duplication of facilities and disputes over customers, also tighten the hold NPPD has as the single, dominent power supplier in Nebraska outside the Omaha area.

Many Nebraska municipalities now receive all or part of their electric power needs in purchases from the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation.

But the Bureau says it will meet increasing power supply demands only until about 1977. After 1977, the municipalities will have to buy additional needs somewhere else.

And with the wholesale service area agreements, NPPD is a fair way down the road to insuring it will be the only logical source to which the municipalities can turn to buy additional electric power.

Oil Industry Honesty

Any discussion of energy problems invariably gets around to questions of the honesty of the oil industry, particularly whether supply shortages may in part be contrived so the industry will reap greater profits.

The millions of dollars spent by the industry on advertising energy problems hasn't done too much to quiet the skeptics, especially those ads that seem to say higher prices will translate into adequate supplies of energy.

And adding fuel to the skeptics' questions are recent reports that major U.S. oil companies realized sizable earnings gains during the first quarter of 1972, compared to the first quarter of 1971.

Examples of earnings gains during the first quarter of 1972 are Getty Oil Co., 20.6%; Standard Oil of Indiana, 21%; Standard Oil Co. of California, 24%; Shell Oil Co., 49%; Atlantic Richfield Co., 52%; Occidental Petroleum Corp., 69.5%.

The earnings increase was generally attributed to increased average prices, increased imports and increased refinery production.

However, most oil company officials warned their stockholders they should not expect the earnings gains of the first quarter of 1972 to remain at that level for the entire year.

Tuberculosis Seminar Planned

An all-day tuberculosis seminar for medical care facility personnel throughout the state will be sponsored Thursday at the airport Holiday Inn by the Nebraska Health Dept., the Nebraska Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Assn. and the Lancaster Co. units of the same organization.

Planners said participation by key personnel in nursing, hospitals, nursing homes and other health fields which might be associated with the state's new decentralized tuberculosis program has been encouraged.

The aim is to answer some of the questions which the change from tuberculosis care in a sanatorium to tuberculosis care in other medical care facilities has generated.

It is hoped key personnel participating will be able to provide an influence for understanding today's tuberculosis patient and better prepared to answer questions within each facility.

Some issues to be covered at the seminar include differences in types of care between tuberculosis and other patients, the needs of a patient and the needs of medical facilities.

Nursing home directors attending the seminar may receive four hours credit toward licensure renewal requirements, according to State Health Director D. Henry Smith.

Dr. Hal Cole of Aberdeen, S. D., TB control officer for the Indian Health Service, who will speak at the annual Lancaster County Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease meeting Wednesday noon, will be on the seminar faculty.

Others include Dr. Smith, Dr. John Casey, Lincoln pathologist; Ellen Buchart, tuberculosis nursing consultant, Kentucky health dept., and F. Lee Szynskie, state tuberculosis program director.

Armed Forces Day

Offut Slates Fete

Bellevue — The U.S. Air Force Thunderbirds aerial demonstration team will be the main attraction at the Offutt Air Force Base Armed Forces Day May 20.

The open house, scheduled from noon to 4:30 p.m., will also feature almost 30 different types of aircraft and displays from all of the military services.

A variety of displays will be located in three hangars, including a B-1 space ring, communications equipment and a physical fitness booth.

Other exhibits will include mockups of navy aircraft carriers and tanks, personnel carriers and other "hardware" from the army.

Special Air Force buses will provide transportation for visitors from parking areas near the Aerospace Museum to aircraft and displays on the south side of the base.

Gates to Offutt AFB will be open at noon. Visitors are encouraged to enter the base from the gates adjoining Highway 73-75 or to use the Bellevue gate at the end of Highway 131.

Giants Battle In Kearney

Kearney — People who like to watch giants struggle won't want to miss the tractor pulling contest at the Gateway 73 Farm Show in Kearney, Saturday at 3 p.m.

More than $1500 in prize money will be awarded to the winners of the three-class tug-of-war, according to the Kearney Chamber of Commerce.

Six-Year Term For Egermayer?

If the 1973 Legislature fails to reject Omaha insurance and billboard company executive George Egermayer for a position on the State College Board of Trustees, Egermayer will automatically be in for a full six-year term.

That's what Atty. Gen. Clarence Meyer has told Sen. Ramey Whitney, chairman of the Unicameral's Committee on Committees.

The 13-member committee has been unable to muster seven votes on recommendations either for confirmation or for rejection.

Whitney Friday advised the Legislature of the state of affairs and announced: "I'm washing my hands of the whole thing."

Voters last November revised the Constitution with respect to gubernatorial appointments.

The key sentence now in the Constitution governing the Egermayer situation, according to the attorney general, is this one:

"If the Legislature is not in session, the governor shall have the right to make a temporary appointment until the next session of the Legislature, at which time a majority of the members shall have the right to approve or disapprove the appointment."

Egermayer was nominated by Exon for a six-year board term commencing Jan. 1, 1973. That was before the 1973 Unicameral convened.

Meyer said it is his thinking the 1973 Legislature is the only one, constitutionally, which can act on the Egermayer nomination.

Should it fail to do so, no subsequent Legislature would have the authority to disapprove the Omahan's appointment.

So he would thereby be in for the full term. Whether there will be a motion before the current Legislature that the Egermayer appointment be disapproved isn't known.

All three Committee on Committees members in whose districts are located state colleges — Irving Wiltse of Falls City, Gerald Stromer of Kearney and Leslie Stull of Alliance — expressed opposition to Egermayer's confirmation.

Union Loan Confirms Buying Of Hardy Building

By Bess Jenkins

Union Loan & Savings Assn.'s purchase of the 1314 O St. structure known as the Hardy Furniture Co. building since 1912 was confirmed Saturday by President Kenneth King.

The savings and loan executive said the price being paid is under $300,000. The present owners are Dr. Thomas L. McKee, Lincoln dentist, and Cornell Arendt, First Mid America staff broker.

King said development plans are not yet defined sufficiently to be discussed in detail, but Union hopes to use some of the five-story building as part of its expanding operations.

He said a likely use of floors above ground level would be for retail store or office space. The J. C. Penney Co. is next door (northeast corner of 13th and O Sts.) in crowded quarters.

King said an application for any use of the structure as a Union Loan & Savings Assn. operation will have to be filed with the State Banking Dept. for approval.

Union, which has $66 million in assets, has a downtown office at 209 So. 13th, another at 56th and O Sts. and a third in Lincolnshire, plus an office in Scottsbluff and a new one authorized by the State Banking Dept. for Beatrice.

According to King, the 1314 O St. purchase will be completed in September.

He said he has assured Norman Wilnes, president of the local family-owned Furniture Fair now occupying the downtown building, that an instant move is not necessary in September.

Wilnes said Saturday night that he intends to continue in the furniture business but will relocate outside the downtown area to provide more convenient shopping for customers.

Fire Destroys Aitkin House

Fire Saturday destroyed the home of Lincoln architect Martin Aitkin near 70th and Old Cheney Road.

A spokesman for the Southeast Rural Fire Protective District estimated loss at $60,000 to $65,000. The cause was not determined.

Blacks Elected In Mississippi

Bolton, Miss. (UPI) — Bennie G. Thompson, a social worker, was elected Tuesday as Mississippi's second black mayor of a biracial community. Blacks also won all five sports on the board of aldermen and the city clerk's office.

In another election, civil rights leader Charles Evers was re-elected without opposition as mayor of Fayette in southwest Mississippi. Evers ousted a white incumbent four years ago to become the state's first black mayor of a biracial community since reconstruction.

Two Councils Will Share Spotlight at Monday

The stars of Monday's City Council business will undoubtedly be the newly-elected members, but there still remains some old business to resolve

Among items that will come before the old council is the application of Joe Hampton for a change of zone at 70th and Lincolnshire to provide for construction of an office complex The application was tied up 3-3 last week and must be voted again until resolution or die with the present council

Expected to receive the same treatment that the 56th and Old Cheney Rd shopping center proposal of Hub Hall received last week is the proposal of General Growth Development Corp. for a change of zone at 84th and O The council last week voted Hall's proposal to pending from which it can be recalled for consideration by the new council

Also before the old council will be the question of accepting and approving the report of the Goals and Policies Committee which now holds the modified approval of the County Board

The old council will also implement the salary for new council members as approved by a vote of the people in the May election

The old council will adjourn, taking with it all old business, and the new council will be sworn in to examine a welter of comparatively routine matters and to ponder on a list of potentially reviviscent matters.

To be brought to the attention of the old council as well

Be Prepared is the motto of legislative leaders as well as the Boy Scouts as senators point toward adjournment and then the seven-month interim between sessions.

Last week the Legislative Council executive board approved a policy of providing secretarial help for all senators who want such. For Omaha lawmakers there'll be a full-time secretary in Omaha, plus the availability of hourly assistance available to all other legislators. Two to four secretaries are to be on duty at all times in the Capitol for the solons. And a full-time clerk is to be assigned every study committee. That's new, too.

On the interesting question of individual offices for senators back home in their districts, the board said it would pass on space request "Area offices could be located in already existing state facilities," the board helpfully suggested

There was agreement senators could keep their Statehouse telephones connected from June through December, even though the offices are rarely used. That cost: Around $3,500. Last year all the phones were jerked, causing some annoyance. Also, the Legislature has voted to give each member 2,000 8c stamps—enough to write an average of about 10 letters daily for each day out of session, including Sundays.

Looking ahead to 1974, the board further agreed that platforms ought to be built in committee hearing rooms. Thus may senators sit on levels several steps above everybody else Good for the dignity, y'know .. There's no serious concern about "resources." In addition to the $1.8 million already voted in the 1973-74 legislative budget, senators quietly have approved the reappropriation of at least $400,000 expected to be left over unspent from this year's appropriation

Thanks for the Memories

Grand jury indictments last week pulled from memory a morning last summer at the Republican national convention in Miami Beach

Editorial Chief Jack Hart and this reporter had nervously passed through a couple of armed picket lines to have orange juice with Nebraskan Clayton Yeutter in the Doral Hotel. That was the GHQ for the Committee to Reelect the President, of which Yeutter was a high official.

At one point Yeutter motioned to a distinguished looking gentleman and told we yokels he was CREEP finance chairman Maurice Stans, former secretary of commerce The irreverent newspaperman response "What, is he still out of jail?"

Heh, heh, heh, Yeutter reacted Heh, heh, heh

On Rhetoric and Votes

All the rhetoric and wit in the 101 minutes of legislative debate—leading up to the futile attempt to override Gov Exon's veto of the DAS reorganization bill last week didn't change a single position As the speechifying began, one senator sent a note to reporters forecasting "No more than 26 votes on this one" He was only one-tally off

Sources high in the administration afterward said there never were any more than 21 "hard" votes to override the veto, whereas 30 were needed. Several who voted against Exon were prepared to switch in a pinch, it's said. Also afterward there was speculation what "rewards" the governor might have approved for loyalists, such as new roads and the like.

The reaction statement from Exon's office thanking "those senators who courageously held fast" contained the expected touch of characteristic chestiness "It is not frequent when major legislation fails when supported by the Marvel-Carpenter coalition," Exon exulted But I-we did it, the statement implied Without doubt —on that day

All in One Paragraph

—Gov Exon reports he doesn't charge fees when he accepts an invitation to be a speaker for this group or that "But I do get an honorarium once in a great while," the governor noted Two or three came in last year, Exon recalled The question was stimulated when minutes of the Nebraska Sand, Gravel and Ready Mixed Concrete Assn's board of directors showed $500 paid Exon as the group's March 2 convention banquet speaker

—This item, exactly as it appeared in the Legislative Council executive board's agenda: "Sen. Fowler would like authority to keep his girl for two weeks after the session adjourns."

—In the area of abortions, a source tells me that several years ago it wasn't really to attend a private school that the daughter of a then state senator "went east"

—While distributing Gov Exon's news release the chief executive was designating emergency conditions for flood-threatened regions, administrative aid Leo Scherer was asked how Exon could know which areas would be hit Well, he replied confidently all things are known to a man who walks on water

—Omaha Sen Richard Fellman says he wouldn't object to the burdens of being governor if somebody wants to appoint me" Which is how he entered the Legislature, of course

—Last week was a good one for the Nebraska Catholic Conference After precisely the abortion bill wanted by the conference was advanced, senators immediately, without a murmur, tentatively okayed a plan to supply all private school students with textbooks, technically loaned from public schools Now if the conference can crank up that 10,000-letter campaign for the bill to improve welfare payments to children, it will be a clean sweep.

—Not until the end of the year will the Nebraska Supreme Court make known its opinion on the 1972 law extending tuition grants to private college students The court's final oral argument docket of the spring term doesn't have the case

Metro Memo

By Kandra Hahn

Perched on the brink of a possible new era in municipal government, let's nevertheless lean back and wallow in some stereotypes and see what surprises we can uncover by taking a look at the recnet city election through Archie Bunker eyes, which seem not to have been the eyes of the electorate.

Forgetting for a moment that people — even political candidates — are rich and complex beings of infinite variety within themselves, let's cut two-dimensional political paper dolls and paste them on an arbitrarily pigeon-holed Lincoln that may no longer be capable of such pat division.

The Winners

Say we view top vote-getter Sue Bailey as a streamlined and congenial version of the quintessential League of Women Voters canvasser in canvas shoes with a bun on the back of her neck and righteous political perception in her eye. Let's say she was a hard worker, not particularly tinged by any readily identifiable ethnic or social tag. But she's a woman and there's already a woman on the council.

Precinct results show that Mrs. Bailey took more than one of every five votes cast in the six-candidate race and with a graceful citywide patina of support. Let's eliminate — at least minimize — sex as a factor in her election.

Now take a myopic squint at John L. Robinson Jr. and see him as the ethnic entry. Let's say that despite his considerable credentials as student extraordinaire on the NU campus and his tenure on the Goals and Policies Committee, for starters, some folks see him as black, period.

Havelock Taken

Then, since we're so tidily compartmentalizing people, let's turn our bigoted eye to the city map and glance at a couple of neighborhoods where a black wouldn't have a chance. Let's try Havelock and really get rocked back on our heels to discover that Robinson claimed the precincts south of Havelock Ave. and north of Adams roughly east of the mid-60s for himself, splitting other traditional heavily blue-collared districts with Mrs. Bailey.

Robinson and Mrs. Bailey, incidentally, tie up exactly in the heavily-studented Air Park while Robinson splits with Max A. Denney the student-infested rental district just south of downtown.

After the name Denney comes frequently the word Republican. Inextricably bound to his solid GOP credentials, Denney of the new council members may be closest to established business and wealth. Explain then his sweep of the West O area. But don't be surprised at all by his voting enclave bounded by Vine and A, 44th and 70th.

The Losers

Coming in fourth, low on visibility, is attorney William R. Thierstein, Gateway's candidate, some say. He draws strength from the newest southeast areas of the city, tying with Denney in more than one such precinct. Thierstein greabs, too, some northeast districts, but is it the lack of University-related and old business support that rules him out?

Turn to Emmett Junge, establishment's baby in this race, his campaigning generally cued to a Babbettish builder-boosterism that doesn't seem to cut it these days. He lays claim to only four precincts in the city, repositories for some of Lincoln's oldest gold.

Some say his old city connections as former director of safety doomed him in areas where he is remembered as part of an adversary municipal government. On his own turf his 68 years may have played against him.

Nancy Childs remains, one Belmont precinct inexplicably voted for her. A Democratic party regular with a familiar name, her defeat enhances the theme of the end of the free ride based largely on party or name.

So what?

So maybe Lincoln voters are refusing to be put into recognizable, reliable voting blocks — growing up, perhaps, making their own decisions.

So maybe minorities are mobilizing in the direction of the polls, bolstering, if not delivering, their representatives. Maybe women are even voting for women.

Maybe, just maybe, the issues are coming under consideration ahead of names and pigments. The shopping center scare can't be discounted in bringing zoning issues to a timely focus — a merchandising monster in my nice neighborhood?

The new council members reputedly have zoning philosophies that fall rather conservative than liberal. More than one developer is anticipating a chary flavor in the new council's granting of zone changes.

It is just possible that Lincolnites are beginning to heed e e cummings' diagnosis that "Progress is a comfortable disease" and these days potentially fatal?

Doctor Reports Fish Diet Lowers Coronary Risk

Seattle, Wash. (UPI) — Fish may not be brain food, as the old wives' tale would have you believe, but it is good for people with coronary artery disease.

That is what Dr. Averly M. Nelson, a heart specialist, says, following completion of a 19-year research project. The Seattle physician said that 80 patients on a fish-based diet lived an average of 109 months after treatment started. Those who did not take the treatment lived only an average of 58 months, he said

Dr. Nelson said eating fish lowered the patients' cholesterol levels. At the same time the fish intake either raised the levels of another type of fat found in blood called phospholipids or lowered them by a smaller amount than the cholesterol decline.

He said the average survival time appeared to increase significantly when the ratio of phospholipid level to the cholesterol level increased.

The test group included both men and women between the ages of 40 and 70, who followed an eating plan arranged around five food groups.

It included a pint or more daily of nonfat milk or buttermilk; some low-fat cottage cheese and certain other cheeses low in fat content.

For meats, six ounces of cooked lean beef, lamb, veal, chicken or turkey was permitted, daily. But seafood was substituted at least three times a week.

Elsewhere, the diet called for at least four servings a day of dark green or yellow vegetables, tomatoes or citrus fruits; four or more daily servings of bread or cereals made of enriched or whole grain; a daily intake of not more than three tablespoons of fat, including that used for cooking.

Dr. Nelson's food plan also requires adjusting a caloric balance of 22 percent protein, 24 percent fat and 54 percent carbohydrate. He said this is done by using egg whites, defatted wheat germ, low fat milk powder,gelatin and low fat seafoods.

Patients who respond during the first eight weeks are permitted "diet violations" in four successive meals — usually during the weekends.

But nausea, heart pain and general ill feeling following violation meals causes the patients to quickly learn moderation.

As to the fish diet, Dr. Nelson says seafood can restrain coronary artery disease in the elderly, cause an uplifting psychologically and provide quick, effective results generally.

Insurancemen:

Flood Help Limited

The Nebraska Association of Mutual Insurance AGents has said that although 44 Nebraska communities have been declared flood prone, only six are cleared for participation in the federally subsidized Flood Insurance Program.

Dennis Poeschl of Stanton said unless a community is approved by the federal government for such coverage, no other insurance program is available

The communities declared eligible for the program are Bellevue, Columbus, Lincoln, Omaha, Papillion and Wahoo. In addition, unincorporated areas of Sarpy and Saunders Counties are eligible.

Communities which the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers have declared flood prone but ineligible include Alliance, Auburn, Beatrice, Blair, Broken Bow, Chadron Cozad, Crete, Fairbury, Falls City, Fremont, Gering, Gothenburg, Grand Island, Hastings, Holdrege, Kearney, Kimball, Lexington, McCook, Nebraska City, Norfolk, North Platte Ogallala, O'Neill Plattsmouth, Ralston, Schuyler, Scottsbluff, Seward, Sidney, South Sioux City, Superior, Valentine, Wayne, West Point and York

Just because the communities are not now eligible for insurance doesn't mean they will stay that way, Poeschl said.

But he added that the community itself must make the effort to get the non-eligibility situation changed

"Local government officials have to make application (to the federal government) for participation in the program," Poeschl said, adding a community could be approved within six days application

Two Newcomers Top Gals' State Meet

By Randy York
Prep Sports Writer

Grand Island — Lexington and Hastings St. Cecilia successfully defended their respective Class B and Class C state girls track championships here Saturday.

And Grand Island and Elwood replaced Kearney and Dix in the Class A and D throne room.

But although her team didn't win again, Mary Lou Jasnoch stole the show in the third annual meet hampered by strong winds at Memorial Stadium.

The Oshkosh junior was the only athlete to win more than one gold medal, capturing the 220 and tieing for the gold in the 50 and 100.

Having been a double gold medal winner last year as a sophomore and winning a title and tieing for another as a freshman, Miss Jasnoch now owns seven state championships . . . with one year remaining. She has three 50 titles, three in the 100 and one in the 220.

Despite the strong winds, 29 class records, including four in the new 80-yard hurdle event, were shattered.

Seven state records fell and another was tied.

They included:

—a 126-5½ discus throw by Lincoln East senior Sharon Baack.

—a :57.8 effort in the 440 by Elwood's Karol McKenzie.

—a :25.6 in the 220 preliminaries by Dix's Debbie Quillen, a double gold medal winner last year.

COLOR

—a 18-3½ long jump by Shelton's Gwen Gould.

—a 2:23.7 in the 880 by Lebanon Beaver Valley's Charlyce Remington, the best of four girls who bettered state class records in the half.

—a :10.7 preliminary flight of 80-yard hurdles by Omaha Central gold medalist Juanita Orduna, whose brother, pro footballer Joe Orduna, was in the stands.

—a 1:47.0 half-mile relay by Grand Island and :51.0 by the Islanders, tieing the state record in the 440 relay.

Miss Jasnoch failed to be a part of the record-breaking ceremony, but she made another gallant bid to lift her team to the championship.

Oshkosh and Grant finished two points behind St. Cecilia's 36-point winning total in the scrambled Class C title race. Last year, Oshkosh lost the title by a single point.

Miss Jasnoch, who plans to attend John F. Kennedy College in Wahoo when she is graduated from high school, indicated she may concentrate on the 100 next year.

"She's tired of track right now," said her father, Bud Jasnoch, a former Class A head track coach at Alliance. "her race is the 100 and we'll work most on it."

Dix's Quillen, who shared the state meet spotlight with Miss Jasnoch last spring, showed signs of the pulled thigh muscle which kept her out of competition for about six weeks this season.

She did, however, share the 100 gold medal with Miss Jasnoch.

Other gold medal winners included: Kimball's Jean Watson, Wood River's Marilyn Wiese and Hyannis' Poliy Rothwell in the high jump, Kearney's Ann Richardson in the shot put and Wallace's Dawn McDermott, who tied Miss Jasnoch for the 50-yard medal.

Pacers Claim Crown

LOUISVILLE Ky. (UPI) — "This one was so sweet because it is so difficult to motivate a club to repeat as titlists," Coach Bob Leonard said Saturday after his Indiana Pacers won their second straight American Basketball Association championship by defeating the Kentucky Colonels 88-81.

Leonard credited a "lot of good defense and rebounding" for his team's seven-game victory which made the Pacers the first ABA team to win three championships.

"Our two young forwards also did a tremendous job," Leonard said in praising the work of freshman pro Darnell Hillman and sophomore George McGinnis. McGinnis, named the Most Valuable Player in the series, topped Indiana in the championship game with 27 points, including 13 in the third quarter when the Pacers broke the game open.

Hillman was the leading rebounder in the game with 13, while holding Kentucky's leading scorer, Dan Issel, to 12 points.

"It's just too much," said McGinnis in the jubilant Indiana dressing room as he savored his second pro championship since leaving Indiana University after his sophomore season two years ago.

"We had the experience," McGinnis said. "We had been through this before and I thought we would win all along."

Leonard said he felt the third quarter, when Kentucky hit only 13 per cent and scored only 11 points after trailing by just one point at halftime, was the turning point of the game.

"All of a sudden they went stone cold and we just kept coming back at them," he said. "They didn't get the bounces and they didn't get the shooting."

Kentucky, after trailing most of the first half, went ahead of Indiana three times early in the third quarter but after Indiana took its final lead at 49-48, the Pacers outscored Kentucky 17-4 the rest of the quarter for a 5652 lead going into the fourth quarter. The closest Kentucky could get after that was the final seven-point margin.

During the disastrous third quarter, Kentucky hit only three of 22 field goal attempts for 13.6 per cent and scored only 11 points.

Artis Gilmore led Kentucky with 19 points and Rick Mount, who fired in three three-point field goals in the closing seconds, had 16.

Kentucky shot a cold 38 per cent from the field, managing to convert only 30 of 79 shots. Indiana hit on only 41.6 per cent (32 of 77) of its field goal attempts.

Indiana jumped out to a quick 7-0 lead and maintained that margin much of the first half with their largest lead nine points.

Kentucky took a brief one point lead late in the half but Indiana went into the dressing room at halftime with a 42-41 lead on a layup by Brown.

The lead changed hands six times at the start of the second half before Indiana went on its 17-4 spree.

The win was Indiana's third at Louisville's Freedom Hall in the seven game series.

Lincoln East's Toni Churchill 'Fosbury Flops' over the high jump bar at 5-2 to win the Class A title in the Nebraska girls state high school track meet in Grand Island Saturday. East's Lora Appleman and Kendy Schwab finished second and third to give the Spartans a sweep of the top three spots in the event.

East Girls Sweep

By Randy York
Prep Sports Writer

Grand Island — Redemption for Lincoln East's Sharon Baack came in the form of a state discus record and a gold medal here Saturday.

"I've been working for this since last summer," the Spartan senior said of her record 126-5½ discus effort in the third annual girls state high school track championships here at Memorial Stadium.

"I wiped out when I came to state as a sophomore," Miss Baack related, "and last year, I just blew it at district and didn't even qualify. That's when I decided my senior year was going to be a good one."

East teammates Toni Churchill and Lora Appleman also ended their prep careers in high style.

Miss Churchill, the state high jump record-holder who's been plagued all season by a foot injury, leaped 5-2 to lead a 1-2-3 East High sweep in the high jump.

"I'm dissatisfied about missing the gold medal," the former Pan-American Games competitor said. "I really thought I could go 5-4 today and wanted to prove it. But it was good to go 1-2-3 as a team."

"We've been planning a sweep at state for two years now since Kandy (Schwab) started," noted Miss Appleman, whose career best 5-1 earned a second place Class A finish.

"We've gone 1-2-3 all season except for the Trans-Nebraska when I wasn't there," Miss Appleman pointed out. "This really capped it off. Next year Kendy (a junior) is going to win it."

Miss Schwab left Grand Island early to return to Lincoln for the annual East High prom, thinking she had placed fourth in the high jump and missing the sweep.

Like discus champion Miss Baack, Miss Appleman made up for a 1972 disappointment, having missed the last half of the season with a sprained foot after clearing 5-0 as a sophomore.

Miss Baack credited Carol Frost, her coach as a junior, and Clark Beaver with helping her state record throw.

"He helps the Lincoln High girls," she said of Beaver. "You can tell he's helped me because Judy Johnson and I throw just alike. I worked out three days a week all last summer on form alone."

Lincoln High's Miss Johnson also went about eight feet over the state discus record in finishing four inches behind Miss Baack at 126-1. Defending gold medal champion Sara Schamp of Beatrice was fourth at 116½.

"I felt confident I could get the record because I've thrown 130 in practice," confided Miss Baack, who missed East's first two meets this spring because of her participation on the Roberts Dairy team which played in the national AAU high school basketball tournament in New Orleans.

Miss Baack, who missed the East prom, said: "This is more fun anyway."

The Spartans, who qualified only five individuals for the state meet, received a whopping 34 points from four of them.

It made for a pleasant exit for East coach Jan Fenemore, too. Like four of her state meet qualifying seniors, Saturday was the finale for her.

She's moving to Kansas next fall to teach.

"She couldn't believe we scored 34 points today," noted Miss Churchill. "I think we surprised a lot of people."

Quiet Story Wins At Ak

By Mark Gordon

Omaha — Rodolfo Calderon took full advantage of the last mount he will be able to ride until Friday afternoon.

And he had quite a surprise in store for the 21,151 fans at Ak-Sar-Ben Saturday as he piloted the second longest-priced horse to victory in the Ambassadors' Handicap.

Quiet Story, owned by O. J. Glass of Jefferson, S.D., defeated eight foes and returned $97.60 to win. While that came as a surprise to most of the bettors, Calderon knew he had a bona fide contender.

"I rode him before and he was ready to win then," he said. "I knew we'd have a chance today."

Calderon begins a five-day suspension Sunday for careless riding, but the win undoubtedly erased some of his concerns for the missed riding time.

Terming Quiet Story "a real slow breaker," Calderon said he was more concerned over Quiet Story's lack of concentration in the stretch run than in his poor start.

"He tried to quit at the 1/16th pole," he admitted, "I hustled him real good and had to whip him from then on so he would keep running."

And it was just barely enough. The Van Berg Stables' Dr. Pantano, part of second-favored entry with Hold The Onions, finished a nose behind.

Breaking last in the 10-horse field, Quiet Story only improved to eighth entering the stretch. But when Calderon got on the rail at the 3/16ths pole, Quiet Story roared past the Cherry River and Norman Regret for the win.

Quiet Story earned $11,893.25 of the $21,625 purse for the seventh running of the 6-furlong jaunt for 3-year-olds. Dr. Pantano returned $4,108.25 for the Van Berg Stable while favored Norman Regret, one and one-half lengths behind Dr. Pantano, collected $3,027.50 for Ken Opstein.

In running a 1:11 3/5 clocking (the fastest 6-furlong timing of the young season), Quiet Story paid $97.60, $29.40 and $11.20. Dr. Pantano placed for $4.80 and $3.60 while Norman Regret showed for $4.20.

O. J. Glass Jr., 24, who helps his father train Quiet Story, said he bought the black gelding last season at Oaklawn Park in Hot Springs, Ark.

"I just bought it off the cuff," he said. "I bought it from Joe Mills of Hot Springs. He named a price and I agreed and we settled it right there."

The victory was only Quiet Story's second in 19 lifetime starts. His record this year now reads one win, one place and one show in seven attempts for earnings of $16,043.25.

The win exceeded Glass' previous biggest win at Ak-Sar-Ben. He saddled Color Me New who captured the $10,000 Inaugural Handicap here two years ago.

Larry LeRoy, who won this year's Inaugural Handicap over a sloppy track, failed in his attempt to achieve five consecutive victories. The top-weighted contender (at 120 pounds) was eighth throughout the race and improved to fifth at the wire — beaten almost six lengths.

Opstein's Excello, who won last year's $21,475 His Majesty's Handicap here, finally cracked his drought by winning the eighth race — a claiming test for $12,500. He had run out of the money seven straight times his win on May 27 last year.

Ak-Sar-Ben observed a moment of silence for Tom Brock, Ak-Sar-Ben executive director, who died early Thursday morning after a year-long battle against cancer.

The crowd stood and briefly remained silent after the running of the fourth race, following a request by track announcer Bill Murphy.

'Firey Death'

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UPI) — Veteran Art Pollard, at 46 the oldest driver in the field, crashed to a fiery death in a practice run Saturday as qualifications opened for the Memorial Day "500" auto race.

Pollard, a grandfather from Medford, Ore., died in Methodist Hospital slightly more than an hour after his brand-new machine hurtled into the wall in the short south chute of the track, burst into flames and became airborne.

He was lifted from his demolished car, a new Dan Gurney Eagle, and died of flame inhalation and other injuries.

It was the first death at the famed speedway since last year when Jim Malloy of Denver was injured fatally in a practice accident.

Less than three hours later David "Swede" Savage, a "500" sophomore pilot from Santa Ana, Calif., electrified the huge throng of an estimated 250,000 by hurling his fire engine red Eagle around the 2½ mile oval at an average speed of 197.152 miles per hour on his first lap. He completed his 10-mile run at a speed of 196.582, shattering the 1972 records by Bobby Unser of 196.678 and 195.940, for one and four laps respectively.

Savage, the swiftest chauffeur in two weeks of practice, placed next to last in his "500" debut last year, lasting just five laps to be awarded 32nd place. He was the 10th qualifier on the first of four days of time trials to complete the 33-car lineup for the million-dollar Memorial Day event.

Among the other early qualifiers were former race winners Al Unser and Mario Andretti, and such other veterans as Lloyd Luby, Peter Revson, Garry Bettenhausen, Jerry Grant, Bill Vukovich, Gordon Johncock, Mike Mosley and Mel Kenyon.

Pollard, who became 46 just a week ago and whose best finish at Indianapolis in prior appearances was eighth in 1967, was clocked at a speed of 191.4 just before his fatal crash.

Witnesses said he apparently simply "lost it," the car crashing into the outside retaining wall with the right front side and bursting into flames. It then spun into the grass, became airborne, and flipped several times end over end and sideways, ending right side up in the southeast turn

Three Records Broken

Huskers Bomb Tigers In Dual

By Steve Gillispie

Three Tartan track records were broken and one was tied Saturday afternoon as Nebraska tuned up for the Big Eight meet by beating Missouri, 80-60, in a dual meet.

The Huskers' Ralph Fisher and the Tigers' Ben Plucknett and Larry Gray set meet records, while NU's Karl Webb equalled another.

Fisher, a North Platte Junior College transfer, beat out teammate Gary Gressett to win the 120-yard high hurdles in :13.8.

That effort toppled the old record of :14.5 set last year by Colorado's Wayne Lockwood. Gressett, :14.0, and Mizzou's Fred Kolkhorst, :14.3, were also under the old mark.

Plucknett, a Beatrice freshman, hurled the discus 173-7 to better the old mark of 170-11½ by Oregon's Mac Wilkins last year.

Plucknett's winning toss skidded onto the track and went between the legs of the Huskers' Lynn Hall during the mile run. Hall finished second to the Tigers' Dave Rogles.

Gray won the triple jump with a leap of 49-1½ to break the old mark of 47-9¾ set Friday by Doane's Milt Gross.

Webb eased to victory in the 220 with a :21.4, which tied the old record set by Colorado's Cliff Branch last year.

Webb, who was a teammate with Fisher at North Platte Junior College, also won the 100 in :9.6 which is one-tenth of a second off the track record.

The former Omaha North product was the meet's only double winner and brought NU a win in the 440 relay with his anchor leg by making up about a three-yard deficit from the outside lane.

Roger Chadwick was a mild surprise winner in the 880 for the Huskers as favored teammate Jim Hawkins finished third. Chadwick won in 1:53.0, while Hawkins had a 1:54.1.

In the three-mile Missouri's Charles McMullen exploded on the last lap to beat NU's Bob Unger and teammate Mark Visk. McMullen was timed in 14:11.3 with Unger second in 14:16.5 and Visk third in 14:17.5.

Although he didn't break the meet record, NU's Ron Childs sailed 24-8½ to win the long jump for one of the meet's better marks.

Nebraska's and Missouri's next meet will be the Big Eight Conference, which will be held Friday and Saturday at Manhatten, Kan.

Girls' Attitude Reflects Team's

Grand Island - Peggy Liddick reflected a typical Lincoln Northeast athletic attitude here Saturday at the state high school grils track championships

"I compete with a team attitude. I get more staisfaction winning for the team than I do for myself," related Miss Liddick after accomplishing the rare feat of a state title as a sophomore.

She stretched 17-7 in the long jump for the state Class A title

I knew I could go that far, but I don't think anyone else did said Miss Liddick who was nevertheless surprised that the distance won Class A

"I wasn't counting on getting a state championship this first year," admitted Miss Liddick, a former Jr. Olympics performer who started track at Robin Mickel Jr. High.

"I started thinking about a high state finish after Trans-Nebraska at Hastings," added Miss Liddick, who won the event there

"That gave me a real spirit lift and boost of confidence, which is what it takes to do something like this" she said.

Her coach, Nancy Bishop, asked Miss Liddick where she finished "When I said first," related the Northeast sophomore, "she told me how proud she was"

The same could be said for Northeast Lincoln, which has always emphasized team more than individual

Out of the rough, around the tree and three feet from the pin for a birdie! That's what Bruce Crampton did with this shot as he increased his lead from two strokes to three during the third round of the Colonial National tournament in Fort Worth Saturday.

Bruce Builds Bulge

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — There was a lot of talk about Bruce Crampton's collapse on the last five holes

And the curly-haired Australian veteran did bogey three of them, had to scramble for a par on another and lost half his lead.

But the fact remains that when the third round of the Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournament finished in bright sunshine Saturday, Crampton was one stroke better off than when he started

He began with a two-stroke advantage and finished three in front of the field, taking a third round 69 for a 204 total, a highly respectable six under par on the 7,142 yards of trees, traps, water, woods and woe that make up the rose-bordered Colonial Country Club course

"I really didn't know what to think," Crampton said after he d made his round with a brilliant, record-matching 31 on the front side that put him nine under par and a huge six strokes in front of the pack

That stumbling finish cut half the margin but Crampton—who has collected three tour titles and a tour-leading $153,000 already this season—was far from dismayed

I think I probably got a little more cautious on the last nine. Crampton said "I wanted to make the other fellows gamble a little

State Standards Tremble As Fultz, Prepsters Take Aim

By Randy York
Prep Sports Writer

If it's a clear day this Friday, Lincoln High's Mike Fultz is hoping to see his version of forever.

The 6-5, 250-pound all-state football selection has his sights set on a shot put record in the 71st annual state high school track meet at Omaha Burke.

He and Gering pole vaulter Rick Cotton are the most likely candidates to shatter a state record in the two-day meet ending Saturday.

Fultz, who's only been throwing the shot put for three years, has been a model of late-season consistency.

He doesn't have the benefit of state meet experience, but Lincoln High coach Harold Scott says "there's no real reason why Mike can't go 60 feet."

He's had a season best of 59-4, which is nine inches better than the nine-year-old state record set by Hastings' Henry Dilly.

Cotton, who has rarely been under 14-0 in the vault this season, also has a season-best effort ranking ahead of the existing state record.

He's soared 14-9¾. North Platte's Bill Lauer established the state record at 14-7¾ two years ago.

Although he hasn't been over a state record performance, Lincoln High's Charles Baldwin is another foremost candidate to break one.

His best discus throw of 177-10½ this season is less than two feet behind Ben Plucknett's state record.

The 6-7, 270-pound Link standout has been one of the state's most consistent field event performers this spring and has developed a knack for producing in big meets.

The high jump is a fourth field event record in jeopardy with 6-6 leapers Tom Hood of Bellevue and Kert McKeone of Cozad posing the threat.

Paul Anderson of Burwell has been a tenth of a second under the state 100-yard dash mark this spring, but he lost twice in his own district competition and the mark seems relatively safe.

Three records which might not be so safe are the nine-year-old 2-mile relay mark, the 13-year-old 180 low hurdle record and the three-year-old mile standard.

Omaha Central, Omaha Burke and Lincoln High appear to have the quality to threaten the two-mile relay record of 8:05.1.

Millard's Doug Aken stepped a :19.4 flight of low hurdles in his district competition at Millard. Beatrice's Bob Hohn holds the state record with the same time.

Boys Town's Barney Hill, a triple district champion, may challenge for a record if the conditions are right and his endurance holds up.

His best mile time this season is seven seconds off Lynn Hall's state record, but the Boys Town ace is well known for running best in quality competition.

Huskers Sweep Pair

Nebraska swept a non-conference baseball doubleheader from Friends here Saturday afternoon by scores of 8-5 and 11-2.

The Huskers collected a total of 22 hits in the doubleheader as they upped their record to 14-12-1. Friends closed its season at 13-18.

Friends took an early 1-0 lead in the first inning of the first game, but Nebraska came back with seven runs in the next three innings. The Huskers fought off a four-run Falcon rally in the fourth inning to hang on for the win.

The Huskers used two five-run innings, first inning home runs by Bob Munson and Rich Sanger, and the two-hit pitching of Larry Wetterberg, Ryan Kurosaki and Dave Buehrer to take the second game.

Munson led the Husker attack with a four-for-seven performance for the day at the plate, with a double, the home run, five runs batted in, and five runs scored.

Munson's home run was his second of the year as Sanger collected his fourth round-tripper. Munson's performance raised his batting average to .430 with just next Thursday and Friday's Big Eight series with Missouri in Lincoln remaining.

Wetterberg, a freshman from Omaha, allowed only one hit in five innings in the second game and picked up his second win in as many decisions. Kurosaki and Buehrer pitched the last two innings, Buehrer allowing the other Falcon hit.

Grand Island sophomore Terry Redler picked up the win in the first game to up his record to 2-3.

Omaha Nine Wins, 3-2

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Omaha righthander Mark Littell pitched a seven-hit game with ninth inning relief help here Saturday as the Royals edged Oklahoma City 3-2 in an American Association game.

Omaha took a 2-0 lead as Gearge Brett line a one-hopper to Ossie Blanco after Jim Clark's lead-off single and an intentional walk to Jose Arcia.

After bobbling the ball momentarily, Blanco threw high over third base attempting to trap Clark between third and home. Both Clark and Arcia scored.

The Royals added their third run in the seventh when Frank White led off with a double into the right field corner and moved around on hits by Frank Poquette and Gary Sanserino.

Littell's shutout bid ended in the eighth after an inning-opening walk.

Kings Franchise Up For Sale?

Cincinnati (AP) — Ambrose H. Lindhorst, Cincinnati-based chairman of the board of the Kansas City-Omaha Kings of the National Basketball Association, confirmed here Friday there have been some negotiations for sale of the Kings to Kansas City interests.

"There is no 'for sale' sign out," he said, "but if the dollars are right, an offer probably will be entertained."

The Kings formerly were the Cincinnati Royals before the franchise was moved to Kansas City-Omaha.

Max and Jerry Jacobs, of the sports concession firm, own about two-thirds of the Kings' stock. The remainder is Cincinnati-owned.

The Jacobs brothers sought to sell the franchise before it was moved to Kansas City and Omaha after the 1971-72 season.

Ashe, Smith Prepare For World Tennis Showdown

DALLAS (UPI) — Arthur Ashe has a quick critique for his World Championship Tennis title match Sunday against Stan Smith.

"It's going to be like two double barreled shotguns firing at each other from 78 feet," said Ashe. "And I personally think Stan is the greatest player in the world right now. I don't think anybody will dispute that."

Ashe and Smith will face each other at noon (CST) Sunday before a national television audience with $50,000 going to the winner and $20,000 to the loser.

The winner will succeed Australia's Ken Rosewall, who captured the WCT crown the first two years of the tournament.

The 64 WCT contract players were divided into two groups this year with Smith dominating his group (six victories in 11 tournaments) and Ashe finishing second to Rosewall in his group.

So the two players have not met this year and have met infrequently during their careers even though Smith, 26, attended the University of Southern California and Ashe, 29, studied at UCLA.

"He hasn't beaten me in a couple of years," Ashe said of Smith.

"The last time was in the finals at Stockholm in 1970. But I've only played him two or three times since then."

The perpetually calm Smith, now having reached the finals in what has been up to now the richest tennis tournament in the world, is not yet sure whether he feels a little more pressure this week than he usually does.

"I guess I can answer that question better just before the match he said."

"One marked difference here, though, is that you reach the big match so much more quickly. At Wimbledon or Forest Hills you have a two week buildup and you play a lot of matches.

"But here you play two matches and suddenly you are in the finals. And, of course, that $50,000 makes it a little different, too."

Smith, who has already won more than $100,000 playing tennis this year, reached the finals with a straight-set destruction of John Alexander and a four-set victory over Rod Laver.

Smith was less than satisfied with his win over Laver, and was particularly displeased with his serve.

Ashe first triumphed over Marty Riessen in five sets Thursday night and then needed five sets to dispose of the plucky Rosewall Friday night.

Sprained Wrist Shelves Horton

Detroit (UPI) — Leftfielder Willie Horton was placed on the 15-day disabled list, effective Friday, and the Detroit Tigers recalled outfielder Dick Sharon Saturday from their Toledo farm club to take his place on the roster.

Horton, whose .342 batting average was among the leagues best, sprained his right wrist in Kansas City Thursday making a catch of a line drive of John Mayberry. Horton made the catch and crashed into the wall.

Sharon had just recently recovered from a severely sprained ankle and was only hitting .222 with the International League team.

Prep Parade

By Randy York

Five years ago — in a junior high track meet at Battle Creek — a skinny eighth-grader stood in the starting blocks at the far end of the track. . . alone.

"Hey, there's a kid down here who says he's supposed to run the hurdles" a voice bellowed.

"Who is he?" another asked.

"Some kid named Landerfield. Says he's from Dodge and supposed to run the hundred lows," yelled an answer.

His own coach, Gordon Pilmore, had never heard of Mike Landerfield and was somewhat baffled by the situation.

But, while he was helping compare times to determine places in the junior high meet, he decided to let the skinny kid have his chance

"We'd already run five or six heats of the 100 lows," recalls Pilmore, "so I figured it wouldn't hurt to have one more even if he did have to run a heat by himself "

Why hadn't Pilmore heard of one of his own team members?

Unknown Then, But Not Now

"There's both a parochial and public school up to eighth grade in Dodge and they combine to compete as one school in junior high meets," explains Pilmore

"I thought it was ridiculous to let one kid run the hurdles by himself," recalls Pilmore, "but while we were standing around waiting for the next event, he ran the lows and won it easy, timewise."

If they hadn't let Landerfield run on that sunny April day five years ago, he might not be the state high hurdle leader and foremost gold medal threat for next weekend's state championship at Omaha Burke

"I'd like to say I helped discover some talent," says Pilmore, "but I m afraid it discovered me "

While track and its many standouts demand primary attention, letters continue to reach this desk, supporting Lincoln Journal and Star prep Athlete of the Year candidates.

Judging by three received this week, athletic talent isn't the only thing going for Sidney's Rick Seidel, Lincoln East's Reg Gast and Fremont's Ben Siebler.

Seidel "qualifies morally, scholastically and religiously," according to Sidney basketball coach Jack Stewart, who adds, "He's not only the best athlete in the state, but possibly the state's best all-around high school boy, if you were to include grades, popularity and athletics "

Seidel, offered full scholarships to Nebraska both in football and basketball, has recorded Class B track bests of. 14 9 in the 120 high hurdles and 162-1 in the discus this spring He turned down an offer to compete in the Shrine Bowl to participate in the all-star basketball game

He s Honor Society vice president, homecoming king, active in church and an S-Club officer.

Boys Nation Representative

East's Gast, another football-basketball-track standout, is an honor roll student and as a Boys Stater was one of two selected to represent Nebraska at Boys Nation in Washington, D C

His senior year, he captained both the football and basketball teams and has received an appointment to the Air Force Academy, but will accept a full football scholarship to Nebraska

Fremont's Siebler, an all-state football selection, varsity basketball player and standout discus thrower, is a member of the student council, secretary of the Fremont chapter Fellowship of Christian Athletes, in the top 25 per cent of his class scholastically, president of the F-Club and homecoming honoree.

Nominations for Athlete of the Year should be sent to the Journal and Star, 926 P St . Lincoln 68501

Rosewall Blasts Laver

Dallas, Tex. (AP) — Ken Rosewall, who twice beat Rod Laver for the World Championship Tennis title, whipped his fellow countryman, 6-3, 6-2, Saturday for the $10,000 third place prize.

The 38-year-old Rosewall had only 10 hours rest from a grueling five-set loss to Arthur Ashe Friday night, but quickly took control over Laver, who appeared to be playing only half-heartedly following his defeat in the semifinals at the hands of Stan Smith.

Rosewall predicted that Smith will defeat Ashe in Sunday's nationally televised finals for the WCT $50,000 first prize.

"Arthur has a good record against Stan, but right now Stan is playing better than he's ever played," said Rosewall. "Stan may be at a bit of a psychological disadvantage with Arthur, but I definitely favor Smith."

Laver won $6,000 for fourth place money in the all-Australian consolation match which was shortened to the best-of-three sets at the last minute by WCT officials

"I believe the WCT felt sorry for the junior veterans," quipped Rosewall. The match had been scheduled for best-of-five sets.

Cougars Get Raiders' Olds

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Cougars of the World Hockey Association have acquired defenseman Wally Olds and future considerations from the New York Raiders in exchange for defenseman Butch Barber, it was announced Saturday

Jacques Demers, the Cougar director of player personnel, said Olds, 23, scored 12 points for New York and 10 points for the Eastern Hockey League's Long Island Ducks last season

The 6-foot-2 200-pound Olds is a native of Warroad, Minn., and is a raity in major league hockey, which is composed mostly of Canadian-born talent.

Barber, 29, scored 23 points for the Cougars

Van Berg Horses Remain In Contrast to Secretariat

EDITOR'S NOTE: Well-known Columbus thoroughbred owner and trainer Jack Van Berg has yet to saddle a winner for one of the Triple Crown races, yet continues winning on other tracks with a string of horses that continue to boost Van Berg's standing among his peers. Van Berg currently has a string of horses at the Ak-Sar-Ben track and is well on his way to winning the leading-trainer trophy at the Nebraska track.

Jack Van Berg
Saddles Winners

NEW YORK (UPI) — While Secretariat gets all the attention due a super star thoroughbred on his way to the Triple Crown, more than a hundred horses in the stables of Jack Van Berg remain unspoiled and still have a fondness for the winner's circle.

Van Berg cannot afford the luxury of pampering just one horse like Lucien Laurin, the trainer of Secretariat, the 3-year-old colt who won the Kentucky Derby May 5 in such impressive fashion and is now at Pimlico to try for the Preakness.

No, Van Berg doesn't have any super stars in his stable. Just happy horses who run all out and often bring back a paycheck.

"I treat all my horses the same," said Van Berg, who set a world record last season when he saddled 286 winners to win his fourth training title in the past five years. "My father (the late trainer Marian Van Berg) always told me that it didn't matter if the animal was a $2,500 claimer or a $25,000 claimer. Just care for them all with an equal hand."

Apparently the Van Berg method of training thoroughbreds works. Without any Secretariats or other blue-blood pedigrees in the barn, the Van Berg Stable earned $1,381,067 in purses in 1972.

The bulk of the money was won by claimers—horses that others have given up on. It appears Van Berg has inherited the sensitive touch of his father in working miracles with problem horses

"I've raced a jillion claimers," said the 36-year-old Van Berg, who is here to supervise a string of 30 horses stabled at Belmont Park in New York. "The trick is to keep them running and that's what my father could do best.

"If a horse had trouble, then he would look after it right away. Find the problem and fix it up. He was a master. Everything I know in this business I learned from him That's why I got them all cheated. I had the best teacher."

When Marian Van Berg died two years ago, his son didn't know where to turn. "I had been the leading trainer in the country when my father died in 1971. Then, all of a sudden, I was at a loss. I had all these horses and I was fighting myself to decided where to put them."

Van Berg finished third in races won that year but put everything together in 1972 as his horses started 1,342 times at racetracks from coast to coast. His stable is so widespread that Van Berg depends on as many as seven assistant trainers to help run the operation.

"Right now, besides my stock here, I've got 26 head at Churchill Downs (Louisville, Ky.), 38 at Ak-Sar-Ben (Omaha, Neb), and 14 at Golden Gate Fields (San Francisco)," said Van Berg. "My people call me every day to keep me informed I can't say enough about my staff. From the grooms on up "

Van Berg hasn't had much help breaking into the tough New York cicuit.

"I decided to come here because I've done everything else, everywhere else," he said "But when you are at the top, everybody takes a punch at you. People thought when I came to New York, I'd get lost in a weed patch Well, I'll tell you, I won't quit. I made up my mind I'm gonna stay here. A lotta places I go to it takes time to get adjusted. See where I'm at.

"I've been here since the first week of April and now I'm fixed I'm getting to know where to place my horses, how high or low I mark 'em all on the program. I know the cripples and the runners now."

Some of the runners that Van Berg has seen have been claimed and added to the stable But while Van Berg admits he "likes to claim horses," he isn't opposed to purchasing a classy yearling who some day may grow up and be a Kentucky Derby winner like Secretariat

"You're always looking to get a great racehorse," Van Berg said. "I go to the sales to see what's available Maybe some day I'll find one."

Until then Jack Van Berg will have to be satisfied with his claimers that, seemingly as often as not, run like champions

Buffs End Best Year

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — John Stearns slammed a home run Saturday to pace Colorado to a 4-1 Big Eight baseball victory over Iowa State that closed out the CU season.

It was Sterans' 15th homer of the year and the 28th of his career at Colorado, marking the senior's final college game. Stearns owns every CU season and career record for hits, homers, runs scored, runs batted in and stolen bases.

The victory ended Colorado's best season ever with a 32-11 overall mark and a 13-8 Big Eight record.

Glen Vigil went the route for Colorado, scattering eight Cyclone hits and fanning nine batters.

Iowa State's only tally came in the fifth inning Pinch hitter Dave Wessling doubled and Skip Sullivan hit a single for the score.

Iowa State is 7-17 over-all and 3-10 in the league.

East Defeats Knights

Lincoln East s baseball team came up with four runs in the last inning Saturday, to defeat Lincoln Southeast 7-6, on the Knights field

East shortstop Jim Dennis cracked a single with two outs and the bases loaded to knock in the winning runs off losing pitcher Jim Leslie.

Dennis' winning hit came after Leslie walked in one run and allowed another score by throwing wild to first base when East Dennis Hume hit a pitch back to Leslie.

Southeast left fielder Steve McManaman posted the Knights to an early lead, by driving in five runs with a double and home run

Plainsmen's Nielsen Leaps 7-2¾ For New NIAC High Jump Mark

Nebraska Wesleyan's Kurt Nielsen continued his record-setting high jump performance by leaping 7-2¾ in the Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference track meet to record the third highest jump by a collegian this year in the nation

It was a new Nebraska stadium record and a new NWU record also as Nielsen shattered his previous best of 7-1 set last year while a sophomore.

After winning the meet at the 6-8 level, Nielsen had the bar moved up to 7-0, but missed his first two tries before clearing that height on his last chance

The bar went to 7-2 and Nielsen sailed over with inches to spare and had it moved up another inch Over he went, bumping the bar, but an official measurement placed it at 7-2⅞ Since an eighth is not an official measurement, they had to back it down to the ¾ mark.

In the total team standings, NWU successfully defended it's title while Concordia was a distant runnerup, 16 points behind.

Adjust Seat To Legs

DEAR DR. BICYCLE How high should I put my seat? L. S. Staunton, Va.

A. The seat, or saddle, should be adjusted so you can keep your leg fully extended with the ball of your foot on the pedal. But be certain that at least 2½ inches of the seatpost remain in the frame.

Seatposts come in many different lengths, so unless you and your bike frame are drastically mismatched, you should be able to adjust your seat height properly.

DEAR DR. BICYCLE What brand of speedometer do you recommend? I have a 10-speed with touring handlebars. D. R., Newport News, Va.

A. I don't recommend any brand. Many cyclists use speedometers and enjoy them, but I personally prefer a simple, lightweight cyclometer.

A cyclometer is like a car's odometer; it measures distance traveled. If you want to determine your average speed, merely divide the distance traveled as recorded by your cyclometer, by the elapsed time as recorded by your watch.

But if you want to know your speed at a specific time, rather than your average speed, or if you hate long division, then go out and get yourself a speedometer. Any one will do.

DEAR DR. BICYCLE - Why do some 10-speed bikes have "toe clips" on them? Can't people keep their feet from falling off the pedals without those silly gadgets? – R.V.S., Chicago, Ill.

A. Although clips do keep the rider on his toes, they're designed primarily to increase his riding efficiency. With toe clips, when the cyclist pushes the pedal down with one foot, he is actually pulling the other pedal up with his other foot.

Most people need practice before they feel comfortable using toe clips.

Lincoln Nursing Homes Coordinate Fishin' Day

Veterans, Beginners Find Fun at Oak Lake

By Tom Vint
Outdoor Editor

Somewhere it is surely written: "You can take the man out of the fight, but you can't take the fight out of the man."

It was evident Thursday morning as Lancaster Manor, Americana, Madonna, Eastmont, Tabitha, Homestead and Milder Manor nursing home gentlemen gathered on the shores of Lincoln's Oak Lake "to do a "little fishin'."

The group, coordinated by the home representatives, couldn't have been on the lake 10 minutes when a standing challenge was made—a make-shift fishing contest was born.

It was Eastmont's 91-year-old youngster, Roy Hunt. But no one was sure if Roy's challenge meant biggest fish, most fish, or what.

Let's make it the first," Roy chuckled when quizzed. "'Cause I already caught one. But he was kind of small so I put him back."

Hunt, a former owner of Lincoln's Checkered Cab Company, said he used to do lots of fishing in his younger days. He hadn't been fishing for four and one-half years before his Thursday outing.

When word started filtering around of Hunt's challenge, mumbling cracked the Oak Lake stillness.

W.J. Knaller from Madonna cocked his head.

"You can tell him to come down here and I'll do some fishin' with him," the 90-year-old threatened.

Knaller was among several of the men fishing who hadn't done a great deal of it before. He started just over a year ago.

"Yep, just a kid . . . startin' in and learnin' how to fish," he explained. "My pals are gone so I have to get out here on my own."

It's All Outdoors

Knaller, who used to live in the Fairbury area, said he'd caught a 10-pound catfish once as his top prize. But he was patient Thursday. And he was catching fish.

One of the home supervisors asked Knaller how things were going after he'd caught a small bullhead.

"I'm waitin'—waitin' for that big one," he grinned sheepishly.

Homestead's Ed Henning didn't think he felt up to answering Hunt's challenge. He used to farm around Crete and fish in the Blue River. He'd landed a 12-pound catfish once.

"It's been over a year," Henning said since he'd been fishing. "I've been kind of bummed up. Don't get around much anymore."

Many of the folks at those nursing homes hadn't been able to get around much anymore. But there weren't many complaints about getting out to do some fishing.

OUTDOOR NEWS

This has gone over really well," said Cindy Frieling of Lancaster Manor. "We had more people who wanted to go but had to hold it down because of space."

Our ladies are complaining because we didn't ask them to go along. We just thought in the nursing homes, there are so many things people couldn't do that they used to do before they were there. We try to get them out as much as possible.

Maybe we can give an opportunity to some of those who hadn't had the chance before."

As much fun as the fishermen were having, all was not roses. One 95-year-old youngster, upon arrival, decided the water was "too shallow."

Hunt, after landing his tiny bluegills, which seemed to be among the majority of fish caught, was having some trouble getting his hook rebaited.

"Ol' blasted worm. Think I'll take it in my mouth pretty soon." But he didn't call for help and had it on the hook eventually.

And when told of a challenge to his challenge from Knaller, Hunt didn't seem too worried at all.

"That's just a lot of talk," came the reply. "Then he went back to fishin'. He hadn't caught his limit yet.

Don't let it get around but the guys are shooting for a camping trip next.

State Views White Bass As Wagon Train Answer

Introduction of white bass may be a solution to fish management woes at the Salt Valley's most problem-ridden reservoir, Wagon Train Lake, east of Hickman.

Game and Parks Commission fisheries biologists are planning to bring in adult white bass spawners from Lake McConaughy. The bass will be trapped above Big Mac at the electric fish trap near Lewellen, which was returned to temporary operation recently after being shut down by a fire on Apr. 26.

Except for a good population of catfish, Wagon Train now offers little for anglers. Most of the lake's other fish are either gizzard shad or stunted white perch—neither of much interest to fishermen. Hopefully, the white bass will offer anglers another game species.

Wagon Train has always been a problem for fisheries biologists due to its silty turbid waters. The muddy waters do not allow more than a few inches of light penetration, so little aquatic vegetation grows to provide habitat for bluegill, bass, and minnows.

The lake's problems were then multiplied with the accidental introduction of white perch in 1964. The white perch are extremely prolific. Their hordes of young compete vigorously with the young bluegill and bass for the underwater insects which form their diets for the first months after hatching.

This competition from the perch, plus the poor habitat due to turbidity, have crowded out the bass and bluegill.

White perch and white bass are very similar in appearance. Their habits are almost identical during the first months of life.

However, while the white perch continues to feed on insects at the bottom until 8 or 9 inches in length or 3 years old, the white bass switches to a diet of fish at a few months of age.

Highlights From Home

Lincoln, Nebraska

Scottsbluff — This Hereford calf appears to be sailing away or cruising down the river but in fact he just stepped into his feed bunk to keep his feet dry when the North Platte River spilled into his feedlot on a river island west of here. The same thing happened two years ago to area residents, including this calf's owner, Leonard Knight.

Lowland Areas Await Floods

Gov. J. J. Exon Wednesday declared a state of emergency for areas experiencing flooding along the South Platte River below North Platte.

He urged farmers and ranchers to move their livestock from lowlands in anticipation of floods — waters that have hit Denver and are running toward the Nebraska border.

Assistant State Civil Defense Director Burl Johnson toured the areas near Ogallala and Big Springs to advise the governor and local government officials.

According to Johnson, Lake McConaughy, at midweek, was already 3.8 feet above the level recommended by a consulting firm after Kingsley Dam was damaged by waves last spring.

Johnson said Wyoming officials have agreed to try to keep the flow of water coming into Nebraska at 5,000 cu. ft. per second, but "no one believes they can maintain that."

High water in the South Platte, he said, can cause flooding up to a mile on either side of the river in low areas. Some minor flooding has occurred in lowland pastures near Scottsbluff, in parts of Riverside Park at Scottsbluff and Camp Kiwanis, adjacent to the park.

Still more seriously threatened are ranchers on Platte River islands. The Jerry Berggren family moved 550 head of cattle to higher ground and stockpiled feed on their North Platte River island west of Scottsbluff. But the asphalt road to the island is under 1½ feet of water and eroding, according to Berggren who felt his Wednesday trip out was the last for a while.

The Berggrens lost $96,000 in pasture, roads, fences and out buildings when floodwater lapped within 14 inches of the front door two years ago.

Berggren wonders now why a $450,000 flood control study authorized by the government after that flood has never been seen.

Fuel Shortage Hurting Guard

Among the "vacations" that may be cancelled as a result of the nationwide fuel crisis is the two-week summer encampment at Ft. Carson, Colo., an annual outing of the Nebraska National Guard.

Capt. Leonard Krenk, information director for the Guard, said the operation requires 70,000 gallons of gasoline, 45,000 gallons of diesel fuel and 20,000 gallons of aircraft fuel, so far unsecured.

If it's unavailable, he said, alternative plans for training in local armories will have to be devised.

Nebraska petroleum authorities, say that gas station operators will soon be out of supplies with nowhere to turn for replenishment.

Farmers, still facing much field work and a fuel shortage, also wonder where to go from here.

Today

The Olin Foundation, New York, plans to finance construction of a $2,687,980 classroom-administration building on the Nebraska Wesleyan University campus. Deborah Kennedy and Tom Wekesser were named outstanding in leadership among Lincoln high school students by Elks Lodge No. 80. Norden Laboratories has contracted to ship veterinary pharmaceutical and biological products to Japan for marketing in Southeast Asia.

Tom Brakke, a UNL junior, won the Lincoln City Chess Championship. Roger Larson was elected chairman of the Region II Crime Commission.

The income from the Lancaster County Easter Seal Society's Neighbor to Neighbor drive has reached some $13,337. Recent studies indicate UNL faculty pay is in the bottom fifth of nationwide pay rankings.

Secretariat, Sham Continue Duel

Baltimore (AP) — Secretariat and Sham move their duel to Pimlico next Saturday for the Preakness and their credentials could make the 98th running of the second race of the Triple Crown one of the smallest since 1964.

In 1964 only five 3-year-olds opposed Northern Dancer in the 1 3-16-mile Preakness after he had won the Derby in the record time of 2 minutes flat for the 1¼ miles.

Now no more then four are expected to oppose Secretariat and Sham who broke the Derby 2-minute barrier last Saturday.

Secretariat won the Derby in 1:59 2-5 with a senational final quarter of 23 seconds while Sham was second, 2½ lengths back and a shade under 2:00.

Although a small field is in prospect for the $150,000-added Preakness, Pimlico officials are hopeful that Secretariat's bid for the Triple Crown and Sham's effort to foil it will draw a record crowd. The record is the 47,221 who watched Canonero II win the 1971 Preakness.

Last year, Secretariat's Meadow Stable mate, Riva Ridge, won the Derby but then finished fourth to Bee Bee Bee in the Preakness on a sloppy track He then went on to win the Belmont Stakes, the final race in the Triple Crown.

The attendance record this year is not the only one in jeopardy this year. With a fast track, the Preakness and Pimlico record of 1:54 flat could be smashed.

Secretariat, the 1972 Horse of the Year who has been syndicated for a record $6,080,000, goes into the Preakness with 10 victories in 13 career starts and three wins in four 1973 races. His one loss this year was a prestige-damaging third-place finish behind Angle Light and Sham in the April 21 Wood Memorial at Aqueduct. He more than atoned for that loss in the Derby.

A victory in the Preakness would push Secretariat's earnings past the $800.000 mark. He currently has earnings of $675.-222

Sham, who won the Santa Anita Derby for owner Sigmund Sommer before finishing second in the Wood and the Derby, has four wins in seven starts this year and a career mark of five victories in 11 races

Others who could join Secretariat and Sham at the post include the speedy Mr. Prospector; Cup Bearer, Ecole Etage, Champagne Charlie, Step Nicely and Our Native.

Our Native is the only one of this group who ran in the Derby, finishing third, 10½ lengths back of Secretariat.

The last horse to win the Derby and Preakness was Canonero, but he failed to win the 1½-mile Belmont.

Only eight 3-year-olds have been able to win the Triple Crown, the last being Citation 25 year ago. When Citation won the Preakness, he had only three opponents.

Panatta Upsets Nastase

BOURNEMOUTH, England (AP) — Italian star Adriano Panatta upset Ilie Nastase of Romania 6-8, 7-5, 6-3, 8-6 Saturday to win the men's singles title in the British Hard Court tennis championship

The flamboyant Romanian annoyed the crowd by arguing with officials over line calls several times

Panatta collected first prize money of $7,500 while Nastase got $3,750 It was the fourth meeting between the two during a five-week period. Nastase won the other three.

In the women's singles final Virginia Wade of Britain downed Australia's Evonne Goolagong, 6-4, 6-4, and got the top award of $3,000

The Panatta-Nastase match lasted three hours. During the first set and for most of the second it appeared that the Romanian's experience would prove too much for the 22-year-old Italian However, with Nastase leading 5-3 in the second set, Panatta rallied to take the next four games after Nastase had failed to capitalize on two set points.

Nastase argued with both the umpire and the linesman during the third set when he took a 3-1 lead, then dropped five games in succession to his younger opponent. The Romanian again was at set point at 6-5 in the fourth set, but Panatta rallied and clinched the match with a series of effective forehands

Indy '500' Clockings Lower

Compiled From News Wires

Johnny Rutherford came within a tick of the clock of reaching the coveted 200-mile-per-hour mark and set new Indianapolis Motor Speedway qualification records Saturday for the Indianapolis 500-mile race But the exciting performance was marred by the death of veteran driver Art Pollard.

Rutherford, 35, Fort Worth, Tex., apparently grabbed the pole position on the inside of the front row with a four-lap qualifying average of 198.413 m.p.h. He also set a one-lap record for the 2½-mile paved oval with a clocking of 199.071 m.p.h. on his first lap. He drove an Offenhauser-powered Eagle.

Those speeds broke the old marks of 196.678 and 195.940, respectively, set last May by 1968 Indy winner Bobby Unser, Albuquerque, N.M. Unser, considered one of the favorites for the pole position, backed off on an early attempt Saturday because of problems in his car's turbocharger, but was expected to try again later in the day.

After qualifying trials opened, Gary Bettenhausen, Tinley Park, Ill., qualified at 195.599 m.p.h., the second fastest average ever recorded in time trials here. He was driving a McLaren owned by Roger Penske, Southfield, Mich.

The first qualifier, at 192.606 m.p.h., in the four-lap 10-mile time trial, was Peter Revson, Redondo Beach, Calif., driving a British-made McLaren owned by McLaren cars LTD., of England.

Revson had crashed just two days ago on the same turn where Pollard was fatally injured, but was unhurt

The 24 qualifiers averaged 192.741 m.p.h., or 7.971 m.p.h. faster than the first four qualifiers for the 1972 race.

Rutherford missed the mystic 200 m.p.h. goal by only 21 one-hundreths of a second on his best lap of 5.21 seconds which produced a 199.071 m.p.h. speed around the slightly-banked 2½-mile track.

The yellow Eagle-Offenhauser's performance erased records set earlier in the day by Swede Savage of Santa Ana, Calif.

Bobby Unser of the New Mexico racing family set qualifying records last year of 195 940 for 10 miles and 196.678 for one lap—also in one of the Eagle-Offys created by retired international racer Dan Gurney.

Bobby Unser let Rutherford enjoy his record for about four hours and made his own run with a half-hour left in the qualifying session and missed the Texan's mark by 11 hundreths of a second for 10 miles.

Bobby, the 1968 Indy winner, averaged 198 183, the second best speed of the day. He will sit in the front row between Rutherford and defending champion Mark Donohue of Newtown Square, Pa

Donohue also bettered the 1972 record with a run at 197 412, but did it after Rutherford had established a new one

TREAD WEAR EXPECTANCY

Because of variable driving habits and road conditions under which tires are used it is impractical for Montgomery Ward and conceivably misleading to our customers to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear We can however indicate the wear potential we have built into our tires in terms of service in normal family use If a Riverside tire wears down to the tread wear indicators during the Tread Wear Expectancy Montgomery Ward will upon presentation of the tire and evidence of date of purchase replace the tire for the then current price less the following dollar allowance

Insurance Tax

Revenue Sets Record

A record $4.863 184 from the state's insurance premium tax collection has been distributed by State Treasurer Wayne Swanson to Nebraska political subdivisions

Deputy State Treasurer Ruth Danekas reported the 1973 distribution is $335.899 — or more than 7% higher — than the insurance tax's payout last year

All told, the tax brought in $9.7 million. Half went directly into the state's general fund and the other half went to the political subdivisions.

Allocation to individual counties is made on a population basis

The county grant is then split 60% to school districts, 30% to municipalities and 10% to the county general fund.

Douglas County got $1,275,126 of the total $4 8 million allotment Mrs Danekas said while Lancaster County's share was $549,977

Families Play Big Role in State Mothers' Lives

'A Great Honor — But I Didn't Win It'

By Linda Ulrich

Eleanore Enersen gives her plants milk and her guests homemade bread warmed into cinnamon toast that crunches.

It's hard to say whether the plants or the people benefit more.

Her eyes sparkle when she's excited and she gets excited about a lot of things — including the first lilacs.

She likes to wear yellow on rainy days and she almost always wears a hat and a smile.

Although she is the Nebraska State Mother of 1973, Eleanore would be the first to tell you that Mother's Day means no more — or less — to her than to all of the mothers being honored today.

'I Didn't Win It'

"It's a very great honor (being named Mother of the Year) but I didn't win it," she said. "My family and friends won it for me. That's why I enjoy it so much."

And she thoroughly enjoys her role of mother.

Eleanore and her husband, Lawrence, an architect, have three children: David, 30, a business analyst living in Hawaii, Stephen, 28, a programmer here, and Philip, 26, a student at the Martin Luther Home in Beatrice.

The greatest Christmas present she ever received, she says, was in 1964, when she waited up with hot chocolate for her two older sons to return from their dates. It was then that they told her they felt their family was happier because of Philip, their mentally retarded brother.

Other "children" include Vincent Snyder, 50, who lived at the Beatrice State Home until Eleanore assumed legal guardianship for him 12 years ago, and Tony Hahn, 33, a Korean who lived with the Enersens for three years while working toward his master's degree from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Eleanore remembers dinner as a special family time. "We were always together at dinner and it always took an hour," she said, a practice her sons plan to continue with their own families.

Fun Things

Although the number of plates on the table is fewer now, "some of the most fun things happen after your children leave home and you and your husband are a couple again," Eleanore noted. There was a time, however, when she didn't feel that way, a time when she felt useless because her children didn't need her anymore. She coped with that depression by attending Recovery, Inc. meetings.

Eleanore is a good housekeeper. To her, that means "we live in every room of this house."

Combined with this is her firm conviction that the husband is the head of the household. And she believes that "if his wife is smart enough to see to it that he is, that's not the least bit contrary to women's liberation."

A woman, she says, softens and tempers.

But she "very much regrets" the state legislature's action to rescind ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment because "we (women) need equal rights before the law."

Eleanore thinks that women have to be activists. A profuse letter-writer, she even writes to the President — particularly when she thinks some aspect of administrative action is awry.

"Politics is like marriage," she said. "You have to have the feminine point of view and you have to have the masculine point of view."

She Talks

She jokingly says that she talks to her plants, the birds and herself. But she's good at talking to other people too.

It would be impossible to com-

She Wants To Be At Home

By Bess Jenkins

Sandra Stewart, 29, is where she most wants to be on this Mother's Day.

That's at home in Sidney with her husband, Jack, and their daughters, Stephanie, 4, and Alison, 3.

It will be a long, long time, though, before Sandra and her family, relatives and friends forget the exciting days created by her nomination and competition in the Young American Mother of the Year.

When the finale came Thursday night in Denver, Sandra had successfully won out over most of the 50 states' young mothers to finish as second national runnerup.

Is she disappointed to have traveled that far and missed the thrill of being THE Young mother of 1973 for the U. S.?

Of course. Who wouldn't be?

But one of the reasons she probably rated where she did is her philosophy about those two mothers outranking her. She said:

"After looking over the qualifications and the work which the Young Mother of the Year in 1972 had to her credit, I decided days ago I would not mind being third or even lower in such super company."

Hubbub

Sandra and her husband, Jack, are amazed at the hubbub that her rise up through the ranks has generated throughout their home community. And the state, too. It has even spread up into South Dakota where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Sonnenfeld, live in Aberdeen.

Nebraska's first Young Mother hopes this enthusiasm and new awareness will make it easier to sell communities throughout the state on the importance of Young Mothers' Councils — a rather new American Mothers Committee project.

Mrs. Stewart was in the second 12-lesson course sponsored in Sidney by the council which Mrs. Clinton B. Dorwart, a past Nebraska Mother, organized.

Haymarket Art Festival To Displace Autos

When is a parking lot not a parking lot?

When the space has been turned into an art festival.

And that's exactly what Haymarket Art Gallery is going to have in the parking structure at 9th and O next Sunday, from noon to 7 p.m.

The festival is patterned after those which have had great success in other sections of the country, according to Mrs. Richard Hedges, a chairman.

More than 30 Midwest artists have rented space to display and sell their work. Some will be demonstrating the media in which they work.

The festival promises a stimulating variety of media and style, Mrs. Hedges said. Works in oils, acrylics, watercolors, batik, drawings, pottery, sculpture and graphics will be included.

The education and experience of the artists is diverse: Some have many degrees and awards; some have studied in Europe; some are recent graduates of art schools; some are making their careers in the art world; some are or have been teaching.

Then there is Ralph Hawkins, 67, a retired Hebron hardware operator, turned artist. His work preserves on canvas Nebraska scenes which otherwise would be lost to history, he says.

Those who recognize photography as a fine arts will be pleased to find Lyle Wessale of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, exhibiting. His speciality is Diazo-graph, a new 3-D effect he has created.

In addition to Hawkins and Wessale, artists at the festival will include Gracie Schroeder, Gloria Lutie Smith, Dan T. Lucey, Ruth Lucey, Ruth Panigot, Carol Pettit, Jan McClymond, Betty Grant, Dwayne Ibsen and Chauncey Nelson, all of Omaha; Sue Brockmeier and Larry Genzeinger, Beatrice; Quient Shafer of Richland; Rebecca Moerschel of Homestead, Iowa; William Moderow of Aurora; Devan Adams of Peru; Anne Burkholder, Sally Heald, Claudine Scott, Rose Lee Cohen, Waunita Ray, Jan Faeh, Mary Henderson, Rex Appleby, Judith Kunic Goeke, all of Lincoln.

A panel of judges will select best-of-show, to be given a $50 award by First National Bank, and other certificate awards.

Festival chairmen John Soulliere, Mmes. Hedges, Larry Faeh, Don (Jenee) Ferguson, L. J. Bible, Andy Matisons and Jerry Reed.

World of Women

Life Not That Different For Mrs. Wolff

By Marj Marlette

When Fern Wolff was growing up in Lincoln, the State Penitentiary occupied the same location it does now

"I knew it was there," she says, "but I wasn't aware of it."

Today she is She lives on the grounds

As the wife of Penal Complex Warden Charles Wolff Jr , Fern is accustomed to being closely attuned to what's going on in the Nebraska prison.

When the phone rings, "It could be anything," she said. "An escape, a problem . "

And when they're on vacation, "Chuck has to call in every day "

She explained, that at first when her husband started his correctional career, "I was a little leery of it," now, "it's just a part of our lives. I don't even question it — it's not that much different than living anywhere else."

As part of his job, the warden had his family live "on the campus" at the penitentiary Their home is a gracious, two-story brick, set in rolling green lawns just north of the penitentiary fence

"I love it," exclaimed Mrs Wolff It's huge, and it's an older home I've always liked them There's more of a lived-in feeling in a house like this "

The slim, serene and seemingly unhurried Mrs. Wolff is mother of two. She also is a librarian, wall paperhanger, chauffeur, and rose gardener (by inheritance) as well as the wife of Nebraska's warden. That probably wouldn't be her own description of herself, however.

"I'm the opposite of my husband — he's so busy," she said But, she admitted, "Right now, I have no spare time either

She works in the library at Millard Lefler Junior High from 8 to 12 a m , "the perfect job for a woman with children I'm off in the summer and holidays when they are

"And working in school with students around is stimulating I enjoy it "

Daughter Sandy is an eighth grader at Lefler, so they go to school together Son Charles, almost 21, has just finished a stint at National Guard camp.

The only inconvenience to living at the penitentiary, she noted, is "I am a taxi service for my daughter," none of whose friends and activities are close by.

Mrs Wolff likes to decorate, and one of her first projects when she moved into the "warden's mansion" a year and a half ago was to select and hang wallpaper She loves to do it, and does an elegant job. She also likes colors, arranging furniture, and "would be an interior decorator if I were choosing a career "

Some years ago she and her husband had a mutual hobby refinishing and upholstering furniture Now, they don't have the time, but they do enjoy the antiques they acquired "before the antique craze started "

Mrs Wolff bowls in the Penal Complex league and she laughs about it. "Yes, I bowl I won't tell you what my average is, but a week ago I had a 164 game and I'm very proud of that."

She has also become a "guardian to roses," inheriting 75-80 lovingly tended rosebushes from her predecessor, Frankie Sigler.

"She knew a lot about them. I didn't know anything, but she left me notes . . . and I've worked with them, and the rosebushes have survived so far."

The Wolffs belong to St David's Episcopal Church across town from where they now live

Chuck Wolff, who is from Pennsylvania, and his Nebraska wife met in California He was then in the Air Force

When he received his discharge, they came to Lincoln, and he started work with the old Board of Control in 1956.

A couple of years later he joined the penitentiary staff of Prison Industries (now Correctional Industries), and subsequently had "all the odd jobs there at the penitentiary," getting a thorough grounding in the various phases of prison operation. He was named warden when popular Penal Director Maurice Sigler left for Washington and the U S Board of Paroles

During their 14 plus years of prison association, "we've seen it all change," Mrs Wolff said

And "you have to agree with the changes. People are becoming more aware of corrections now. I think it's good," she declared, recalling her own unaware days.

Along with changes in basic treatment philosophy has come another difference

At one time, the warden's secretary was the only woman at the penitentiary Now women hold many jobs, from clerical to turnkey officer to school principal to psychologist

And the warden's wife thinks it's "great You need a sprinkling of women here and there to make it more normal. You would in any other business, why wouldn't you have them here?"

She wouldn't however, approve of a woman taking a guard's position in the cellblocks or men's living areas, as was done and widely publicized in another state. . . .

It's an interesting life at the Penal Complex these days, but, the warden's wife repeated, "living here is really not much different than living anywhere else."

Japanese Invade Paris Shops

Paris (UPI) — The tourist perfume shops used to have signs in English Now there are so many Japanese tourists in Paris the signs are in Japanese

Japanese are buying French wine, race horses, antiques and art They have moved into Paris fashion to compete with Paris designers and to build up their ready-to-wear industry at home

The Japanese have invaded Paris in a wave that reminds the French of the Americans in Paris decades before. As one French woman says.

Paris fashion has been invaded in the past by Spanish and Italian designers Now French creators have competition from two Japanese Kenzo Takada, 29, opened his "Jap" boutique in Paris three years ago.

Japanese Hironic Suirai opened two boutiques in Paris and invited buyers to see his collection for the first time in April.

Designer Hubert De Givenchy has a contract with five Daimaru stores in Japan for both his couture and ready-to-wear

The French Textile Assn confirms that the Japanese have bought so much silk and wool on the world market that a shortage has resulted This caused the prices of French ready-to-wear to soar from 10 to 40% this season, a spokesman said

Readers Practice Inflation Fighting

Can you beat inflation?

Some readers are trying and offer these tips:

Mrs. Ruth Carlyon begins her hints by pointing out that "when an income needs to be stretched, an 8¢ stamp is one way of saving.

She did, however, use a stamp to offer her own hints which she says were the result of having lived through the depression and raising four children on a Methodist minister's salary.

She's read a variety of articles telling how to save and "can honestly say that ¾ of the recommendations I read I do as a matter of course — use leftovers, watch for bargains, travel by bus."

Mrs. Carlyon said, "we had a marvelous trip by bus in January — traveled 10,000 miles for $149.50."

A habit left over from gas rationing she mentions is driving a small car and "rarely going to a meeting without taking two or three or four ladies with me." She plans her route so she does no backtracking. She also buys day-old bakery goods but "never makes a special trip; I buy it when I'm in the vicinity."

Larry, Merry and Sherry Hart offer these hints

Larry writes that general budget stretchers include inviting friends for dessert and coffee rather than a complete dinner or having friends in for potluck dinners

He also suggests going out for a late Sunday morning breakfast if restaurant meals seem prohibitive because "breakfast menus are more reasonable than dinner menus."

Or "have pie and coffee at a cafe or cafeteria after you have had the main course at home," he added

Another idea is taking out-of-town guests to visit the State Capitol, Morrill Hall, Historical Society, Chet Ager Nature Center, Kennard House, etc., because not only will they enjoy it but "you will always see something new each time too."

Larry also mentions using free entertainment facilities such as tennis courts, softball diamonds etc and using the park facilities and lakes for picnics.

Checking out expensive records, pictures and books at the libraries is another hint.

Merry Hart compiled a list of general household hints:

—Cut down on the use of paper and other disposable products by using washable plastic or terry cloth place mats and no iron napkins.

—A box of cleansing tissues in the kitchen is useful for replacing paper towels for small wipe-ups.

—Use the clothesline for bathtowels, jeans and other heavy items on sunny days.

—Good ironing board covers can be made out of old tablecloths or sheets.

—One-half inch of toothpaste is enough.

—Don't fill the bathtub so full — this saves both the water supply and the cost of heating it

—Cleaning products to which you add water are often more economical than those in liquid form

—Waxing the car preserves the finish and makes the vehicle look newer even when it's getting older

Sherry Hart contributed some of her mother's kitchen money-savers:

—Grocery shop when you aren't hungry and stick to the list

—Plan menus by specials in the grocery ads

—Use day old bread and rolls; freeze, heat as needed

—Powdered milk is fine for cooking and costs half as much as fresh

—Use oatmeal often — it's cheaper than prepared cereals

—Rice cooked in a double boiler is prepared easily and is much less expensive than instant-type rice

—Freeze pieces of green pepper and pimiento and use as needed

—Make a double quantity of casseroles and freeze or refrigerate for later use

—Frozen bread is a good buy and tastes good when freshly baked use this dough for rolls, runsas, etc.

—Make your own bread cubes using day-old bread

—Beans, cheese, eggs, nuts (especially peanuts) supply protein and are less expensive than meat

Diary

by Helen Haggie

The beauty of the Sand Hills country might have been the cause.

Mrs. James Monahan had told me that driving east from Hyannis a person couldn't miss the sign which pointed to the turn-off onto the six-mile driveway of the Monahan ranch homes.

"It's about seven or eight or maybe nine miles," she said.

Randy Hampton, Sunday Journal and Star photographer, was driving. I was serving as navigator. We rode and we rode almost 14 miles before we came to a sign indicating a turn onto the Monahan ranch.

We duly followed the "driveway" and when the odometer registered eight miles from point of turn we did see a white house about three miles off the drive. We turned.

As soon as we neared the place, we knew it wasn't the Monahans' home. And unfortunately, there was no one at the house. So we didn't have anyone to give us directions

Back to the oil driveway and about four miles farther on we met a man driving a tractor.

"Can you tell us where the Monahan Ranch is?" Randy asked.

"You're on it. What part did you want to go to?"

"The Monahan homes," Randy said.

Well, we had come about eight miles too far and so made the return trek — just in time to get into pickup trucks and join the mini-tour which many of the guests from Eastern Nebraska took.

Bob Monahan was driving the truck in which I rode He pointed out a herd of deer not far from one of the watering holes for the cattle.

Also, Bob showed a bit more excitement when he pointed to the bullsnake. "Spring's really here. When the snakes come out it's a sure sign there will be no more snow," he said.

Mary Ross, a New York attorney now but a former Lincolnite, talks with Earl Monahan about ranch life.

Mary Ross, formerly of Lincoln, now of New York City, charmed Earl Monahan with her enthusiasm about the beautiful country

One would think I have a soft spot in my heart about the Sand Hills Right, I do And I think most people who visit it feel the same as I do about that gorgeous part of Nebraska.

Even Mrs. Berger's cash register calls her Mom.

Ashland's 'Mom' Marks Birthday

By Linda Ulrich

Ahsland—She's listed in the telephone directory as Mom Berger

And although she's never had any children of her own, that's to be expected because "that's what everybody calls me." Even her cash register is labeled Mom.

Mrs Dora Berger is 80 today She says she's not sure if she's celebrating the occasion but she's observing it anyway

That means she s doing what she always does

Mom runs a restaurant named—strangely enough—Mom's Place on Hwy. 6. It's also known as The Gateway Inn and Mom's Tavern. She works every day except Thursday, when it's closed.

The exterior of it, she says, "looks like a home—you can't miss it " She's right

Ashland's oldest businesswoman, she began her restaurant career in 1933. Her business was the first to have a beer license here "but now we just serve food and plenty of coffee and iced tea."

Mom's husband died in 1940 but she just carried on

She still helps peel the potatoes, make the salad and batter the chicken but insists "I'm not as lively as I used to be . . . I used to do it all."

She's turned much of the work over to Annie, her manager, who has worked with her for 30 years.

Chicken is her specialty. And unlike some folks, she doesn't keep her recipe a secret.

"If someone asks me how I do it, I tell them because someone's going to have to do it when I'm gone."

When the restaurant first opened . a chicken dinner cost 75¢, she recalled She says she's had just as many customers from Lincoln as from Ashland but "It's getting so more people know me than I know them.

"My eyesight's so bad that when people wave at me, I don't know who I'm waving at any more," she said.

But in the good old days. . .

"Those college guys showed me a great time," she remembers.

"And the service men used to protect me like I was an angel—which I wasn't," she chuckled.

There used to be dancing at Mom's too. "But it got so dancing wasn't so much unless you had an orchestra and that was one thing we said we'd never have because then the kids would have come and they weren't supposed to be in a tavern."

And she can remember when truckers would wake her at two or three in the morning for a meal.

"I couldn't do it now but we had to do something to get started," she said. "We even used to put up cots in the basement so they could have a nap "

Those truckers came back and "some of them are still coming "

Mom has never quit working because "this is just home and I like being around people. Besides I worked all my life."

Retire? "Well I may have to quit working full time but I'll still be here," she said

Mrs. Florence Stahly poses in her ceremonial gown of 60 years ago with Blue Birds Deann Haeffner (foreground) Jean Scott (left rear) and Karen Bennett, members of the Ding-A-Ling Belles.

After 60 Years— Hair Is White

By Betty Stevens

The thing that impresses Mrs. Florence Stahly whenever she meets one of her former Camp Fire Girls is "their hair is so white."

But one can expect that when the Camp Fire Girls in question met with their guardian, Mrs. Stahly 60 years ago.

Mrs. Stahly, then Miss Craig, was a fifth-grade teacher in Havelock school. Camp Fire Girls organization was only three years old nationally when Mrs. Stahly took charge of her first group.

She can't remember how many girls there were, but believes there were eight since on the back of her ceremonial gown has eight silhouettes marching toward a camp fire.

Mrs. Stahly, who will be 80 in June, said the organization "was so new, I followed the rules but otherwise did as I pleased."

What they did mostly was homemaking skills, Mrs. Stahly said. Sewing, cooking, health, outdoors and camping came under the still current Camp Fire Girls umbrella of Wo-He-Lo, and abbreviation of work, health and love, the motto of the movement.

Mrs. Stahly still sees some of her "girls" like Frieda Vermas of Hickman, who thanked Mrs. Stahly recently for "making me learn to use a thimble."

While there are many things that have slipped Mrs. Stahly's mind, she can still sing as she did with her group sixty years ago.

"Burn, fire, burn; burn fire burn
Whose hand above this flame is lifted
Shall be with magic touch engifted
To warm the hearts of lowly mortals
To stand within these sacred portals."

Mrs. Stahly hopes to join the other 2,000 girls in the Lincoln council which includes Seward, Milford and Auburn, at the annual Grand Council Fire to be held at 2 p.m. next Sunday at Pershing Auditorium.

Quotable Quotes

pletely list her civic and philanthropic accomplishments.

"Philip is the key," Eleanore says of the many projects she has undertaken on behalf of physically and mentally handicapped children. She founded LARC School and TRY (Train Retarded Young). Eleanore has served on the Nebraska Committee for Children and Youth, and was one of 25 lay people invited by President Kennedy to the first Federal-State Meeting of the National Association of Retarded Children.

Influential in creating the Nebraska State Association for Retarded Children, she also was a member of the Governor's and Mayor's Committees for Employment of the Handicapped, the Governor's Inter-Agency Committee on Mental Retardation, the Governor's Human Rights Commission and the Nebraska Association for the Gifted.

An incorporating member of the State Association for Mental Health, Eleanore was a board member, membership and publicity chairman and president of the Lancaster County Association for Mental Health.

She also organized the Selfish Club to provide a recreation program for educable retarded teen-agers enrolled in the public schools' special education classes.

Activities

Her other community affiliations have included Community Emergency Shop, the Nebraska Art Assn., Women in Community Service, and Young Women's Christian Assn. Eleanore was one of the incorporators of the Children's Zoo.

Currently she is secretary of the State Crippled Children's Committee, is on the LOMR Advisory Board and is a Citizen Advocate for a 36-year-old retarded woman. She is president of the Lincoln Community Playhouse Guild and a member of Ham Anns and Reading Teams for Schools.

A member of Blessed Sacrament Church, she is chairman of the Senior Citizens Committee, chairman of St. Helena's group of the Altar Society and is immediate past president of the Parish Council.

She describes her faith as a "deep faith but a joyous faith."

Realizing that this is only a partial list of Eleanore's activities helps you appreciate her husband's answer to the question of how it feels to live with a celebrity. "It doesn't make any difference," he replied. "I still never see her."

As near as it can be determined, he was kidding.

And Philip requested that this story include endorsement of the Martin Luther Home and his "wonderful good friend" Bruce Jones.

Cashiers Get Headaches, Too

Dear Ann Landers: Please speak up for the most abused people in the country — cashiers in supermarkets.

Gripe Number One: People who complain about prices or the tax on items. Don't they realize that we are not to blame? If it was up to us the prices would be lower and there would be no taxes.

Second, when we ask to see personal identification before cashing a check, they act like we are accusing them of trying to pass a bummer. They always say, "You know ME. I've been coming in here for years." Of course I know them, but I need proof of identification, either the driver's license number, social security — something.

Most cashiers have bunions, flat feet, fallen arches and nervous headaches. Extra aggravation we don't need. Tell 'em, please.

Tired of Dray-Kupps

Dear Tired: I let YOU tell 'em, and you did it better than I could have — because I don't have flat feet, bunions, fallen arches, etc. Have a good day, Doll.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently my husband and I took our children to see a G-rated movie at the local theater. We enjoyed it thoroughly, and so did the children. But the previews of the coming attraction were so explicitly sexy that my husband and I were embarrassed to death. We saw several parents yanking their kids out of there, but we decided to sit it out.

A few weeks ago we had the same experience, only it wasn't sex stuff, it was bloody violence. I actually became nauseated.

I telephoned the theater manager about the last episode and he said they have no control over the previews, that they get the whole package and there is no way to cut it out of the reel. It seems to me that a theater manager could do something to protect his customers against unexpected embarrassment.

Red-Faced in Durham

Dear Red: According to my Chicago experts, theater managers have a choice between "red-banded" or "green-banded" previews. No manager need show a preview that will embarrass parents. My advice is to inform the manager that you are aware of these facts.

Councils Help Young Mothers

mothers realize the responsibility but it's such a frightening one that we may not always acknowledge how much we do shape the lives of our children," Sandra said.

The goal of Young Mothers Councils is to try to help American women carry out this responsibility by emphasizing the importance of moral and spiritual foundations for the home

No Edge

"No price can be placed on the way we help each other in raising our children merely by being together and discovering that none of us have an edge on problems," continued Sandra.

There might not be such a Jack Stewart Family today if the head of the household hadn't drawn on some of the same assurance with which he turns out top-notch Red Raiders basketball teams at Sidney High. Or if the couple did not share a liking for basketball.

Sandra met Jack at a basketball tournament in Sioux Falls, S.D., where she was working. Jack was coach at Howard, S.D. High School then.

"He told me that he'd see me tomorrow night when we left the game," recalls Sandra.

With nothing more definite than that to go on, Sandra made other plans for that tomorrow night. She wasn't at the apartment when Jack showed up, flowers in hand.

The coach changed tactics real fast, letting Sandra in on more details to win a return date before the tournament ended. They were married Aug. 3, 1968.

The couple lived in Emery, S.D. until Jack obtained a master's degree in 1970. Then they moved to Sidney where he joined the high school faculty and took on the Red Raiders' basketball coaching.

Job, Too

A saying about the busier you are the more you get done must apply to Sandra. Besides being mother, wife and community worker, Nebraska's first Young Mother also has a job. Part-time, to be sure.

Few are the communities where telephone customers can claim that one of their operators is a Young American Mother finalist. Sidney can.

Mrs. Stewart is an efficient operator. She went to work for the communications utility after earning her college degree, holding a position in traffic department management.

"Since then," she explains, "I've worked at everything but being chief operator in a traffic department."

That job, a full-time one, has no lure for her. Home and family have first priority. She seldom works more than 20 hours weekly, usually less.

Everybody in the Jack Stewart family wins on Sandra's short work schedule. Since her duty hours usually are late afternoon or early evening ones, Jack is home to stay with the girls.

Sandra believes this gives Stephanie and Alison as much, if not more, father-daughter togetherness than many families experience.

Nebraska's No. 3 Young American Mother says baby-sitters seldom are needed in the Stewart family. The girls can bank on their father when she's not on the scene.

House of the Week

Spanish Styling, 23' Hacienda Room

By Andy Lang, AP

One look at the latest House of the Week and you may be tempted to let loose with a few bars of "El Rancho Grande."

For it's a Spanish ranch, authentic in styling in nearly all respects. In typical fashion, it gives special importance to indoor-outdoor living, featuring what architect Rudolph A. Matern calls a "hacienda room." Since hacienda means house, it can only be assumed that the architect intended the name to imply that the room is an integral part of the house even though it is located between one end of the basic structure and the garage.

The room is 23 feet long and is a cross between the indoors and the outdoors, protected overhead by a roof and on both sides by walls. It is open only at the ends, with a wrought iron grille semi-enclosing it at the front. At the other end it melds into the rear terrace. Since large sliding glass doors open onto it from the living room and there's a service door from the kitchen, overflow partying can be handled with ease. For the family and guests, the hacienda room is a place for playing or relaxing.

The front porch spans 23 feet in front of the three bedrooms and foyer while three arches support the protective roof. The large stone chimney starting at the porch runs inside, creating the foyer wall and containing the fireplace facing the living room. A guest closet is also located in the foyer.

Facing the front, the living room is large and has an impressive 10-foot bay window for plenty of light. The bay also contains a window seat which doubles as a piece of furniture. The dining room is connected to the living room by a Spanish arch 6 feet wide, one half of which has a decorative turned pole grille built in. The fireplace flagstone hearth extends all the way to the grille, enhancing the apparent size of the foyer. Sliding doors located to the rear open onto the open terrace.

The kitchen contains a breakfast space, modern equipment and a corner sink overlooking two corner windows. Through the service door, outdoor serving is no chore.

Three bedrooms open to a private rear hall in which the well-appointed bath is located. The bath is designed along Hollywood lines with a curved counter top, vanity, double mirrored walls, Spanish grille window, separate water closet compartment and a moulded plastic tub. The bedrooms have more than sufficient closet space, and two of the three rooms have an unusual side-by-side arrangement of window seats contained in a single exterior bay.

Exterior materials of Design R-11 are stucco on wood frame, boulder stone, wrought iron and Spanish tile roofing.

Garden Gossip

For Flowers in Planters

By Emery W. Nelson
County Extension Agent

Flowers used in planters, window boxes and beds that are located in sunny locations need to be tolerant to heat. Often the temperature becomes a considerable problem and in planter boxes the quick drying of the soil may make the growing of flowers difficult.

Soil for planters needs to be prepared carefully. Start with a good black loam soil. Mix two parts of the soil with one part sand and one to two parts peat moss. This high humus soil will hold moisture and nutrients for the flowers.

Select the flowers with just as much care. Often a mixture of two or more kinds will provide more bloom and less chance for failure during the growing season.

Some flowers that do well in sunny, hot locations are portulaca, petunia, marigold and lantana. Others that are satisfactory and add variation to the planter are spikes, alyssum, variegated vinca, aspargus fern and geraniums.

Your Nurseryman Speaks

Ground Cover May Be Lawn Alternative

I simply don't have much time to work outside How can I have a pleasant-appearing yard without a lot of effort?

Of course every one has heard the story of the homeowner who finally gave up poured concrete over his entire yard and painted it green Incidentally, this story is not apocryphal It was tried by a San Francisco homeowner who had a small yard Openings were left around the trees and shrubs so they would have room in which to expand and then the rest of the property was covered with green concrete

This may have produced a good, permanent answer to a perennial problem in the relatively mild climate of San Francisco, but it most certainly would not be satisfactory in Nebraska where a person can fry eggs on hot concrete some summer days. Putting that much concrete around any Nebraska home would be similar to importing a desert.

Nonetheless, that homeowner who thought of green concrete most certainly had pin-pointed the problem Green grass that needs to be constantly mowed, raked weeded, sprayed fertilized etc is the real time stealer

And there are a number of satisfactory substitutes for green grass in Nebraska

First in those areas of the yard where people do not normally walk ground covers of one kind or another can be used These include evergreen ground covers such as bar harbor, wilton and horizontalis, broadleaf evergreen ground covers such as euonymus coloratus and vinca, deciduous ground covers as polygonum renoutria and hall's honeysuckle

These completely cover the ground and eventually shade out nearly all weeds.

In these same low traffic areas flowering shrubs are also a good inexpensive answer By placing larger shrubs to the rear and progressively lower shrubs to the front, gigantic outdoor "bouquets" can be arranged that will bring color at most times during the growing season

Another newer device for removing high-maintenace lawn areas is the use of plastic covered by one of the many chipped rocks now available

To date no one has found anything better than blue grass for front lawns where a slick, manicured appearance is needed. However, in the case of seldom-used side yards and back yards, some of the coarser grasses such as the fescues and bromes may be an answer.

If a homeowner will simply combine these suggestions and relate them to his own property, he may find his pain-in-the-neck yard has actually become a joy

Bulletin Tells Of Cole Crops

Broccoli, brussels sprouts, cabbage, cauliflower and kohlrabi are a group of vegetables called cole crops They belong to a plant family named Cruciferae because its members bear flowers with four petals in the shape of a cross Turnips, horseradish, watercress, kale and radishes are other vegetable members of this family, according to an extension brochure, Growing and Harvesting the Cole Crops.

Authored by R E Neild, University of Nebraska associate professor in horticulture, the bulletin goes into varieties, crop requirements, soil preparation and planting, weed control, irrigation and side-dressing fertilizer, insects, diseases, and harvesting and storage It concludes with a table on characteristics of some strains of cabbage and a second table on the time for transplanting and seeding cole crops

Under crop requirements Neild noted, "Cole crops can be successfully grown on most soils if drainage is good and the crop is supplied with adequate water and nutrients, particularly nitrogen Light-textured soils usually produce earlier crops but heavier soils hold more moisture and produce crops holding quality longer at maturity."

Better Property Tax Shake Asked by Rails

Nebraska's railroads have, for yet another year, asked the State Board of Equalization and Assessment, for a better property tax shake.

Representatives of the state's six carriers last week presented their annual testimony and exhibits to the five-man constitutional board chaired by Gov. J.J. Exon.

Included in the exhibits were showings of what the railroads' tax assessment would be if the lines' property was treated like most real estate in Nebraska — assessed well below the statutory level.

Most exhibits reflected computations of railroad property assessed at 29% of actual value, instead of the required 35%.

Past Three Years

That kind of an assessment pattern would cut millions of dollars off the railroads' valuation.

Attorneys for the railroads read into the board record — for possible court suit purposes — the official statewide aggregate assessment sales ratio for 1972. It turned out to be 27.65%.

For the past three years the state board has simply accepted county-determined property tax valuations — valuations which have not kept pace, with rising market prices for urban and farm property.

Whereas the state's assessment sales ratio was 30.29% in 1970, it slipped to an even 29% in 1971 before dropping to 27.65% in 1972.

The indication is that the state board again this year will make no major effort to either raise values or order equalization adjustments between counties.

Before New Ratio

Wallace Richardson, attorney for the Burlington Northern, said the 29% ratio was employed in the carriers' exhibits because those documents were prepared before the new, and lower, ratio was available.

There is even some belief the 27.65% ratio may be unrealistically high.

As an alternative to equalizing their property at some level less than 35% of actual value, the carriers proposed the board grant the lines an 8% rate of capitalization in computing actualy value.

The "cap rate" utilized for the last several years has been 7½%.

Not Since 1950s

Authorization for a higher capitalization automatically means some reduction in the railroads' assessment, according to the way the three-part formula for computing railroad values functions.

Not since the late 1950s have the railroads gone to court to force a change in the method used by Nebraska to tax them.

But yearly pressure exerted by the railroads, either for a greater depreciation allowance or a higher capitalization rate, has resulted in a steady shrinkage of the carriers' total property tax burden in Nebraska. That has also reflected a declining economic position of the railroads.

Overwhelming Share

Of the six lines, the two giants — Union Pacific and Burlington Northern — have the overwhelming share of the tax assessment.

Following are some comparisons:

Union Pacific

1971 assessment — $50,443,-231. 1972 assessment — $48,831,-123. 1973 assessment using 1972 formula — $51,627,735. 1973 assessment using 8% capitalization rate — $50,168,207. 1973 assessment with property assessed at 29% of actual value — $41,516,590.

Burlington Northern

1971 assessment — $28,223,-978. 1972 assessment — $29,027,-376. 1973 assessment using 1972 formula — $29,261,577. 1973 assessment using 8% capitalization rate — $28,909,670. 1973 assessment with property assessed at 29% of actual value — $24,098,393.

Other railroads in the state are Missouri Pacific, Rock Island, Chicago and North Western and Illinois Central.

Not Confirmed

Patrol Lawyer Named

Randall A. Rinquest, assistant United States attorney in Omaha, has been named the Nebraska State Patrol's first legal counsel, it was learned Saturday.

An attempt to get confirmation of the appointment from Patrol officials Saturday was unsuccessful.

Ringquest was chief of the State Revenue Dept.'s legal division during the Tiemann administration.

The 1972 Legislature authorized the Patrol to have a separate legal counsel. However the post was never filled.

This year, over Gov. J. J. Exon's veto, the Legislature authorized three more attorneys for the Patrol's staff, to accelerate drug-related prosecutions.

The Man Who Sold Newspapers

When Mark Twain was a young man, he was editor and publisher of a growing newspaper in a small Missouri town.

One day he received a letter from one of his subscribers. The subscriber said that he had found a spider in that morning's edition of his paper. He wanted to know if this was an omen of good luck, or of bad luck. Mark Twain, a hustling space salesman as well as an editor, wrote to his customer:

"Dear Sir:
Finding the spider in your newspaper yesterday morning was neither good luck nor bad luck for you. The spider was merely looking over our paper to see which of the town's merchants is not advertising. He will then go to that store, spin his web across the door, and lead a life of undisturbed peace ever afterward."

Plain as the prairie land on which it stands, St. Paul's original church building awaits sprucing up for the church's 100th anniversary celebration.

Plays Key Role in Centennial

St. Paul's U.C.C. Renovates Century-Old Church Building

By Anita Fussell

Travel slowly down the 800 block of South 13th Street and you will be rewarded by seeing Lincoln's newest historical landmark—the city's only surviving original church building

Tucked behind its imposing red brick successor at 13th and F, the small frame structure has survived 100 years of change and chance to play a key role next Sunday in the centennial celebration of St. Paul's United Church of Christ.

Four years ago the congregation, in response to a plea by the State Historical Society, started discussing restoration of the 36 by 20 foot building, which has served as a church, school, confirmation classroom, and custodian's home

"It was the younger members of the congregation who wanted it restored," said the Rev Arthur Crisp, for over 25 years pastor of St Paul's He added that some members still question the sanity of spending $2,000 and countless man-hours on a building that cost $600 and took only a few months to build

But in an America impatient to tear down the old to make room for the new, the renovation will make possible a rare opportunity to show "exactly what most (local) churches looked like in the 1860's and the 1870's," said Crisp.

It was February 3, 1873, that the Rev C W Regier organized 15 families of German settlers into a congregation On March 17 the church received word that the state legislature had presented it with three lots on F Street between 13th and 14th Streets, for a building site Six months later on September 7, 1893, the completed church was dedicated

Sunday the recreated pioneer church will be used for a traveling communion service during the 11 a.m. centennial observance. Processing out of the present sanctuary into the mother church, the congregation will receive the communion elements in the newly designated historical landmark and pass out its other door, back into the sanctuary.

While eating and drinking at the Lord's table, communicants will have a chance to note the made-to-order wallpaper, its gold and black medallions on a beige background typical of church decor a hundred years ago

Pastor Arthur Crisp and organist, Mrs. Harold Raymer.

Six of the original wooden pews for years hiding in the balcony of the big church will once again fill the small room in straight brown rows A baptismal font will stand in its former place But the altar-communion table will be a replica, the original having been lost

Lost, too, by the congregation is most of its German background identity.

The farmer-settlers who belonged to St Paul's United Evangelical Lutheran and Reformed Church (its first name) came to America for the most part out of a desire to escape Germany's military draft system said Crisp

People with many different national backgrounds belong to St Paul's today although most of the German-background families have been members for many generations said Crisp himself of English ancestry and the son of a Methodist preacher

One of four land-grant churches in Lincoln (the others are First Presbyterian, First Baptist and St. Paul's Methodist), St. Paul's United Church of Christ has reflected in its long history the fortunes and changes of Lincoln.

Its second pastor, the Rev H H Heiner, established Tabitha Home, ultimately resigning to become director of that institution Later the congregation realized it could not support the fast-growing home and petitioned the United Lutherans to take over ownership

Crisp said that today most of St Paul's members live elsewhere in the city although their parents and grandparents lived within walking distance to the church

As its migrating families gradually join other, closer churches, he said, St. Paul's congregational profile has slowly been changing. "There was a time when there was just vacant house after vacant house in this area. Now they (the houses) are filling up and we're having considerable success in becoming a community church again."

But the old-time members have a tremendous loyalty to the church added Crisp, and they feel a sense of mission to the neighborhood

St Paul's church members will be out in great numbers next Sunday to hear U C C Conference Minister David J Jamieson preach at its anniversary service

ABC Convention Plans Rolling Along

It takes an incredible amount of paperwork, telephone calls, meetings and legwork to prepare for a national convention involving more than 5,000 people.

Ask the 30-plus men and women of Nebraska comprising the local Arrangements Committee for the American Baptist Churches in the U.S A. national convention. Although this is the first time any of them have made on-the-spot arrangements for a national convention, their plans seem to be rolling along as smoothly as a well-thrown bowling ball headed straight for a strike.

Sitting in front of a two-foot-high stack of letters from Valley Forge, Pa, (headquarters for the million-and-a-half member denomination) chairman Jim Ekstrand of Columbus checks progress reports from subcommittee chairmen ringing a table at Lincoln's Second Baptist Church

The details that need to be checked seem endless

Is the committee caught up on registrations? Are hotel and motel rooms still available? How will the thousands of people leaving Lincoln at the same time get to the airport?

Will the bulky TV equipment allow room for decorative plants? What hours should the snack bar run?

Operations chairman Myron L Pudwell produces a list of volunteer workers ready to take over office work, registration, first aid, the children's center, hospitality and transportation during the convention But when, he asks, will the 1,250 workbook packets that need assembling, arrive?

"We are in euphoria at this point," cracks the Rev Willet Jones, in charge of convention facilities "We know exactly what's going on"

What is a good home? Someone has said that a good home is one in which there is a genuine affection for each member. This, of course, suggests that between the parents in the home there must be a harmonious relationship. Lieutenants of Glen Turner Build New Pyramid Network

By Miriam Ottenberg
(C) 1973, Washington Star-News

Washington — "How would you like to shake hands with a multi-millionaire?"

That's what the supersalesmen are asking in the 1973 version of get-rich-quick "opportunity" meetings.

The "multi-millionaire" is Glen W. Turner, the pyramid promoter. He's at it again.

While some 75,000 unhappy investors are currently trying to get their money back from his Koscot (cosmetics) and Dare To Be Great (self-improvement) ventures, his organization is building a new national network to woo more prospects.

Turner's minions insist he's out of it completely, that his only role is as a well-paid consultant to various independent companies.

The Star-News, however, has turned up documents and other evidence from within the Turner organization indicating that what appear to be independent companies are all part of the Turner family of companies. Turner's lieutenants, it now appears, never left the fold.

Some of these companies have recently recruited hundreds of people in the Washington area and consumer protection officials of both Maryland and Virginia are keeping close watch on their activities.

In some other jurisdictions, state attorneys general have already moved in to halt the new ventures.

Products Different

The products these companies are supposed to be selling are different, but the game's very nearly the same as the Koscot and Dare To Be Great promotions. People are mesmerized into quitting their jobs, borrowing money or stripping their savings accounts in the belief they can make a fast fortune selling fire alarms or vacuum cleaners or pots and pans — or recruiting others to sell the products for them.

Some complainants against the companies say they've lost friends, nearly wrecked their marriages and parted with money they could ill afford to lose.

These are the same complaints that followed Turner's cross-country sweep with Koscot and Dare To Be Great.

That's not too surprising, either, since many of the operators the Star-News has identified with the new companies are alumni of Dare To Be Great.

The party line, as developed in a dozen interviews, is to say that Turner has nothing to do with these companies but to praise him as a great man. The Star-News, however, has found a number of indications that many of the get-rich-quick schemes now cropping up across the country are closely tied to Turner and his enterprise.

Here are the indications:

- From inside the Turner organization itself, the Star-News acquired a list of over 100 "company presidents" and "divisional consultants." Their 30 "regions" cover the country as far west as Oklahoma. The names of many of these men were known to state law enforcement and consumer groups as Turner minions.
- Kent Oakes, a Turner official who has been variously director of legal services, consumer affairs officer and head of the training school for Turner Enterprises, currently is president of the latest and most important promotion scheme.
- All the fire alarms, vacuum cleaners, cookware and other products used in the various schemes have been sent out from Comprehensive Corporation Services, now known as CCS. The company at Sanford, Fla., close by Turner's Orlando, Fla., headquarters, is headed by Turner's brother, John.
- Tapes on Salesman Ship, which recruits buy along with a product for their $600 entrance fee, bear the copyright of CCS.
- A training school known as the Research and Development Center, which recruits attend (at the cost of another $600 plus travel and expenses) is next door to CCS. A school spokesman admitted it trains for Turner Enterprises.
- Illustrating the tight control of the Turner organization over the allegedly local companies, the printed spiel to be used for recruiting "sales representatives" at $600 or "senior sales representatives" at $1,200 winds up with this "important note": "Every meeting must be taped and sent immediately to Mr. Ron Black, C.O.R.D.C. (Research and Development Company)." Star-News calls to Turner Enterprises about the companies and their products were referred to Black.
- Payments made by recruits here swiftly wind up in Sanford Bank accounts.
- Grace Perry, who says she just provides secretarial service, is listed as incorporator of a number of the little companies that have cropped up since last fall. She was reached by the Star-News at the Turner Enterprises telephone number.

Manufacturers of some products these companies are supposed to sell told the Star-News they learned only belatedly that the buyer for these companies was a Turner organization. One fire alarm campany said it stopped doing business with the organization and another is talking about getting out.

The potential salesmen of these products—people who have never sold anything before—are approached in shopping centers and lunchrooms. Always the lure is the same—how much money they can make simply working part-time and recruiting others to do their selling.

The Name That Week

They are softened up at "qualifying" sessions where they're told a little more. At least by that time they know the name of the company—that is, the name that week. Then they are invited to an all-day or weekend meeting to find out just how they can make $50,000 to $100,000 a year.

The new recruiting is aimed at young black couples of limited income, and the cost of the new opportunities has dropped from a recent high of $5,700 to $600 to become sales representative or $1,200 to become a senior sales representative.

The spiel at the "opportunity" meetings has changed somewhat, too. Although "green" as in money is underlined in every sentence, the formal sales pitch no longer promises a bundle of money to anyone recruiting new people. "Head-hunting" now is more subtle.

Prospects are urged to bring in friends and relatives so they can get commissions on all the business done by those they recruit. The size of the commission varies from pitch to pitch.

Prime Rate Up, But Consumer Rates Down

The prime rate may have gone up but the price of money for consumers has been going down slightly for more than a year, according to Eugene H. Adams, president of the American Bankers Association.

Enter the Myth of the Prime Rate.

"The American housewife is being brought around to the view that an increase in the prime rate is followed almost at once by a boost in the price of a pound of pork chops," he says.

"The genesis of this misinterpretation is plain to see. Even those who never go near a bank except to cash a check are being treated almost daily to dissertations on where the prime is headed, whether the government will let it get there, or to the concept of yesterday's established guidelines for a dual prime rate for business loans."

Adams, also president of The First National Bank of Denver, said the prime rate applies to "an extremely select group of major commercial, financial and industrial corporations.

"And, while it is one element in the cost of furnishing products and services to the consumer, the prime rate is a very small part of that cost. The problem is that the prime rate is only an indicator which points unerringly to economic reality.

Adams said much of the prime rate myth stems from efforts to personalize the prime rate with an oversimplified definition which states: 'The prime rate is the rate charged to a bank's most credit-worthy borrowers. It is also the rate on which all other interest rates are based.'

"This erroneously forces the reader, or listener, to conclude that if the prime rate has gone up, so will the rates he will have to pay on any auto loan, home mortgage, or the money he hopes to borrow to pay for that new air conditioner.

"But the facts are," Adams said, "that consumer loan rates are holding fast and even declining."

National Life Of Vermont Lists Benefits

Omaha — Nebraska policyowners of National Life Insurance Co. of Vermont will receive $288,000 in dividends during 1973, says Joseph R. Blum, general agent.

During 1972, Nebraska policyowners of the firm received $280,000 in dividends. The company also paid $459,000 in other benefits, as annuity payments, matured endowments, death claims and disability and policy-surrender payments, in the state last year.

Blum noted that the company has $66.7 million of insurance-in-force in Nebraska and $19.4 million of investments in bonds and stocks, mortgage and policy loans and real estate.

Family Security Through Career Courses for Wife?

By Elizabeth M. Fowler
(c) 1973 New York Times

New York — With the cost of living on the rise, many men are worried about their financial security. Do they have enough to leave their families?

The average man earning $12,000 a year possibly carries about $22,000 in life insurance coverage. Even with the recently liberalized Social Security benefits now available to a family when children are young, this would hardly be enough to provide a good living. The wife probably would have to go to work.

Obviously, more insurance coverage is needed, possibly raising the total to four or five times his annual earnings. Some young men, however, are taking a different viewpoint. They are using the money they might spend on premiums for additional life insurance on a different type of family security. They are paying for courses for their wives to train them for a career.

For example, a few years ago a young woman completed her training to become a registered nurse, promptly got married and planned to have children.

Her young husband, an assistant professor, urged her to go back to school and obtain a bachelor of science degree in nursing. He argued that a professor's wife should have a degree. Once she completed that, he urged her to get a master's degree so that she could aim for a head nurse's job.

By the time she had completed this training, the couple had two children. While she was working or studying, he took care of the babies. It took some careful scheduling of his teaching program and her courses.

His aim was not only that his wife be well educated, but also as security that her job could give the children in case anything happened to him. Furthermore, whenever he was transferred, she probably could find nursing assignments if needed.

Perhaps one approach for the young husband who needs additional insurance coverage now might be to buy a five-year convertible term policy to supplement his present life insurance coverage and at the same time begin to finance courses for his wife. Term life is cheaper than straight life coverage because a term life policy does not build up cash values. At the end of the term period the renewed premium will be higher based on the insured's increased age.

By buying the cheaper term coverage, which could be converted to straight life later, the young husband might be able to afford the courses. The possibilities for his wife include any of a number of careers, such as nursing, the real estate brokerage business, accounting, computer programing. Perhaps if she has a college degree, she needs only additional training or a master's degree in her specialty such as teaching school, being a librarian, medical technician, biologist, social worker or assistant museum curator, to mention a few fields.

Oil Co-Operation

Brussels (AP) — Major petroleum importing countries, like the Common Market members, the United States and Japan, should agree on measures for facing the coming energy crisis and possible oil shortage, the Common Market Commission says.

The large importing countries should agree on the compulsory harmonized of stock piling, rationing procedures and solidarity whether all or only one of them faces a crisis, the commission said.

You Can Speed Anti-hijack Inspections

Patience and common sense may be major factors in making the new federal anti-hijacking regulations an effective deterrent to potential hijackers. Some hints:

- Many airports no longer are letting anyone but ticketed passengers go to the boarding gates. So, the fewer guests you invite to the airport gate, the less the confusion and delay for you and other passengers.
- Take onto the aircraft only what you really need in-flight and check everything else. As all carry-on items will be searched, the less you take aboard, the speedier the boarding process.
- If you must carry something on, be sure it is unlocked before you arrive at the inspection station.
- Don't carry any gift-wrapped packages on board. The inspectors will have to unwrap them and will not have time to rewrap them.
- Have identification within easy reach — you may be asked for it by an inspector.

How to Read Annual Report

By The Associated Press

Now that it's spring, it's annual report time, and if you are a stockholder, one of these reports, often monuments to modern graphic design, will be coming into your home.

Business Conditions Weekly suggests that the stockholder look closely at the report. The first point of inquiry should be the earnings per share before expenses and taxes to see if they went up or down in the last year.

Secondly, the newsletter says, he should check the daily newspaper and get the company's current price-earnings ratio generally listed right along with the highs and lows of the day.

Price-earning ratios can be tricky to read, the newletter notes. It lists three of the most common pitfalls.

- "Since the price-earnings ratio is the relationship between earnings during an entire year and the market price of the stock on a given day, it can be completely unrealistic on a given day when the market is out of whack."
- In using any price-earnings ratio, the investor should note whether it is based on projected 1972 earnings, actual 1972 earnings or projected 1973 earnings. The difference can be enormous, the newsletter warns.
- "Stock selling at price-earning ratios below the average price-earning of the Dow Jones industrials are generally thought to be at a modest markup," Business Conditions Weekly says.

Pursuit of O.B. Mod.

UN-L Researchers Focus on Productivity

Researchers at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln are developing techniques that show promise for applying behavior modification principles from measurable psychology to the complex field of business management.

Dr. Fred Luthans, professor in the Department of Management, College of Business Administration, and associates Robert Ottemann and David Lyman, are developing a program they call Organizational Behavior Modification or O. B. Mod. They've been testing the program with the cooperation of an Omaha store fixture manufacturer, the Lozier Corporation.

"The results of a test program with eight foremen in our plant were very positive," says Sam McPherson, Lozier personnel manager. "We found marked improvement in their performance after they had completed the O. B. Mod. training program".

The researchers are applying the behavior modification principles of B. F. Skinner, noted Harvard psychologist, to an actual industrial situation in which video tape is being used to record the research process.

Dr. Henry Albers, chairman of the Management Dept., says that the results far exceed the expectations of researchers and provide a basis for significant increases in industrial productivity.

Luthans explains that Skinner's behavior modification process calls for encouraging desirable behavior through the use of rewards. These rewards are withheld for undesireable behavior.

The Lozier foremen were asked to bring their problems to the class to be analyzed.

Lozier's McPherson said that in many instances the foremen discovered during their problem analysis that problems could be solved through better planning on their part, and improved planning at this level has led to improved performance.

"We at Lozier felt that the test program was so successful that we extended this training to the remainder of our 23 foremen and are now in the process of training the supervisors of these foremen," McPherson said.

Dr. Luthans summed up the spirit of the research. "We feel that this is very important basic research which can have an impact on all our lives. Development of a technique to increase worker productivity and solve many other human behavior problems in organizations can be as important to us ... as have been many of the great scientific and technological discoveries of recent times."

18,000 Buyers Divide Stock of Rolls Royce

London (AP) — The Rolls-Royce Car Co. has been purchased in a stock auction which divided the stakes between small investors who could never afford to buy one of Britain's prestige autos and big institutional investors who wouldn't be without one for the boss.

Rothschilds Merchant Bank in London said it received more than 18,000 applications for shares in the car company, some of which will have to be turned down. (36 million shares were priced at $2.25 each.)

The going price for Rolls — which the company claims makes "The greatest car in the world" — was $95 million.

Arab Nations Might Cut Production of Crude Oil

Tokyo (AP) — Arab nations plan to cut their petroleum production if major nations constitute themselves into a bloc of consumers, Yasuhiro Nakasone, Japan's minister of international trade and industry, says.

Nakasone, returned from a tour of Iran, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia and Abu Dhabi, said that Japan won't be a participant in any such consumers union.

Congressman Asks Taxation of Big Gas-hogging Cars

Legislation introduced by Rep. Charles A. Vanik (D-Ohio), a member of the House Ways and Means Committee, would impose a graduated excise tax on new car sales.

Cars which get more than 20 miles per gallon would not be taxed, but the tax would climb from $1 on new car sales to as much as $256 between 1976 and 1981. The $256 tax would apply to cars which get less than seven miles per gallon. After 1981, the tax would be as much as $768 on high gas-consumption cars.

The bill is needed to meet the nation's growing gasoline shortage, which by 1980 will require $10 billion for imported fuel alone, Vanik said.

Consumer Confidence Dips Due To Inflation Pace

Although American households stepped up their spending by a record amount in the first quarter and incurred installment debt at an unprecedented $23.5 billion annual rate, consumer optimism has apparently dropped.

An index published by the University of Michigan Survey Research Center registered a large decline in the first quarter of this year after showing a moderate drop in late 1972. The rapid advance in food prices generated considerable pessimism among respondents in regard to their personal finances and the implications of inflation for future business conditions and unemployment.

Historically, the sentiment index has accurately forecast changes in spending on big ticket items, especially automobiles. Businessmen also registered some lack of confidence, as indicated by the modest rise in inventories in the face of booming sales.

Securities Dip, Bob

New York — The stock market can't seem to decide which way to move.

Over the past week, stock prices dipped and bobbed and then slid off quite sharply on Thursday and Friday as investors continued to be depressed by inflation, the energy crisis and Watergate.

For the week, the Dow-Jones industrial average dropped 25.89 points to close Friday at 927.98. The downward move erased most of the preceding week's advance. After all these modest swings, the Dow-Jones industrial average is just about where it was two months ago.

The international economic status of the United States, which has been so precarious and unsettling in recent years, seems to have acquired new strength — quite suddenly and unexpectedly — since the dark days of last winter.

The lingering, difficult and debilitating problems in the nation's foreign trade and balance of payments have not been fully cured, to be sure, but real progress in solving them has certainly been achieved and the crisis stage may have passed.

While the two historic devaluations of the dollar in a short period — the 8% adjustment in December, 1971, and the 10% change in February, 1973 — should not be considered a triumph of economic policy, it is clear that they are beginning to work.

The recent adverse trade and payments pattern of the United States is at an ebb-tide stage and there is reason to feel that it will now begin to show further improvement.

Steer Prices Rise

Omaha (UPI) — The weekly summary prepared by the Omaha Livestock Foundation said the Omaha cattle market last week was pretty much of a replay of the previous week.

A rainy weekend curtailed early week receipts. At the same time, the dressed beef trade strengthened over the weekend.

Fed steers finished 25-50 higher while fat heifers came under somewhat more pressure and closed mostly steady with spots 25 higher. Steer top 46.75.

Heifer top 45.75 with a number of close up sales at 45.50; choice heifers 43.75-45.25; mixed good and choice 43.00-43.75.

Average price of slaughter steers in Omaha last week 45.36.

Butchers and sows both finished 50 higher for the week.

Butcher top was 36.50 with the bulk of the 195-350 lb. weights selling at 31.50 to 36.00.

Best paid for sows 32.25 with bulk bringing 31.00-32.

Slaughter lamb supply remained slim.

Feeder cattle market reports covered about 161,000 head, compared with 142,000 the previous week and 142,000 a year ago. Oklahoma City had 18,500, Kansas City 8,600, other river markets 26,500, Wyoming-western Nebraska range 5,700 and 66 southeast markets 39,000.

Kansas City — Choice 325-435 lb. steer calves 64.00-71.25; 400-500 57.00-69.75; choice 500-700 lb. steers 51.00-58.00.

Other river markets — Choice 400-500 lb. steer calves 58.50-68.50; 500-600 lb. steers 53.00-59.00 at Sioux Falls to 60.75 on choice and prime; at Sioux City choice and prime 600-718 lb. steers 53.95-57.35; choice 600-700 lb. steers at the river markets 51.00-55.40; 700-800, moderately fleshed to fleshy, 46.50-52.60; some to 54.20 at Sioux City, choice some prime fleshy 800-900 lb. steers 45.00-48.90; choice 500-700 lb. heifers 45.00-55.00; fleshy and partly fattened 700-910 43.00-46.00.

Realty Group Hears Request for Relicensing

By Associated Press

The Nebraska Real Estate Commission has taken under advisement the request of Louis Weiner for reinstatement of his broker's license, revoked five years ago.

Weiner, of Omaha, made the request after the Nebraska Supreme Court overturned a Douglas County District Court decision and ruled the comission has injunctive power to halt any real estate sales by Weiner.

Commission Director Paul Quinlan said the commission sought the injunction to halt further sales by Weiner because criminal remedies for the violation were "minimal" and "difficult to use"

Cattle behind this windbreak at the USDA Meat Animal Research Center at Clay Center gained less weight than cattle which had no shelter at all.

USDA Meat Animal Research Center

Few Farmers, Ranchers at Field Day

By Dominick Costello

Clay Center — The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Meat Animal Research Center (MARC) held a field day Saturday, but almost nobody came.

Farmers used the good weather to put in crops and spent the day driving tractors instead of listening to lectures on new techniques for raising livestock.

Mrs. Frank Haumont of Weissert brightened the proceedings somewhat by debating the merits of a calf-weaning research program with MARC Director Dr. Keith Gregory.

The research involved weaning calves at an early age so that cows could be carried on low-quality roughage, such as cornstalks and other crop residues from feed grain-producing farms.

Mrs. Haumont told Dr. Gregory: "Ranchers don't raise corn. I want to hear something that will help those of us who are in the ranching business."

Several other ranchers said they were thinking pretty much the same thing about the program, which they feel should have been aimed at them.

Stacks of data and research progress reports were evidence of the vast amount of work spent on a wide variety of projects involving large numbers of cattle.

Goal: More Calves

Data presented by scientists included a report on efforts to increase the number of calves a cow can have in one year.

The report, submitted by Danny Laster, indicated that twin calves every year is still a rancher's dream. "We had one researcher who managed to come up with 28 sets of twins, but he got none at all the next year," Laster said. "The cows apparently lost the extra calves, but we don't know why."

The experiments involved using a variety of hormones designed to increase the number of offspring from beef cows.

The one to which Mrs. Haumont objected involved weaning beef calves at various ages to see whether their mothers would benefit from the practice and to determine whether calves could be maintained economically away from their moithers.

Results indicate the calves that were weaned performed as well as those that remained with their mothers, and the cows were more likely to have a calf the following year if the calf was taken away than if it remained with its mother.

"So far as we are concerned, we think the technique is useful in a year when you find yourself feeding the oow in order to feed the calf," commented Dr. Gregory. "We think that it is more economical to feed the calf separately and cut the cost of maintaining the cow.

"It might also work well in a fall calving situation where a feed-grain farmer has cornstalks or other crop residue the cows could live on if they didn't have a calf to produce milk for."

Calving Problems

Laster also described a study of cows with a history of calving problems.

The study showed that cows with a problem t calving time tended to have other reproductive problems. They were less likely to have a calf the following year and were more likely to lose the calf they did have.

Calves born to English breeds of cattle from sires of the so-called exotic breeds tended to have more birthing difficulties than calves sired by English bulls, mainly because of the larger size of calves sired by exotic bulls.

One of the more surprising results came from a study by Dr. T. E. Bond involving the value of shelter for cattle in the feedlot.

Dr. Bond said his study did not show any advantage for cattle sheltered by windbreaks and various types of shades.

One lot actually gained less weight in a sheltered area than a similar group in an open area. Apparently, the sheltered cattle spent too much time in the shelter and not enough time eating feed to put on weight.

"We surely are not in a position to recommend shelters and windbreaks at the present time," Dr. Bond said.

Farmers and ranchers who want a copy of the 1973 beef cattle research report and the germ plasm evaluation program report can obtain them free of charge by writing to Dr. Kertn Gregory, U S. Meat Animal Research Center, Clay Center, Neb.

HOW SWEET IT IS . . .

Datsun Tops Agency Test For Mileage Washington (UPI)

Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) tests conducted on cars designed to meet the 1973 air pollution standards showed Tuesday that the Japanese-build Datsun gave the best mileage – nearly 29 miles to a gallon.

The Datsun 1200 used a 71-cubic-inch engine, weighed 2,000 pounds, and was equipped with a manual four-speed transmission. Its mileage total per gallon was 28.7, EPA said.

The highest fuel consumption was turned in by the 4,000 pound Italian-built Ferrari Daytona. Its 268 cubic inch engine produced 6.3 miles to the gallon, EPA said.

Pollution Tests

Among other low fuel consumers, General Motors' Chevrolet Vega got 21.5 miles to a gallon using a 140 cubic inch engine in a 2,750 pound car and a manual four speed transmission. Ford's Pinto got a 21.4 miles to the gallon using a 98 cubic inch engine and a manual four speed transmission in a car wighing 2,500 pounds.

The gas mileage tests were part of the 1973 auto polution tests conducted on all cars sold in the United States.

"The publishing of this fuel economy data is a first step toward establishing a voluntary energy labeling program for the automobile. This program will be aimed at providing the consumer with information on the fuel consumption characteristics of different models of automobiles," EPA said.

Urban Driving

According to EPA, the cars were operated on a device which simulated urban driving conditions.

Under the Clean Air Act of 1970, EPA was required to consider fuel economy as a factor in setting pollution standards.

According to the results, GM'S Chevrolet Nova, using a 250 cubic inch engine in a car weighing 3,500 pounds, and equipped with an automatic transmission got 12.8 miles to the gallon.

A Ford Maverick got 13.3 miles to the gallon. The car had a 240 cubic inch engine, weighed 3,500 pounds and had a three-speed automatic transmission.

Valiant Is 17.9

The American Motors Matador got 13.1 miles per gallon. The car weighed 3,500 pounds, used a 258 cubic inch engine, and was equipped with a three speed automatic transmission.

Chrysler's Valiant, equipped with a 225 cubic inch engine, weighing 3,500 pounds, and using a three-speed automatic transmission got 17.9, EPA said.

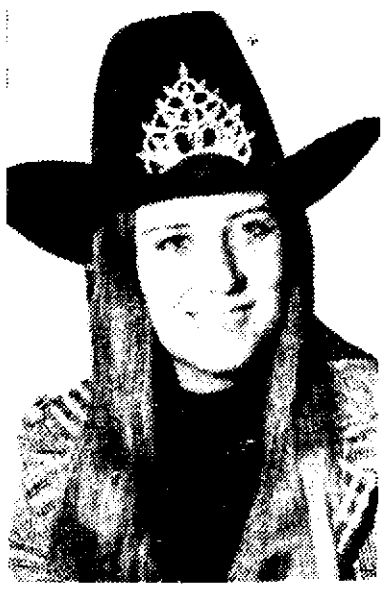
The Ossenkop family will be heavily represented in the Capital City Horse and Pony Club Show. Competing for the Boots and Saddles Horse Club will be Jim (on horse), Scot and Vicki. They are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Ossenkop.

Twins to Reign Over Horse, Pony Show



Christy Nelson

More than 400 horses will be put to task May 26-27 for the 10th annual Capital City Horse and Pony Club Show.

According to show chairman Dale Ossenkop, there were 425 horses in last year's competition and the number of entries this year promises to be larger yet.

Performances begin at noon and 7 p.m. both days at the State Fairgrounds Coliseum, with competition in 54 different events.

As many as 500 people will be bringing their horses from Georgia, Tennessee, Florida, Ohio, Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota.

Ossenkop said that each day will have from 11 to 14 classes of driving ponies, English riding, walking horses, costume classes, and children's and adult western classes.

An unusual breed of Paso Fino horses is coming from Florida to participate in the competition also. Each show also will have a special event.

On Saturday night, Deanne Kobler of Lincoln, Nebraska Horse Club Assn. queen, will crown the new Capital City Horse and Pony Club Queen.

This year, the queen honors will be divided between twin sisters Christy and Carrie Nelson, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Nelson of Lincoln. Their attendants are Terri Studnicka, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Studnicka of Lincoln and Joan Yien, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Yien of Route 2, Lincoln. The outgoing Capitol City Horse and Pony Club queen is Terri Null, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Null of Hickman.

At the Sunday noon performance there will be an award presented to the "most outstanding" 4-H club participating in the competition. Bob Devaney, NU athletic director and former football coach, will present the trophy.

Ossenkop, 4-H leader of the Boots and Saddles Horse Club for six years, said more than $5,000 in prizes and awards will be given during these four family shows.

Reviews By Holly Spence

Joe Don Baker as the sheriff in Walking Tall.

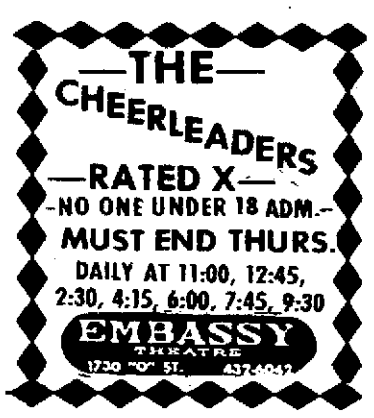
'Carousel' Trial Time Changed

Tryouts for parts in the Rodgers and Hammerstein Carousel, this year's Pinewood Bowl musical, will be at a different time today than was previously announced. Today's tryouts are from 2 to 5 p.m. in Auld Pavilion, 3140 Sumner in Antelope Park. There also will be tryouts at the same site from 7 to 10 p.m. Monday and Tuesday.



Two Hours' Carnage Undo 'Tall' Message

The film Walking Tall, now showing at the Douglas 3, is guilty of what its story is trying to overcome.

While preaching against vice, corruption and violence, it packs more carnage than one could believe possible into its two hours.

The story is based upon a real-life tragedy of an ex-wrestler, Buford Pusser, who returns to his Tennessee county and discovers it is the center of prostitution, gambling, illegal booze factories and corrupt government officials. He runs for sheriff and then spends the length and breadth film trying to escape death.

He is the all-American boy who carries around a big stick instead of a firearm, but the blood flows no less or no differently. His bid for law and order seem hollow in the shadows of the prolonged and graphic violence of the film.

If anything redeems the film, however, it is that it brings to the fore a new face in Joe Don Baker. He portrays Pusser with some sensitivity and believability. The problem is the script; the cast is strong.

Elizabeth Hartman plays Pauline Pusser, who is finally won over to her husband's feelings but ends up dead.

Pusser is knifed, tortured, beaten and broken for his attempts to clean up the town. But he is too right-wing, red-necked to be truly believable. The bias in the film will anger many and only please those who equate law and order with any means to achieve it — even flagrant and ironic bloodshed.

The story is put together in a most overly melodramatic and phony way. And the violence surely merits no less than its R rating. Keep the kids away from this one.

Let Walking Tall, written and produced for Bing Crosby Productions, serve, if nothing else, as a vehicle to introduce Joe Don Baker. We should hear more about him. R.

Thoughtful, Multi-National Adult Movie

The First Circle, now showing at the Plaza 4, suffers from the American dubbing of a Danish cast, a story based on a Russian volume, and direction by a Pole.

The fault is not in the original book, for it was written by the 1970 Novel Prize winner Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn. And it certainly contains a number of touching vignettes as it delves into the lives of a number of incarcerated Russian scientists and engineers.

These educated men are imprisoned on the edge of Moscow and given the job of inventing an untappable telephone for Stalin.

Virtually unread in his own country of Russia, Solzhenitsyn vividly presents spiritual and physical torments which political prisoners undergo in totalitarian societies.

Although the characters are often sketchy and the dialogue does not flow smoothly, the philosophies are thoughtful and the insight into the political framework is penetrating. It is an adult film. R.

Boo, Hiss, Throw Popcorn! Mellerdrammer Season Again

When the lights go up Wednesday at the newly redecorated Gas Light Theater, 322 So 9th, the 11th season of fair damsels in distress and wicked villains begins.

Booing, hissing, whistling and tossing popcorn will begin at 9 p m when No Opera at the Opry House Tonight or Too Good to be True opens This show plays Wednesdays through Saturdays through June 9

No Opera at the Opry House Tonight is a new, old-fashioned mellerdrammer about the Salami Opera Co which is about to fall apart in the dusty hamlet of Desert Rat in the Arizona Territory and that foul villain, Baron Wolfgang Von Wolfpack, who knows that the prima-donna Alma Pumpernickle is about to inherit a fortune in gold mines

He'd force her to marry him at once except that she has no title and family prevents him from marrying a commoner. To solve the dilemma, he enlists the aid of a notorious confidence woman Lily Liverspot.

It is she who discovers that the young nobleman Count Onitt, is living incognito as Billy Bright a composer, so poor he cannot afford a piano, so he hums Before Wolfpack can claim his prize, he must reckon with the outrageous Madam Violetta (whose opera performance must be heard to be depreciated), sea captains who bring bad news, abandoned wives and waifs, a bassoprofundo named Claude Hopper and an Eskimo who plans to operate a string of chop-suey parlors in the frozen Yukon.

These wild and hilarious schemes, directed by Lee Schoonover, are staged by Mary Fey, Samuel Simpson, Clair Rickle, David La Fevre, Marsha Bailey, Randy Van Velkenburgh, Linda Weseel, Beverly Miller, Charlotte Kusy and Tom Lombard. Steve Taylor will serve as pianist and Joe Miller as costumer.

Adrift in New York City or Her First False Steps runs June 13-July 7, The Fireman's Flame, a musical, runs July 11-Aug 4, with a final surprise presentation Aug 8-Sept 1

'Spooky' Carries Tune In Children's Comedy

The third time around can be nothing less than a charm after two years of successes

That aptly describes the third summer of musical comedy for children at the Lincoln Children's Zoo, 2800 A

Opening on July 3, the new musical Spooky will be performed on Tuesday mornings at 10 30 a m and on Wednesday evenings at 7 p m through July and the first two weeks in August The outdoor performances will be in the overlook fountain area

But the musical is in need of cast members, according to director David Meisenholder. Tryouts will be Saturday and next Sunday at 4600 Eden Circle from 2 to 4 p.m.

High school, university students and adults in the community interested in performing for children are invited According to Meisenholder, no previous children's theater experience is necessary, but a good singing voice is required and previous acting experience is helpful

"This musical for children is patterned after the modern American musical for adults," said Meinsenholder. "Although only about 40 minutes, Spooky incorporates singing, dancing and dialogue."

Spooky is about a shy little ghost who is afraid of his shadow He is afraid that he cannot sing, thus he carries his tune "in a basket."

Encouraged by his friends, the bat, granny ghost the owl, Madame Scream, the cat, a talking door, trees and shutters, Spooky learns that self-confidence is important to everyone. He learns that his shadow cannot scare him and finally is able to sing the tune.

This musical was written by June Barbour a free-lance writer and editor of dramatic material for children in New York City The score was composed by Marjorie Miller Murphy, formerly of Lincoln

Meisenholder has directed three musicals by Barbour and Murphy, Hob's Choice, Rover Flies Over and Spooky. These have played to over 58,000 children in Chicago, Rockford, Ill and Lincoln

The Lincoln Foundation has awarded the Arnott R Folsom Zoological Society of Lincoln a grant of $3,500 to present Spooky. The Lincoln Children's Zoo is under the management of the Folsom Society

Spooky, which is being designed and directed by Meisenholder, will be costumed by Jane Tschetter. Karen McWilliams will direct the choreography, Stan Miller of Stanal Recordings of Kearney will provide the sound and Dean Tschetter will be technical consultant.

Diana Says She Should Have Oscar

By Barry Norman
Dispatch of the Times, London

London — Speaking frankly (and she feels it incumbent upon her to be honest) Diana Ross says she thinks she should have won the Academy Award for best actress "I just felt we had the strongest performance," she said, and managed, somehow, to make this claim sound utterly reasonable and by no means immodest

Diana Ross

Her rivals were the likes of Liza Minelli (the eventual winner), Maggie Smith and Cecily Tyson. Miss Ross is a devoted admirer of all of them.

On this one occasion however she was more or less convinced that her portrayal of the late Billie Holiday in Lady Sings The Blues just about shaded all other contenders and it is, at least, an arguable theory

When she was young, she said, she used to watch the Oscar ceremony on television and tell herself that one day she would be there, not just as a spectator but as a nominee, and at the awards ceremony there she was, with this warm feeling inside her that it was to be her night "I really felt I had a chance," she said

"Boy, I had to do a lot of hard swallowing after those awards were announced," she added.

Miss Ross is 29, small, sexy and black, and from 1960 to 1970 she was the lead singer with the Supremes Lady Sings the Blues was her first film and an important step forward in the career of a most determined young woman

The reviews in America for her performance as Miss Holiday, that imcomparable jazz singer, were close to ecstatic, and most actresses making a film debut might have regarded them as accolade enough, certainly if taken in conjunction with an Oscar nomination.

Miss Ross, on the other hand, appears to regard her failure to win the Academy Award as a minor setback

"What's that expression," she said, "'down but not out'? well I'm not even down — I'm just leaning a little I've always been a fighter and right now I have an energy you can't believe I can't wait to get involved in another film"

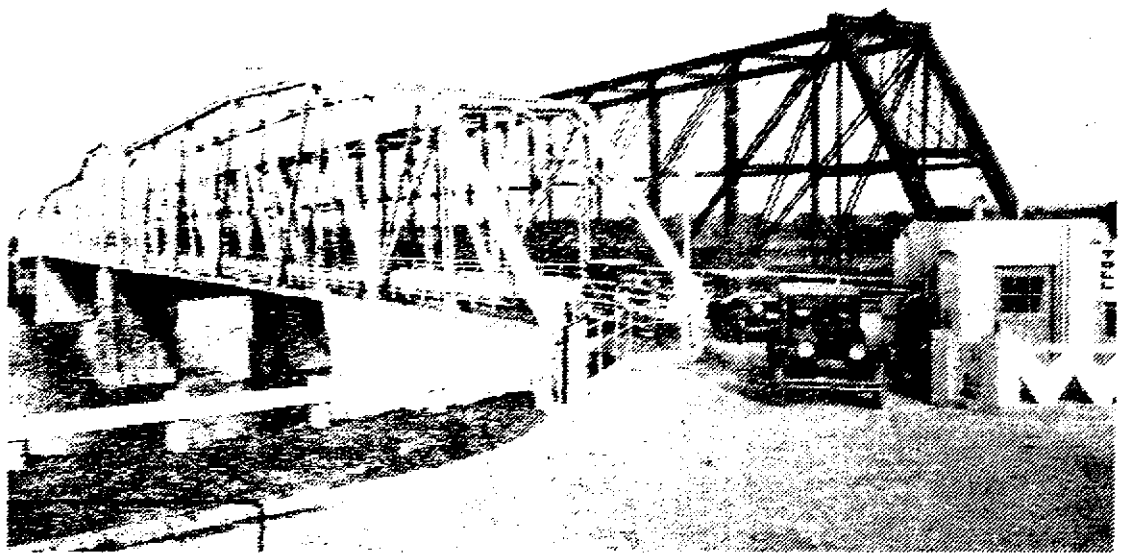
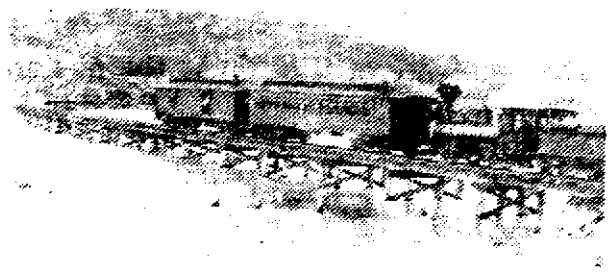
In NEBRASKA — Who? Where? What? When?



Over 40 years separate these two bridges, both of them still standing.

Last Week's Picture



Trains crossed Missouri River on this bridge at Nebraska City in the late 1860s, according to files at the Nebraska State Historical Society. An account of rail crossings in the Centennial Section of the Nebraska City News Press of Nov. 11, 1954, says steamboats ferried railroad cars across the river in earlier days; later the Burlington built pile bridges while the river was frozen only to have them swept away when the ice went out. An early pontoon bridge also was destroyed by the current. This apparently was one of the pile bridges referred to in the News Press account.

Artist Guild's Show Is Open

By Helen Haggie

The Lincoln Artist Guild's annual spring show opened Saturday at Miller & Paine Auditorium 13th and O

Though the show is not as good as some have been in the past, there are some very fine pieces showing expert craftsmanship and use of color

It' is mostly representational, though there are a few abstracts

The juried exhibition has 135 pieces of art including constructions, ceramics, wood carving and paintings Reinhold Marxhausen of Concordia College in Seward and Bill Evans of Nebraska Wesleyan University judged the show

First place went to Steve Lahr for his Cosmic Creation With Embical Cord in mixed media Anne Burkholder's Blue Prairie, a lovely watercolor, was placed second Third place went to Lenore Beggs for her acrylic Hayfield.

Joan Speidell won the first place in the there dimensional class for a green pottery bottle

Honorable mentions were awarded to William Zieg for White Abstract in acrylic, Carmen Esquenazi for Table With Fruit and Bottles in acrylic, Joy De Klotz for Sugarplum Dancers, a mixed media piece, Jan Rudolph for Whimsey done in welded steel, and Hans Burchard for his woodcarving, Horse.

It's always refreshing to see what local artists are doing — which directions they are taking and the progress they are making

For this reason, art enthusiasts should see the exhibition which hangs through Saturday

His work is ceramics — and there are some beautiful pots and bowls in the exhibit The colors are great and the shapes different and delightful

The ceramic wall hangings are a different story It seems the artist has a sense of humor when he spoofs many American customs An example, The Magic Ice Cream Treat Keeps the Blues Away, has a huge cone with a pink ice cream confection

Judy Abrahams uses bright colors and abstract shapes in many of her paintings The works are interesting and unusual — but as one viewer said, "Where would you hang one?"

Also at Haymarket is a group of art works by students from three high schools in Lincoln. They show great promise of future artists in our city

Husband-Wife Team, Student Exhibitions

The husband and wife team of artists, whose works are on exhibit at Haymarket Art Gallery, 119 So. 9th, are Eric and Judy Abrahams of Manhattan, Kan.

Dandelion Exhibition

By William F Wright

London (UPI) — Pity the poor dandelion

Dandelions have become so rare in England that London's Kew Gardens staged an exhibition of the weed.

Botanists said the widespread use of selective weed-killers has all but eliminated the dandelion from the gardens of English homes, and the flowers no longer flourish in the nation's meadows and pastures as they once did.

"It won't be long before we have children asking what a dandelion is," said a spokesman at Kew Gardens "The day seems gone when they countryside was ablaze with yellow with the approach of spring"

Children visiting the exhibition can be forgiven if they think dandelions are something to eat or drink.

Signs inform visitors the dadelion's young leaves were used for salads in the lean post-war years in Germany, and that in England there was much to be said for a well-matured bottle of dandelion wine.

Conservationist groups have joined together in a "save-the-dandelion" campaign

"I can't see what they can do about it," said the Kew Gardens spokesman. "It's all very well for poets to wax lyrical about 'gold buttons sewn upon the lawn' but try telling that to today's fastidious gardener Most people just don't want to know"

A spokesman for the campaign said the group nevertheless hopes to induce in Britons the same sentiments that drove poet J R Lowell to write·

"Dear common flower, that grow'st beside the way
Fringing the dusty road with harmless gold

'The Lie' a Surprise With a Top Audience

By John J. O'Connor

(c) New York Times

New York — What's to be made of television and The Lie? Produced by Lewis Freedman and directed by Alex Segal, the hour-and-45-minute drama used an original TV script by Ingmar Bergman, the Swedish film director, an unlikely candidate for popularity with a mass audience Yet, much to the surprise of the Columbia Broadcasting System and professional TV observers, The Lie clobbered its competition in the ratings

It had a 37 per cent share of the viewing audience in New York, a 39 per cent share in Los Anteles. And CBS estimates that all or part of the production was seen by 30 million viewers nationally.

Not surprisingly, reactions to The Lie were extreme I've received reports of living-room shouting matches between those who wanted the channel switched and those who were fascinated by a "soap opera for adults"

Not without some hesitation, I list myself among the admirers

Subtitled "a tragicomedy of banality," the play intentionally takes the form of a soap opera, a form especially compatible with television and its mass audience.

Certainly, when statistics are produced to declare that about half of today's marriages will end in divorce, few things can be more banal than martial infidelity.

For American television, the surface of Bergman's play was made familiar enough.

In upper-middle-class suburbia, Andrew, an architect, and Anna, a student of romance languages, list credits of 11 years of marriage, two children and comfortable alienation from the problems of the world

When Andrew, on his way to the

Alan Alda (Hawkeye) in fatigues for M-A-S-H.

Lifesaver 'Hawkeye' Once Taught Killing

New York (AP) — Alan Alda, known to millions as an authority-baiting army surgeon who tries to save lives on television's M-A-S-H, once taught men how to kill. He now shudders at the thought

At the time, he was a recent Fordham University graduate and an infantry lieutenant in the Army Reserve He served six months' active duty at Ft Benning, Ga., the Army's infantry school

He spent most of his time there, he said, "mainly learning how to kill people" After that came monthly Reserve meetings here where he gave GIs refresher courses on the deadly arts of war

"I taught other people how to kill people," Alda quietly said. "But generally the whole time I was in the Army I was learning—learning all these rotten things

"I still get physically sick at the idea of teaching people how to use a mortar, a machine gun, how to kill people by the hundreds"

Both he and the Army were lucky in one way He never got command of even a rifle platoon "Once they put me in charge of a mess hall—I think they saw their mistake"

Those dark days are over Alda's only connection with the military now is as "Hawkeye," the make-believe Army Medical Corps captain he plays in his CBS-TV series about a mobile Army hospital near the front lines of the Korean war

Alda, who lives in nearby Leonia, N.J., with his wife and three daughters, has a right to be cheerful these days CBS has renewed M-A-S-H and shifted it from Sunday to a Saturday slot between All in the Family and The Mary Tyler Moore Show, guaranteeing far higher ratings than the show got this season

Best Idea For Baseball Since Diz?

By Jay Sharbutt

New York (AP) — On May 21, the NBC television network begins its Monday night baseball season Joe Garagiola is doing the pre-game show. The theme of his first show will be "what is Baseball?"

Good question For me, the answer is that big league baseball today is duller than watching paint dry. It only promotes slumber.

Carl Lindemann Jr., NBC's vice president for sports, hopes to arouse us Monday night nappers by installing in the broadcast booth prominent show biz celebrities who also are avid baseball fans.

For this, he's been booed by baseball purists and accused by one magazine writer of bringing a "designated huckster" to baseball These folks should have their heads candled I hope NBC's idea works

At least, I hope it brings back the sense of fun televised baseball had in the wonderful days when Dizzy Dean was broadcasting for CBS and murdering "Wabash Cannonball" between innings.

The problem with baseball is the major leagues They've gotten rich, fat, genteel and boring. Pretty soon they'll outlaw cheering.

The remedy, of course, is for network television to ignore the majors for a few years and cover only the minor leagues That's where the fun is And that kind of fun is vanishing fast

Los Angeles, where I more of less grew up, is a prime example of how fast it can vanish once the majors and money show up It used to be the Pacific Coast League's most exciting outposts

It had the Hollywood Stars and the Los Angeles Angels and the town wasn't big enough for both of them.

Their televised games usually were sponsored by a local brew that tore your head off after two cans and by used-car merchants whose wares were guaranteed for 10 miles or 10 minutes.

The Stars were my team They were managed by Bobby Bragan, who shouted at umpires a lot and was thrown out of games a lot When that happened, he'd often repair to

Writer Strike Adds Reruns

By Associated Press

The ABC, CBS and NBC summer evening entertainment schedules are out and it appears CBS will have an all-rerun summer unless the current Writers' Guild strike is resolved by early June.

A new variety show and two situation comedies were scheduled to start in July until the strike put them in doubt, CBS says.

NBC's summer schedule calls for two weekly shows. One, a country music show taped in the Nashville area, is scheduled to appear Thursday nights starting July 19.

It isn't affected by the strike. The other show, a musical variety program hosted by singer Helen Reddy, is affected. If the dispute continues, her show won't start in mid-June as planned and reruns of other shows will be offered, NBC says.

ABC has three original situation comedy series and an hour comedy-variety show coming up in the summer weeks. It says none of the shows is affected by the writers' strike.

Two of the situation comedies—Thicker Than Water and Love Thy Neighbor—debut June 13 and June 15, respectively. The third, Corner Bar, is the same series that appeared on ABC last summer. It now has a new cast, fresh pretzels and is scheduled to appear Aug. 3.

No Shortage of Ailments To Keep Dr. Welby Busy

(c) Chicago Daily News

Chicago — Marcus Welby is worried about his associate, Dr Kiley Robert Young, who stars as Dr Welby on ABC-TV's Tuesday night medical series, recently asked the unanswerable question: Why isn't Dr Kiley married?

Kiley, played by James Brolin, has lived in Welby's TV home four years He is young, apparently virile, and charming

Yet, every woman Kiley finds interesting dies or goes off to love someone else "He has a fatal charm," Young said "The same thing happens when my old girl friends show up I take them out to dinner or the show and they don't last very long after that.

"Realistically, we should get Kiley out of there, marry him, and have him set up his own practice. But then what happens to Welby? Will we have to introduce a new character?

"But if Kiley or Welby do not get married soon, the audience is going to begin to wonder. I already get fan mail asking if anything funny is going on between the two guys."

It is, Young explained, the perpetual dilemma of a top-rated series. To keep the audience, the show must not stray far from the formula that created its success. But, Young said, "This is why the series will have a built-in life span. By staying in a rut we are in danger of running out of gas because of sameness "

As of now, Young doesn't know what the popular disease of the 1973-74 season will be or which lady will next be attracted (fatally) to the two doctors. There is a writers' strike in Hollywood and no new scripts are being prepared.

But Young, whose contract guarantees him three-day weekends, doesn't think Marcus Welby will run out of diseases to treat. His series is about human reaction to disease, meaning he could treat the same ailment several times. Even if that were not the case, there are enough human afflictions for 2,500 years of Marcus Welby episodes, Young said. And that is a fairly good run for any TV series!

Detective Duke

Hollywood (UPI) — John Wayne will break away from horse operas long enough to star as a contemporary police detective in Mc Q at Warner Bros

MICROPHONE IS LIKE 'EARDRUM' IN NEW HEARING AID

Minneapolis, Minn. A new hearing aid just introduced is expected to offer more usable power, superior sound reproduction, and be more trouble free, thanks to a new development in hearing aid microphone design.

Called the "DrexEl," the small behind-the-ear type aid features a microphone which simulates the human eardrum to solve one of the most common hearing aid problems. A spokesman for Maico Hearing Instruments, makers of the aid, explained the advantages of the new microphone

"The most delicate part of a hearing aid has always been the tiny "link," finer than a human hair, which connects to the microphone diaphragm. In the new microphone, this link has been replaced by a membrane, which might be compared to the human eardrum."

The new microphone's lack of sensitivity to mechanical vibrations is expected to result in one very important benefit for hearing aid wearers, aids may be used at higher volume settings without annoying feedback squeal and distortion

'Maude' Too Spicy For Lipton

(c) Newhouse News Service

Washington — Maude, the liberals' answer to Archie Bunker, apparently proved too spicy a television series for Lipton tea commercials.

Thomas J. Lipton, Inc., withdrew its advertising from the CBS program after previewing episodes about marijuana and abortion. "We felt the program departed from its original premise of being a situation comedy, and therefore, felt it no longer had the environment for our products," Lipton's manager of consumer services said.

The Project on Corporate Responsibility asked Lipton for a fuller explanation of the decision, saying consumers should know the factors involved in such moves.

"The project is very much concerned that major corporations, whose advertising revenues pay for and therefore largely determine the content of television programming, act in a socially responsible fashion," its attorney, Thomas R. Asher, wrote the company.

"Because its advertising decision will inhibit the discussion of important social issues on television entertainment programs, we believe that Lipton has acted in a manner which disserves the public's interest in elevating the tone and content of prime time television fare."

Asher says he understands his letter ended up in the wastebasket of Lipton's marketing services vice president, Derek J. Carroll. Carroll was "away from his desk" when a reporter called, but his secretary indicated no response to the letter was likely

Asher's letter also pounced on a Lipton slogan, adding:

"Although Lipton proclaims that its tea is brisk, somehow you have concluded that it can be marketed only in a bland environment.

"Surely Lipton does not regard tea drinkers and consumers of other Lipton products . . . as being so shallow that they will respond to your ads only when presented in the context of trivial programming "

'The Lie' a TV Surprise

office, learns that Martin Luther King has been shot, he automatically delivers the required exclamation of "Dear God!" and quickly recovers with, "Well, I've got to leave." There are no signs of problems in Andrew's everyday life.

Anna is considerably more complex and more controlled. Her hospitalized alcoholic brother might begin raving that "destruction has seized power, lies have seized power." But Anna can coolly respond, "Isn't it enough for me to sit here and just hold your hand?"

At the library, a friend might accuse Anna of living a lie "in a damned nice way," and Anna can say, "I don't know what you're talking about." She then goes to meet her lover, whom she has been meeting once or twice a week for eight years. She reminds them of their pact: "Let's not talk about anything that upsets us, that hurts us."

Not talking, however, is not enough to ward off hurt At the office Andrew discovers that his major project is being turned over to younger men. His work has become a little academic, a little behind the times. He begins to feel that he is suffocating. "Isn't this ridiculous?" he asks his doctor's attractive, sympathetic nurse. "I have no reason to complain.

Anna's lover blames his insomnia on his having had to fire a lot of his staff: "They're over the age of 50, you see." The unspoken question: When does it get to be your turn? Then, at an elegant dinner party, Anna learns that he's leaving with his wife for an extended vacation.

Andrew goes to bed with the nurse, and confesses his single instance of infidelity to Anna. She tells Andrew of her long affair.

The stunned husband reminds her that they had agreed to be completely honest with each other. But, she explains, genuinely puzzled, "people always say that." The picture-book marriage has been transformed into "a comfortable disaster. Everything's the same but the failure is a fact."

Throughout The Lie the veil of soap opera is lifted momentarily to expose raw nerve endings. In the final scene, it is ripped away completely. Andrew concludes, "People have to lie and deceive in order to live with one another." He is willing to go on with the marriage. Anna is not. "I won't. No. I'm not going to. I don't want to." Andrew's and the play's final line is "What is it you want?"

The result, fortified with a superb performance by Shirley Knight as Anna, was neither a brilliant film nor brilliant theater. It was brilliant television.

Its impact can be gauged only in terms of the medium, in terms of that medium's struggle against blandness and toward "adult" material. The Lie, complete with the extreme reactions it has provoked, represented one of the most encouraging advances in a long while

(The Lie, carried on CBS late last month, was seen on WOW-TV but was not carried on KOLN-KGIN The station explained to viewers that it did not believe The Lie was suitable for general viewing.)

Unique Instructional TV Series in Production Here

By Holly Spence

Again Lincolnites will be in the television limelight!

But it's not an entertainment venture They will be involved in an instructional television series entitled Becoming Me.

This social science series of 12 programs for second and third graders may reach children around the country because it is distributed by the Great Plains National Instructional Television Library, headquartered in Lincoln

Great Plains National (GPN), the largest distributor of instructional television programs in the world, is housed in the ETV complex at 33rd and Holdrege.

GPN director Paul Schupbach, said completion of Becoming Me was one of the commitments assumed when Great Plains National acquired the assets of the Midwest Project for Airborne Television Instruction, which was to telecast instructional shows from aircraft circling certain reception areas

The series is directed and produced by John Rubin, who was hired away from photo productions at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln to do this project

Rubin considers this series fairly unique for a target audience of six to nine years old

"I guess it falls into the social sciences because it doesn't have any better place to go, but I think of it as a mental health kind of series," said Rubin

The idea was conceived to give youngsters a solid foundation with which to understand himself, his actions and motivations and to help them cope with problems (drugs, alcohol, etc.) as they develop.

Rubin continued that the series is to give youngsters their own identities whether they be from a minority or any specialized group.

"I think perhaps it is a little ahead of its time," he said, and added that the programs do not use the standard educational television approach of a teacher at a blackboard

Each of the films is designed to get to the audience through such vehicles as presenting parables or showing a group of youngsters who are forming a club

The formation of a club would serve as a vehicle for social interaction, developing leadership qualities, and management

"The kids are doing all the talking so you can't put those kinds of words in their mouths," he said. "We think they don't understand social interaction . . . well, they don't understand the words, but they can conceptualize well beyond their ability to verbalize.

This series actually involves students from the Lincoln Public Schools who serve as the actresses and actors

Rubin thinks the format is as bright and attractive as such ETV programs geared to the primary grades as Zoom and Make a Wish.

"To the casual observer who might not know the educational objectives they might think it was sheer entertainment, because it does not have those overtones (of elementary education methods)," he noted

But he stressed that the objectives are curriculum oriented and that the series is not made "to appease or placate the families to get the kids quiet"

Much of the series was written by a West Coast teacher so Rubin and his staff had to "midwesternize" it so the programs could be produced locally.

All of our talent and the settings are in and about Lincoln," he commented. "I don't think we ever traveled over 25 miles to get everything we needed."

Rubin said that anytime you go on location you spend a lot of money, much of which doesn't show up in the finished product

"Since we are talking about everyday situations, we don't need to get all that sophisticated in settings and I think we have done quite a bit to substitute creativity for dollars," he boasted

"Becoming Me" is GPN's first encounter into television production, noted Rubin, who will leave after this project is completed.

"GPN is basically a distribution agency" said director Schupbach, "and at this moment there are no plans to involve oursell in any new production projects beyond completion of Becoming Me.

He noted however that the situation could change if needs were expressed or independent funding for specific new projects would become available

Even though Rubin's future is uncertain, he admits there is a "crying need for media specialists."

And although he is convinced that he could make much more money producing television commercials. Becoming Me was a challenge for the former director of presentations at the North American Air Defense Command (NORAD) Headquarters in Colorado Springs and officer in charge of a photo documentation unit for the USAF's Aerospace Audio-Visual Service in Washington, D C

He holds a bachelor's degree in photojournalism and cinema from Southern Illinois University and a Master's in film and television from the University of Denver

Rubin said that film is "just a piece of celluloid" with importance is determined by its "ability to teach, motivate and create interest in young people"

He is hoping that Becoming Me fits all these criteria, but it's too early to tell

Messages of Love Help Ease Sorrow

By Gertrude Skinner

Superior

Dear friends, this letter will be my first to you which carries a Superior postmark My present address is 316 East 6th, Apt B-1 Superior, Ne , 68978 My telephone number is 879-4647 Keep in touch OK?

Tucked away in my desk are many pieces of mail waiting to be acknowledged They are from you good folks Out There and I treasure them They have been a sustaining influence and a source of inspiration and strength at a time when the present was almost unbearable and the future bleak and foreboding.

Although words are my business and spring easily from my heart and mind, I simply cannot find the proper words to express my gratitude for your thoughts, your messages, your prayers in the past weeks.

Just a minute—I have found the words They are so simple that I just didn't recognize them "I love you"

And that's what this mystery known as life is all about, isn't it? Learning to care, to bear another's burdens and above all else to love one another You have learned your lessons well, my friends

Prior to moving I spent weeks sorting, eliminating, retrieving almost 40 years of treasures, books, personal papers, loved snatches of the past, all the while crying tears of grief and frustration

Of necessity I did something I never dreamed possible—I burned 40 years of treasures, books, personal papers, loved snatches of the past and I wept tears of grief and frustration.

As the flames leaped high consuming and reducing to ashes my old life, I turned and walked away to my new life in Superior

It is a good life in Superior The people are friendly, concerned, a joy to know Could that be because Superior is cut from the same pattern as Ruskin only in a bigger size?

Jack and his family are coming for Mother's Day. Isn't that wonderful? You know there are a lot of hills and hollers between Superior and Yankton, S.D., and the young Skinners are busy, busy, busy.

But that's what love does for you—sends you in the right direction Take care I'll see you soon

Ball Games Coming On Monday TV

the dugout and commence hurling out a blizzard of towels, shirts and other apparel You never knew if you were at a Stars game or a white sale

I had two heroes, one was Star outfielder Frank Kelleher He was pot-bellied, red-faced and violated the theory of good batting by putting his foot in the bucket-the third base bucket

He sure belted a lot of home runs, though I copied his batting stance and got a reputation on my block as a power bunter

The other hero was a pitcher for Oakland Acrons, a guy by the name of Chesty Chet Johnson He was known to hurl the resin bag at hitters when they were expecting a fastball.

These and other shennanigans-and a lot of good baseball-occurred at the Home of the Stars, Gilmore Field, an ancient wood stadium that could seat 30,000 only if they were well-acquainted.

Gilmore Field is gone now, its place on earth occupied by a television studio There is Dodger Stadium, but it is made of concrete, seats maybe 100,000 souls and lacks both soul and style

I once went there two years ago and sat in the left field stands It was awfully high up The players looked like midgets You couldn't see their faces, watch their batting styles or hear them talk

Most of the people around me were listening on transistor radios to the major league game they were watching I don't think a show biz sportcaster would have helped them then or now But I sure hope it does

Your Horoscope

For Monday, May 4, 1973

Your birthday today: Finds you solving whatever "problems" you thought you had and proceeding toward a better life. The only rule is to learn by experience. Today's natives are mentally active, busy on a dozen lines of interst most of the time.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Even trivial matters turn into commotions today. Patience is rewarded, haste penalized. Find the faults, but do nothing drastic.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): The week begins with intangible resistance. Retrospect will give you a better view of what you are really meeting.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): You are apt to find a discrepancy today. It's good for a bizarre joke, but requires serious corrective effort.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Poking thru mementos of the past turns up items that could be profitable. Allow time for unexpected activities

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Trends indicate a difficult workday; nobody is willing to help. You have an opportunity to solve an old problem.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Very little goes as scheduled. Try an easy-going attitude. You benefit by learning the inner workings of minds and machines

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your streak of luck changes. Let well enough alone, including letting others settle their own conflicts.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Once you get thru the cross-currents of mixed routines, you have a good opportunity at hand. Plan for early action.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Delayed reward for past achievements brightens the day. Be alert for opportunity offered by a friend.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Events of the day move quickly. Avoid making any final decisions or establishing specific limitations.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Moderation is your best route. Something you thought was finished has to be done over. Change little and future revisions will be easier.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Intuition leads the way. Find a short cut during this day of deliberate restraint. Fretting over details helps nothing.

Memorial Day Skiing at Taos

Taos Ski Valley, N.M. — Due to what resort owner Ernie Blake describes as fantastic snow conditions, shirt-sleeve skiing will be the fashion here Memorial Day weekend. Blake said Taos Ski Valley would reopen for the May 26-28 weekend, with an "abundance of good corn snow." Several lodges will be open.

Because of the snow supply Taos has planned several special activities that will keep skiing going until July 4. These include racing camps and coaching schools. Adventurer, Performer

By Tad Burness
Special Writer

Because many cars of the 1950s have been used hard, worn out and scrapped, De Soto's 1956 Golden Adventurer is extremely rare today. Few were built in the first place.

A high-performance machine, the Golden Adventurer marked the high point of an era when De Soto was a popular Chrysler product which often introduced interesting features.

The first Chrysler-built De Soto appeared in the summer of 1928 (early '29 "K" series), and originally the De Soto was priced between Plymouth and Dodge.

In 1933, Dodge squeezed into the price range between Plymouth and De Soto, pushing Dodge ahead in sales. In the later '30s, however, De Sotos became immensely popular as taxicabs, a distinction held until the 1950s.

The final U.S.-built De Soto was the 1961 model, of which few exist. The name was used after that time on a series of foreign trucks by Chrysler Corp.

Tours Can Eliminate Worn Paths

(c) Chicago Daily News

People in the travel industry face a constant problem, to wit: How can you get tourists off the beaten paths?

Take the case of travel in Mexico. People often go there and hit only Mexico City or Acapulco.

These people are cheating themselves because Mexico City, while great to see, doesn't really give you a chance to see the true Mexican character, the gentle folk of the country and small cities.

So why not think of other places in Mexico? Consider San Miguel de Allende, Guanajuato and Cuernavaca

Now think about Australia for a moment. Most people who take the long ride down under see Sydney, Melbourne and maybe Alice Springs. But you can see more. Much more.

The Australian Tourist Commission and American Airlines have put together a series of 15 tours that are sure to lead you to other places Typical, a wool grower's tour that leads from government offices in Melbourne to sheep stations to woolen mills to manufacturing plants

Others in the series cover such as birdwatching (everything from penguins to Lyre birds), a horse breeder's tour, vineyards, ski places, sports centers and mines

Kentucky Folklore Featured

Washington — The seventh annual Festival of American Folklife will be June 30-July 8.

The 1973 presentation will feature singers, musicians and craftsmen from Kentucky, musicians and dancers from Yugoslavia and Serbo-Croatian communities in the United States; carpenters, bricklayers and other skilled workers from the building trades, and American Indian craftsmen and dancers from the northern plains.

The annual celebration of America's folk heritage is co-sponsored this year by the Smithsonian Institution and the National Park Service. It will be held along the shaded sidewalks of the Reflecting Pool between the Lincoln Memorial and the Washington Monument.

Kentucky's presentation will center on tobacco, horses, whiskey production and waterways. Basket makers, fiddle and dulcimer craftsmen, chairmakers, ballad singers, religious music groups, and blues and country guitarists will be among the 150 Kentucky participants

A tobacco twist expert and an auctioneer will demonstrate their skills inside a tobacco barn to be built on the site Craftsmen related to the Commonwealth's bourbon distilleries will illustrate the part they play in whiskey making.

The tribes of Northern Plains Indians will be represented in the "Native Americans" unit, which each year presents Indians of a different region.

China Trip for Anyone: Not Yet

New York (UPI) — If you want to travel to the People's Republic of China these days, you have to be a person of stature and position — a heart surgeon or a scientist, an actress or a corporation executive

The Chinese Embassy in Ottawa is flooded with thousands of requests for travel visas from Americans every month and only a fraction of those are granted The practice of Chinese officials has been to usually reject applications from individualized knowledge or experience to offer the emerging nation

"They aren't ready for high doses of visitors. They simply don't have the facilities," said Jan Barris, spokeswoman for the National Committee on U.S.-China Relations.

About 2,000 private citizens have traveled to China since the spring of 1971 when the visit of an American table tennis team to Peking opened a new era in U.S -Chinese relations. In comparison, only about 150 Chinese citizens, in official groups, have come to the United States.

Lately, a number of well-known public figures with entourages have set off for the People's Republic. Actor Howard Da Silva, authors Susan Sontag and Ring Lardner Jr , actress-politician Shirley MacLaine, were among recent travelers

Miss MacLaine, who headed a delegation of 12 women, said she scoured America to meet the request of her Peking hosts who asked her to bring a group of American women "peasants and workers " The group included a black Mississippi civil rights worker, a Navajo Indian, a middle-aged conservative Republican, and a 12-year-old McGovern organizer

The number of American cultural, scientific and trade groups allowed into China has sharply increased as a result of the general agreement on increased exchanges which preisdential adviser Henry Kissinger signed with Chinese officials in Peking in February.

Before then non-government groups only trickled into China Now, the type of American invited to China has changed A group of Chicago high school student leaders, including blacks and Puerto Ricans basketball and swimming teams atomic scientists, heart specialists, business executives

Chinese professional groups will also visit the United States in greater numbers Chinese water conservation experts news media executives gymnasts high energy physicists insect hormone scientists

Moscow Airs Middle Pop; Harder Rock Underground

By Gordon F. Joseloff

Moscow (UPI) — Moscow Radio blasts out "I Never Promised You a Rose Garden and instrumental versions of Mrs. Robinson, My Sweet Lord, and Cracklin' Rosie, the Neil Diamond hit

The orchestra in Leningrad's Evroperiskaya Hotel strikes up the theme from Love Story and Those Were The Days, My Friends.

And from the tape recorder counter at none other than Moscow's Voentorg, the army-navy department store, comes the sound of Creedence Clearwater Revival's Have You Ever Heard the Rain.

Western popular music, once denounced by Communist Party officials as immoral and insane, is being heard more often these days "aboveground" in the Soviet Union.

The music played publicly — in contrast to that heard via the underground — seldom strays from the middle-of-the-road category. And it certainly is not current by Western standards.

Audiences at ne movie theater recently were ushered to their seats to the sound of Pat Boone singing Love Letters in the Sand. Moscow Radio is giving lots of play these days to an instrumental version of another oldie, Sonny James' mid-fifties hit, Young Love.

But the Soviet audiences do not seem to mind

"It's good to dance to," said one young Muscovite listening to a dance band playing Raindrops Keep Falling On My Head at Moscow's Intourist Hotel. "Old or new — what does it matter?"

The state record industry, recognizing the appeal of Western pop stars, has issued many of their recordings. Big sellers include Tom Jones, Peggy Lee, Joan Baez, Herb Alpert, Louis Armstrong and the Mommas and the Poppas. If you are lucky, you can even find a Bing Crosby record.

It remains to be seen what effect Moscow's joining the world copyright convention as of May 27 will have on Soviet production of Western records.

Until now, the Soviets have freely reproduced Western records as well as books and plays and set aside royalties in rubles for some of the artists or authors, to be paid when and if they come here The formula for the ruble payment is n t known.

The Western recordings most sought after by Soviet young people are more current and upbeat than those produced by the Soviets and heard publicly Anything by the Rolling Stones and the Jesus Christ Superstar album, for example, bring astronomical prices on the black market — if they can be found.

One young Muscovite said he paid 40 rubles ($53 60 at the official rate) for Superstar and could have sold it immediately for double the price.

Russian young people often surprise their Western counterparts with their knowledge of musical likes and dislikes in the West.

"Some of the Russians are into things I haven't even heard about and I've only been away from the States for six months," said an American student at Moscow State University.

The with-it Soviets keep up to date by listening to the Voice of America and British Broadcasting Corp English-language broadcasts (the Russian-language ones are jammed) and Radio Luxembourg, which often booms in during the early morning hours

Selections also will be presented by the stage band, high school band and Dixieland band

A Psychopath in a Mesmerized Nation

The Life and Death of Adolf Hitler By Robert Payne Praeger

He left on world history claw marks so deep that it is unlikely the wounds will be healed for centuries to come

Thus Robert Payne on Adolf Hitler the supertyrant who could not abide the sight of blood yet sent millions to their deaths Hitler is a monstrous aberration history has not yet been able to explain – a psychopath who came closer to mastering mankind than any one man before or since

Despite the libraries of books about him, Hitler continues to remain as much an enigma as the voluntary submission of an advanced nation to his vaulting fantasies and unparalleled bloodletting

Psychohistorians will go on trying to plumb a mind so distorted that at the last it had lost all contact with reality This year alone half a dozen books on Hitler are due to appear in English of which this one by Robert Payne is the first and promises to be the best John Toland has been researching a Hitler biography for the past two years but he will have to do well to surprise us after Payne s penetrating traversal

In general terms Hitler s career from the beerhalls of Munich to the Reichschancellery in Berlin and the bunker where he died is amply documented To provide a credible explanation for the psychological derangement which led him to envelop the world in war is something else again

Payne has his own theory concerning Hitler's megalomania, and it's as plausible as any I have read Hitler, he argues, was a psychopath raised by a mesmerized German nation to a position of supreme authority where he could use the full power of the state to realize his fantasies The fact that in the process he sent many millions to their deaths meant nothing to him

Hitler closed his mind to what he didn t want to hear and the sycophancy of those around him preserved the fiction up to the defeat at Stalingrad and even thereafter Not until the Russians were at the gates of Berlin did one of his generals Guderian dare contradict him on a military decision

The great lacuna in Hitler literature – at least in English – is his upbringing and early education We know very little about the events that influenced his boyhood How did the gaunt hangdog Adolf Hitler nee Schicklgruber born in an Austrian village school dropout failed painter and architect manage to climb so high ' Payne has concentrated on this period with surprising results

As a boy Hitler s favorite reading matter was about palefaces and redskins in the American West Later he was so deeply moved by early operas of Wagner such as Rienzi, that he visualized himself in heroic patriotic roles to the point of working himself into a trance

He grew to hate Jews despite the fact that he and his family received kindness at Jewish hands — or because of it

His half brother, Alois, married an Irish girl and went to live in England Adolf spent several months

Robert Payne

living with them in Liverpool He admired British mercantile power but learned no English and made no friends His English experience in fact, seems to have left no mark on him

It wasn t until he discovered his gift for inflammatory oratory in Munich during the 1920s that Hitler suddenly realized he possessed a power over men which could be used for self aggrandizement The rest is history the rise of the Nazi party its accession to power the beginning of the Hitler dictatorship the conscious decision to conquer Europe — and tomorrow the world

In passing Payne also exhumes a strange story of a love affair between Hitler and a pretty niece he seduced and later drove to suicide He recalled the incident years later in excoriating the German surrender at Stalingrad If a girl could kill herself in honor he demanded why couldn t a German army fight to the last man in honor '

Hitler's "final solution" to the Jewish question throughout Nazi-occupied Europe was ordered and executed like a bureaucratic directive Hitler himself never visited a death camp he could not even bring himself to visit the German wounded in hospitals

For him as for Stalin death was an abstraction If World War II was a final solution to anything at all it was to Nazism although it is still too soon to be sure of that

Payne deliberately maintains his focus on Hitler himself throughout his long and enthralling book Other personalities and the war itself are treated only insofar as they throw light on Hitler s intentions motives and ultimate madness Thus some aspects of World War II are touched on only briefly or obliquely But this is after all a biography of Hitler not a history of the war

In my view it is the nearest we have yet come to a credible full length portrait of Hitler which follows him from the cradle to the grave It is Payne s finest biography to date and much superior to his Lenin and Stalin

Freighting on the Plains

From the Missouri to the Great Salt Lake An Account of Overland Freighting By William E Lass Nebraska State Historical Society

In this era of the freeway a time when coast to coast travel is commonplace one is tempted to dismiss the overland freighter of a century ago as less than the courageous and romantic pioneer that he was

William E Lass corrects that tendency in this chronicle of those hardy frontiersmen who supplied the material needs of a frontier moving relentlessly westward

East of the Mississippi the movement of supplies was largely by water thanks to conveniently located rivers and a well-conceived canal system But out here in western parts nature wasn t so obliging and supplies had to be packed overland at tremendous expense and hardship

Lass study concentrates on operations in the Platte Valley from 1848 to 1869 the liveliest era in the history of overland freighting After that the iron horse puffed across the plains with the bulk of the burden once moved by bullwhackers

Thousands of men and animals trekked westward on foot however starting from Missouri River ports at Nebraska City Atchison Omaha Leavenworth and Plattsmouth Their customers were the federal troops sent out to pacify the West the Mormons at Salt Lake the Pikes Peakers and the Montana miners

Equipped with an appendix listing by name the major figures in the overland freight business and biographical sketches of each, Lass' book is perhaps the most thorough study of freighting in the Central Plains and mid-Rockies ever attempted

Its very complete chapter notes make it useful for the scholar while at the same time it remains a readable book for the history buff There are several pages of fine photographs from mid 19th Century freight routes plus maps to guide the reader from stop to stop

From the Missouri to the Great Salt Lake was written under a Woods Fellowship grant administered by the Nebraska State Historical Society from funds donated by the Woods Charitable Fund Inc

In 1969 under a similar grant the society published The Great Platte River Road, a well recieved history of westward movement through the Platte Valley by Merrill J Mattes

Lass a native of Bereford S D is professor of history at Mankato State College in Minnesota A specialist in frontier literature he has written two other books about frontier life and contributes frequently to historical journals He is currently working on a history of the Minnesota Canadian boundary for the Minnesota Historical Society

Comments for the Record

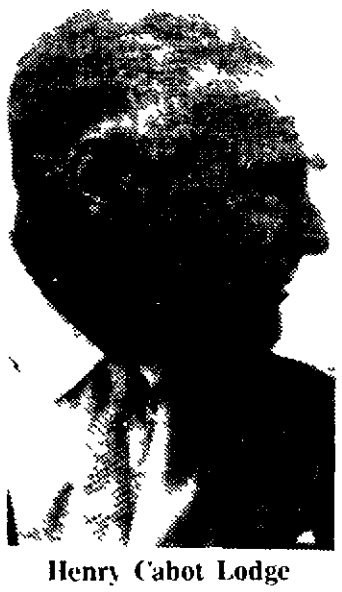
The Storm Has Many Eyes A Personal Narrative By Henry Cabot Lodge W W Norton

Do you remember the saying that Lowells talk only to Cabots and Cabots talk only to God ' A new day has dawned Henry Cabot Lodge talks to you and me

You may open this book with some prejudice Perhaps you recall the unmitigated contempt with which Lodge responded to Communist arrogance in United Nations sessions Or you have not forgotten the reactionary record of his grandfather, the original Sen Lodge, who bitterly fought Wilson s Treaty of Versailles, the League of Nations and United States entry into the World Court '

Henry Cabot Lodge hardly seems a scion of this family His writing is a bit stodgy and stilted but he might be great fun to hobnob with He sparks his basically prosaic but informative autobiography with sprightly anecdotes He quotes Samuel Goldwyn is remarking of someone Don t pay him any attention don t even ignore him If anyone speaks thus about Lodge do ignore him

Lodge was born in 1902 missing July 4 to his great regret by only 24 hours He studied in private school



Henry Cabot Lodge

Harvard and Paris He knew Henry Adams Edith Wharton and Henry James

After a stint as a newsman and after two terms in the Massachusetts Legislature, he went to the U S Senate in 1937 Reelected in 1942 he soon resigned for Army duty in Europe

His most important and historic achievement was of course the association with Eisenhower He decided early that Sen Robert Taft Mr Republican front runner in the race for the Republican presidential nomination lacked major qualifications He felt that his party s best chance to end two Democratic decades was to persuade Eisenhower to come out as a Republican and accept the nomination

There are politicans who like us to think they don t really want to be president but feel it their bounden duty to accept if the burden of this great office is thrust upon them Perhaps that attitude is understandable

Lodge maneuvered Eisenhower—whose hands were in fact, tied by his NATO duties — into the nomination, despite the sometimes unscrupulous machinations of a few determined Taft backers, and then went on to help him into the White House

Lodge served in the United Nations during the Suez crisis He was Nixon s running mate when Kennedy squeaked through to victory If the Eisenhower matter is most significant in Lodge s career certainly the most timely and relevant aspect of it was his service as ambassador to Vietnam

The Pentagon Papers crit he claims in several respects the Kennedy administration did not he says authorize the coup against Diem he himself was not instructed to enlist the CIA in any anti Diem action and our cut in and to Diem was not intended as a signal to Diem s foes to go ahead with their plot

Lodge s stand on domestic issues has been in many respects, as he acknowledges, un Republican He was an early advocate of old age pensions, equal opportunity for all, aid to hospitals, support for housing and for child and maternal health care He backed Willkie as GOP presidential nominee and supported Scranton of Pennsylvania in his on-again off again campaign for the nomination

Liberals would fault Lodge on other matters But his has been a consistent career benefiting from a cultural background uncommon in politics and marked by a practical savoir vivre Lodge is a proper envoy to the Vatican and at the same time I think fellow well met ready to relax at a party enjoy the whine of an accordion and even contribute vocal solos of his own

This is if not an essential at least an important book providing a fresh angle on our country and our problems

NANCY SINATRA

JACQUES MAPES

Q. How should one rate Scott Fitzgerald as a writer? Will he last?—Irving Upchurch, Chicago, Ill.
A. He was a man of shallow Princeton education. There is no appreciable depth in any of his novels. He was inspired by the jazz age era. He believed in craftsmanship as a writer, and could write like an angel. He filled notebooks with phrases, descriptions, memories and trivia. In one of his letters he writes: "One time I had a talk with Ernest Hemingway, and I told him against all the logic that was then current that I was the tortoise and he was the hare, and that's the truth of the matter, that everything I have ever attained has been through long and persistent struggle while it is Ernest who has a touch of genius which enables him to bring off extraordinary things with facility. I have no facility. . . ."

MRS. OLA WELCH JOBE

PRESIDENT NIXON

Q. Can you tell me if Ola Welch Jobe, Richard Nixon's first girlfriend, is putting up for auction at Parke-Bernet Galleries the love letters she received from Nixon during the 1930-37 period of their courtship?—R.L., Prescott, Ariz.
A. She is not.

Q. With the great increase in counterfeiting why hasn't the United States government turned to multicolored money to make it more difficult for the counterfeiter?—Augustus C. Baker, Hemet, Calif.
A. Precisely because the color of the currency doesn't make the counterfeiting any more difficult.

Q. Is it true that CBS plans to replace Walter Cronkite with Roger Mudd?—Emily Frankel, Hempstead, N.Y.
A. Cronkite recently signed a five-year deal with CBS which permits him a three-month vacation during which time Mudd would step in as his substitute. At the end of five years if Cronkite has had it, Mudd would be on hand to take over. But Walter will remain around for years.

WALTER CRONKITE WITH HIS WIFE.

Q. Several months ago you were asked your opinion of the three best and the three worst appointments in the first Nixon Administration. As I recall, you picked the three best as Henry Kissinger, who obviously has you in his pocket; Daniel Moynihan, now the U.S. Ambassador to India, and Pat Gray who resigned as acting head of the FBI. The three worst appointments, you said, were John N. Mitchell as Attorney General, Maurice Stans as Secretary of Commerce, and William Rehnquist as Associate Justice of the Supreme Court. How do those choices hold up in retrospect? Or have you changed your mind?—Leslie Bellamy, Los Angeles, Calif.
A. In retrospect they seem fair. Rehnquist is a brilliant justice, but he is an extreme right-wing ideologue. Intellectually however, he is far superior to Mitchell and Stans and perhaps should not have been linked with them. Otherwise the same selections hold.

STOMPANATO AND LANA TURNER'S DAUGHTER CHERYL.

Q. Who murdered the gangster Johnny Stompanato —was it Lana Turner or her daughter Cheryl? Wasn't it Lana who plunged the knife and Cheryl who took the blame?—Louis Katz, Hollywood, Calif.
A. It was Miss Turner's daughter, Cheryl, who, seeking to protect her mother, stabbed Stompanato.

Q. I have read many times that during World War II only Japanese-Americans were incarcerated in concentration camps. Isn't it true that Italian-Americans and German-Americans were also placed in such concentration camps?—Vega Wimmer, Detroit, Mich.
A. Unfortunately it is true. Italians and Germans were interned in Minnesota and Texas and other states.

Keeping Up... With Youth

by Pamela Swift

Skin-Flix

Motion pictures are produced primarily for young people, those in the 16-36 age bracket. They are the ones who attend films with some degree of regularity.

What sort of motion pictures do young adults prefer? No one really knows. Producers are convinced, however, that American youth will patronize films highlighting sex, because to many of them sex has long been held up as the forbidden fruit. Thus the commercialization of sex via a series of X-rated films frequently spells profit.

Dr. Mary Calderone, 68, executive director of the Sex Information and Education Council of the U.S., believes that as the nation's sexual maturity increases, the commercialization of sex will decline.

Right now, however, she declares, America is experiencing a preoccupation with sex by way of stag films, massage parlors, pornography and the willingness of the mass media to exploit sex for its sensational impact.

Along this line it is interesting to note that the executives of United Artists, a subsidiary of the Transamerica Corp., foresee "Last Tango in Paris," starring Marlon Brando and Maria Schneider, as the most successful picture in their company's history.

In its first two months, in approximately 45 locations throughout the world, "Last Tango," X-rated, controversial, sexually explicit and disputatious, grossed $5½ million. United Artists expects the film will eventually gross $50 million.

"It is doing so well," one spokesman reports, "that it now has the lowest ratio of advertising costs to rentals of any picture we have had. Our two best money-makers in the past have been 'Thunderball' and 'Diamonds Are Forever,' James Bond pix. 'Tango' will easily surpass them."

MARLON BRANDO AND MARIA SCHNEIDER IN 'LAST TANGO': X SPELLS MONEY

Who's attending "Last Tango"? Examine the long lines in New York, Montreal, Los Angeles, wherever the film is being released, and you will note that the majority of the moviegoers are young people. More so in the case of "Last Tango," and "Deep Throat," and other X-rated films than any others.

Perhaps, as Dr. Calderone points out, "as society learns to accept sexuality as an integral part of humanity, people will also regain their sense of privacy towards sex. And I think all this acting-out we see now will gradually disappear."

What generation gap?

Does a generation gap exist in the United States? Perhaps, but it no longer is as wide as some believe, and maybe it never was.

Research by the Division of Student Affairs at the University of Texas in Austin indicates that "Texas youth are and have been assimilating parental value systems into their own to a greater extent than the public generally assumes."

A study, entitled "Significant Collegiate Sources of Influence," deals with 831 seniors who were graduated from the university in May, 1968, when the Vietnamese war was at its pinnacle. An extensive questionnaire was sent to all 2355 graduates, with 35 percent responding.

Surprisingly, among the research findings was one which showed that "the impact of the family, especially the parents, was quite deep and extensive."

The mother was cited by 83.3 percent of respondents as the major source of influence, and the father was second with a 79.8 percent rating.

The other top 10 sources of influence were spouse, fiancé or steady; friends; books; dating; professor in own department; job; event of national importance and roommate. Also identified as powerful sources of influence were students' peers.

The 100-page research monograph, "Significant Collegiate Sources of Influence," is available from the Office of Vice President for Student Affairs, University of Texas, Austin, Tex. 78712.

Beer test

College students are supposed to be connoisseurs of beer. That's their favorite drink. They should be able to tell a good beer from a bad beer, one made from expensive hops, one made from cheap hops.

The probable truth is that most beer drinkers can't identify their favorite beer in a disguised container.

Recently Frederick Meeker, an assistant professor of behavioral sciences at California State Polytechnic College in Pomona, Calif., and Ralph Bettencourt, a student there, revealed the results of a beer preference test they had conducted.

They made their study public at the 53rd annual meeting of the Western Psychological Association held at Anaheim, Calif.

They described how they used 20 students in their experiment, 10 of whom modestly confessed that they were beer connoisseurs. The other 10 consisted of students who admitted from the start that they couldn't differentiate one beer from another.

The connoisseurs were asked to drink four brands from which cans the labels had been removed. Not one could identify a single brand.

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

EDITED

THE CASE OF PAT GRAY

Now that Pat Gray has been declared too honest to become head of the FBI--a Justice Department official told Intelligence Report, "If Pat had only kept his mouth shut about turning over the FBI Watergate reports to John Dean, the President's counsel, he might have been confirmed" --another question poses itself. Is Pat Gray too honest to become a federal judge?

In 1970, before Gray was appointed an assistant U.S. Attorney General, the then Rep. Lowell Weicker (R., Conn.), now a Senator, recommended him for a vacancy on the bench of the U.S. Second Court of Appeals.

Before the recommendation could be acted upon, Gray was appointed to the Justice Department, and the vacancy remained. When last year President Nixon appointed Gray acting head of the FBI, Senator Weicker recommended another lawyer, Francis McCarthy of Hartford, for the vacancy on the bench. But now Gray, seeking to prevent Nixon from undue embarrassment, has stepped down as a potential FBI chief. The White House owes him a great favor. Will it give him the federal judgeship he was considering in 1970? Or is it even too late for that?

NO PH.D. GLUT HERE

Insofar as University of Chicago graduates are concerned the so-called Ph.D. "glut" is a myth.

A study which covered 400 students who had received their Ph.D. degrees between July 1, 1971, and June 30, 1972, reveals that only 2 percent were known to be unemployed and actively seeking employment.

The study also indicates that students who receive Ph.D.'s in the humanities have as good an opportunity or better for employment as do those who specialize in the physical sciences.

The University of Chicago has long enjoyed the reputation of being a "teacher of teachers." Of the 400 Ph.D.'s surveyed, 63 percent found employment in college or university teaching.

SALT MINES HEALTHY

Want to avoid bronchial asthma? Want to improve your health? If so, go to work in a salt mine. So advises Mikhail Palfi, a Soviet health official.

According to Palfi, "Working in a salt mine provides one with speleotherapy, which means treatment based on the curative properties of the microclimate of underground caves."

Palfi says: "The salt mine climate is free of irritants and allergens but rich in salt which is excellent for bronchial troubles. Not a single case of bronchitis has been registered among workers in the Solotvino salt mines in the Ukraine in the past 25 years."

Possibly none of the miners has been set free to complain.

PRESIDENTIAL P.O.W. SPECTACULAR

President Nixon has scheduled a "spectacular" on the White House lawn for former prisoners of war and their families on May 24. Paul Keyes, TV producer of the Rowan and Martin comedy program, will be in charge of the show. And Bob Hope, of course, will handle the master of ceremonies chore.

WHY PEOPLE SHOP

People shop not only to buy things, but because it satisfies their predetermined role in life, it provides them with relaxation and enjoyment, it alleviates boredom, and offers social contact for the lonely.

It also provides self-gratification, status and a feeling of accomplishment.

Edward Tauber, who lectures at the UCLA Graduate School of Business Administration, advises retailers that people go shopping for these and many other reasons over and above making a purchase. Mindful of that contention, they should be able to increase their sales by understanding the social needs of their customers.

WAR DOESN'T PAY The U.S. bankrolled World Wars I and II for its struggling allies, Great Britain, France, the Soviet Union.

Today, 55 years after World War I and 28 years after World War II, they still owe us $20.1 billion, most of which will probably never be repaid.

Our biggest debtor is Great Britain, with $11 billion in principal and interest accumulated from both World Wars. That country has paid $360.1 million on its World War II debt with $431.5 million left to pay, but its original World War I debt of $4.8 billion has mounted with interest to $10.6 billion.

France still owes us $7.5 billion from WW I and $224.7 million from WW II, while the Soviet Union is our debtor to the tune of $1.4 billion for both wars.

SOCIAL DISEASES Gonorrhea is raging throughout the United States. During 1972 it was the highest it has ever been since the U.S. Public Health Service began keeping statistics on venereal disease in 1919.

According to the American Social Health Association, there has been a similar increase in the number of reported infectious syphilis cases.

Of the 60 largest cities in the nation, Atlanta reported the highest rate of gonorrhea--2522 cases per 100,000 population--while Washington, D.C., reported the highest syphilis rate--103 cases per 100,000.

Last year, according to Dr. William L. Fleming of the University of North Carolina, there were an estimated 2½ million cases of gonorrhea and 85,000 cases of syphilis in the U.S. Herewith the disease rates for the 20 most afflicted cities:

WASHINGTON'S PORTRAITS DON'T SHOW HIM SMILING, PROBABLY BECAUSE HE WORE DENTURES LIKE THOSE SHOWN HERE BY UCLA PROF. REIDAR SOGNNAES.

POOR GEORGE George Washington, father of our country, had a good sense of humor but could hardly ever show it with a smile. Reason: bad dentistry.

Dr. Reidar F. Sognnaes, 60, of the University of California School of Dentistry, writing in the "Smithsonian" on "America's Most Famous Teeth," reports that in 1789 when Washington was 57 and inaugurated as President of the U.S. he had only one of his original teeth left.

During his two Presidential terms he suffered such dental agony that he could hardly ever laugh, could not pronounce lengthy words or words with "S" sounds, and encountered great difficulty in eating any but soft foods.

His dentures were made of an incredible variety of materials including teeth carved out of elephant and walrus tusks as well as teeth taken from cows, hippotamuses, and humans.

All of this is probably why there are no portraits showing Washington in good humor. Those which survive show him serious or in pain.

Dr. Sognnaes, an RAF pilot in World War II, reconstructed six Washington dentures from the same type of material used to make them originally, and the Washington dentures which didn't fit -- they were held in place by springs -- are currently on exhibition at UCLA.

According to the book: Communist Chinese soldiers are drilled in political thought as well as in military tactics. Here a group is studying Mao's Little Red Book.

On-the-Spot Report: Communist China's Army

by Paul Raffaele

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Chinese Army is believed to number 3 million men. It is one of the most powerful fighting forces in the world and one of the most unknown. Paul Raffaele, a French journalist, recently received permission with his Chinese wife to visit the 124th Division of the People's Liberation Army (PLA). We present his report and photographs.

LOFU, CHINA.

"Without a People's Army, the People are nothing," Mao Tse-tung says in his Selected Works.

As our car approached division headquarters of the 124th Division at the foot of Lofu Mountain, 60 miles north of Canton, we saw a mammoth red wall sign urging Mao's warriors: "Onward to Greater Victory." In front of it stood the general and his aides, out to meet us. But it's hard to spot a general nowadays. Since the Cultural Revolution, the People's Liberation Army has been stripped of the insignia of rank. Everyone wears the same uniform. The only way you can tell a general is by his age and his paunch.

The basic Chinese uniform is a loose-fitting, almost baggy pajamas—sloppy perhaps, but practical, comfortable to wear in battle.

For hundreds of years the Chinese foot soldier was treated as the scum of the earth, often press-ganged into service. In the Communist China of today, he's regarded as the central figure in a holy trinity—the revered combination of soldier, worker and peasant—and the chief standard-bearer of China's new elite.

Typifying the spirit and method behind that elite is Commander Cheng, a burly, no-nonsense type of man. He's one of an estimated 50,000 political commissars attached to the PLA. Their job is to supervise the almost ceaseless Maoist political indoctrination that's pumped into the troops.

In a long, narrow room dominated by a giant photo of Mao in a PLA uniform, Commander Cheng tells us of the strict political, as well as physical requirements demanded of Army recruits.

"Applicants must have impeccable revolutionary backgrounds," he says. "They must be workers, revolutionary cadres, sons and daughters of soldiers, or come from the families of poor and lower-middle-class peasants. They receive no pay, only pocket money of 7 yuan ($3) a month."

According to Cheng, there's no conscription in China, and 90 percent of those seeking to enlist are rejected either for physical or political shortcomings. "Applicants go to the Revolutionary Committee where they work," he says. "Health, education and political thought are examined, then recom-

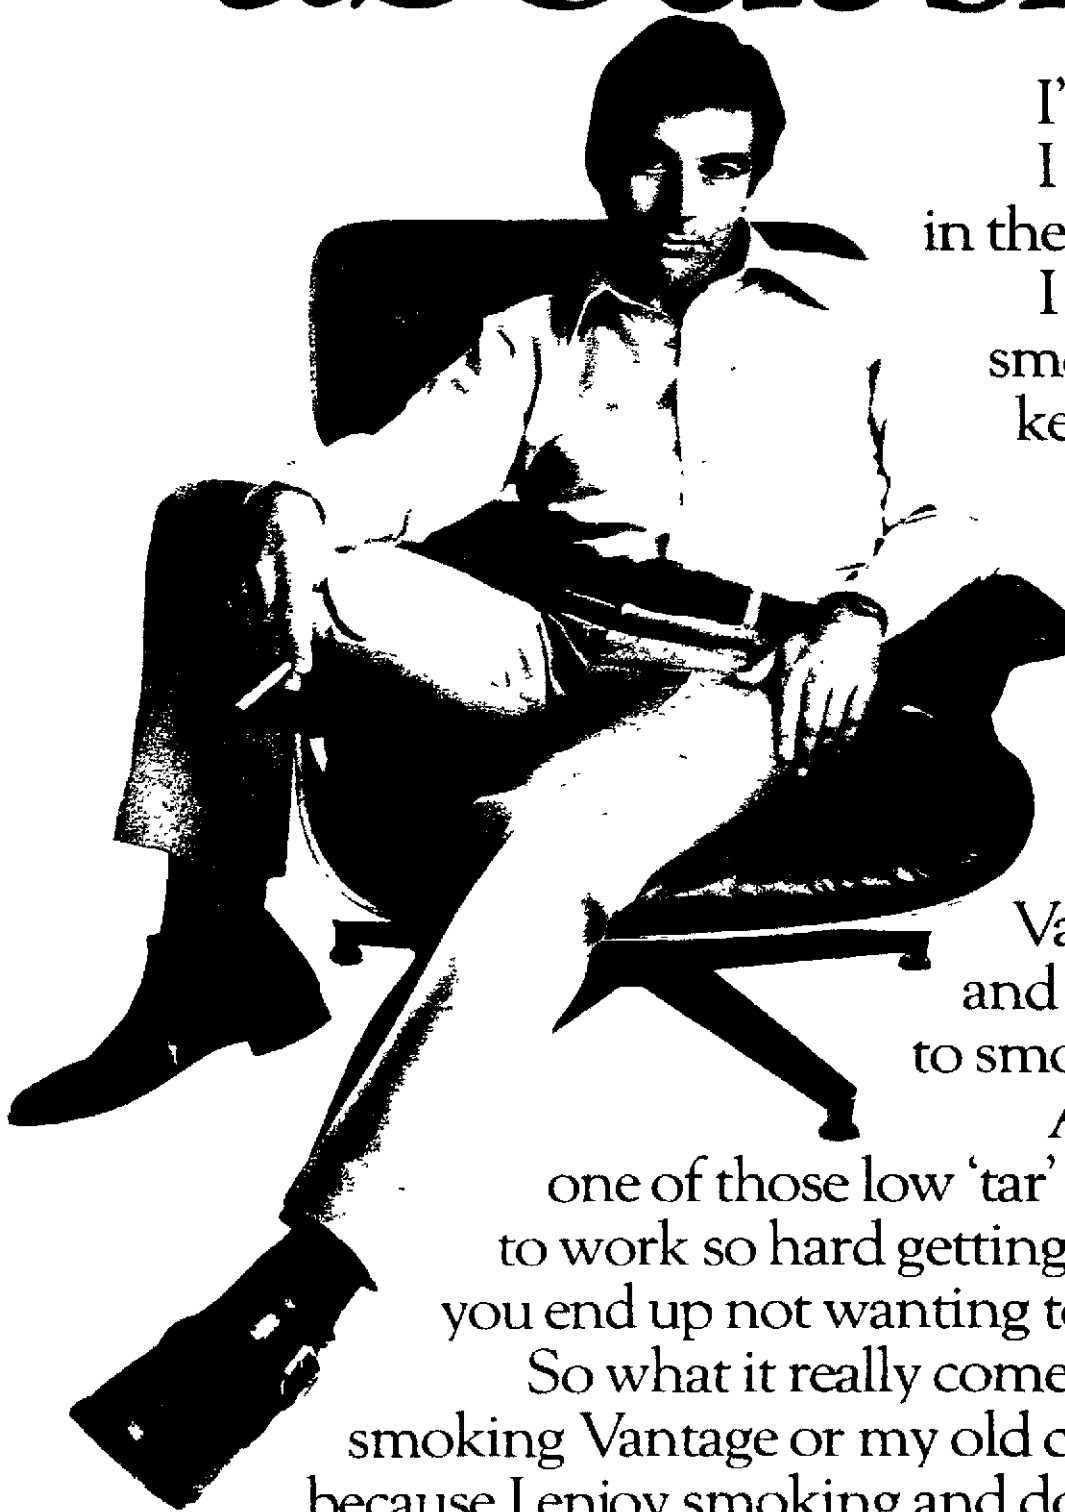
What I'm doing about smoking.



I'm smoking Vantage.

I took up smoking more than 15 years ago in the Marine Corps.

I started smoking then because I wanted to. I smoke now because I want to. And I intend to keep on smoking as long as I want to.

But that doesn't make me bury my head in the sand and ignore the stuff in the papers about smoking.

My attitude is, OK, if high 'tar' and nicotine cigarettes are a concern to me, I'd better do something about it.

So I did. I started to smoke Vantage.

Vantage gives me the flavor of my old brand, and that takes some doing, because what I used to smoke was way up there in 'tar' and nicotine.

And Vantage is not one of those low 'tar' cigarettes you have to work so hard getting some taste out of, you end up not wanting to smoke it.

So what it really comes down to for me is smoking Vantage or my old cigarettes, because I enjoy smoking and don't want to give it up.

And if you feel the way I do, you'll enjoy smoking Vantage too.

mendations are made to the Army."

As for whether soldiers ever defy the current political line, Cheng says that "now and then recalcitrant officers are urged to reform their thinking by studying Marx, Engels, Lenin, Stalin and Mao Tse-tung. If the officer persists in his erroneous line, then he will be replaced." Chinese privates are encouraged —even expected—to criticize their officers in public, and officers have the same privilege. Most of this public criticism revolves around "correct" and "incorrect" political thought.

Marching song

We went out to see Chinese troops undergo fire training. No. 4 Company, 100 strong, marched across the firing range singing "Three Rules of Discipline and Eight Points of Attention"—a song that's a kind of moral and behavior guide for soldiers on the march.

For two hours the PLA men fired automatic rifles at ground targets or at descending balloons representing parachutists, battled each other with wooden bayonets, engaged in hand-to-hand unarmed combat, and accurately picked off targets on nearby hills with an assortment of heavy weapons including 75-mm. cannons, hand-held mortars, and powerful machine guns. In a show-stopping climax, the soldiers, using a leapfrog pattern, stormed and "captured" one of the hills.

Care for crops

After lunch, we went to visit the troops in their barracks, almost hidden by thick green tropical trees as an air-raid precaution. Most of the same men who had screamed "Kill!" as they lunged with their bayonets in the morning were now out in the fields watering their cabbages and feeding the goats.

About a dozen were in the barracks, whose walls were decorated with the inevitable photo of Mao. The men were seated on low wooden stools in a circle, studying Mao's Little Red Book. Through an interpreter I speak to Private Liu, about 20 and boyish looking. He talks like a People's Daily editorial, and yet, it is obvious that these stock phrases are giving meaning to his life:

"My father is from lower-middle peasant stock. We live in a village in the North. . . . It is my duty to serve the People, to serve the Revolution, and to defend the Motherland. . . . I would like to continue in the PLA after my three years' service, but I will abide by the decision of the Party."

Only the best men, it is explained, are permitted to reenlist for training as commissioned and non-commissioned officers. Whether a man is picked, Commander Cheng acknowledges, "depends as much on his political consciousness as on his military ability."

To my Western mind, it seems incredible that the dream of most of China's young boys is to join the Army. To me, it looks like an unenviable life. The pay is almost non-existent; promotion prospects are discouraged; the work is hard, and leave is usually given only for an illness in the family.

Reveille for Pvt. Liu and the 10,000 like him at Lofu is 5 a.m., lights out at 9:30 p.m. Exercise and a political discussion precede breakfast. During the day the soldiers take weapons drills, have more political discussions and tend their gardens. "In their spare time," Commander Cheng notes, "PLA fighters are expected to study Mao's Little Red Book."

There are women soldiers in this camp, with a barracks set apart from the men's dormitories. We saw little personal contact between the sexes on the base. The Chinese like to stress the equality of men and women, but they still feel that certain work requires male strength or attitudes. So in the PLA, women serve as nurses and men as front-line troops.

The 124th Division is battle-hardened. It has fought the Japanese and the troops of Chiang Kai-shek. Twenty years ago it battled Gen. MacArthur's forces in the snows of Korea, and the walls of the instruction room are still decorated with photos of American GI's being taken prisoner. But as we sit down to a special lavish Chinese banquet with the commanding officers of the 124th, the toasts are to Ping-Pong and peace—and also to Mao and the soldiers of the People's Army.

Labor force

The PLA members aren't permitted to spend all their time in cloistered Army camps. With a force of 3 million highly dedicated, low-paid men on hand, the Chinese have put them to work building dams, roads, irrigation canals and railways, as well as growing their own food in the fields. The PLA also was used to suppress the Cultural Revolution that broke out some years back in Chinese schools and universities, and the soldiers are still there, in some cases actually running the educational institutions. In government, too, Mao's soldiers dominate decision-making positions, with generals changing into politicians overnight, and helping to shape the China of tomorrow.

In high places

Pai Hsing Kuo, a soldier, is Trade Minister. PLA officer Yang Chieh heads the Communications Ministry. Another officer, Sha Feng, controls Agriculture. Yieh Chen Ying, a 73-year-old Army veteran and member of the Politburo is regarded by many as Premier Chou En-lai's right-hand man. Most of the Western observers I spoke with in Peking regard the People's Liberation Army as the linchpin in China's political life.

But far from the intrigues of Peking, the 124th Division contentedly shares Lofu Mountain with the native wild life and the nearby rice farmers. They grow their vegetables, raise their pigs, study the thoughts of Chairman Mao, and train for the day when either an invader attacks or Mao Tse-tung dies, and China again faces a titanic power struggle.

Mocha Mousse Pie

by Beth Merriman
PARADE FOOD EDITOR

Choosing the right dessert to have for company is always a problem. Putting the final touch on a knockout meal means serving something sweet and light that won't overburden already stuffed guests.

One woman's choice to bring any meal to a smooth and tasty close is a velvety chocolate confection made without eggs. Says its creator, Betsy Weisman: "My Mocha Mousse Pie was the brainchild of necessity—I love fancy desserts, but I'm allergic to eggs."

Ms. Weisman, a former TV newscaster, lives in San Diego with her husband, a doctor, and their son who "helps in the kitchen by licking the bowls."

A chocolate treat

Crust:

6 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 1/2 cups chocolate wafer crumbs

Melt butter or margarine. Stir into wafer crumbs. Press evenly onto bottom and sides of 8-inch pie pan.

Filling:

24 marshmallows
1/2 cup milk
8 squares (8 oz.) semi-sweet chocolate
2 tablespoons crème de cacao (or 4 tablespoons strong coffee)
2 tablespoons coffee liqueur
1 cup whipping cream

Melt marshmallows in milk over low heat. Cool. Melt chocolate over hot water. Add liqueurs to chocolate. Pour chocolate mixture into marshmallow mixture. Whip cream; fold chocolate mixture into the cream. Pour into pie shell. Garnish with grated semi-sweet chocolate if desired. Freeze. Remove from freezer 5 to 10 minutes before serving.

SOLARIAN®

It shines without waxing

Solarian is a totally new kind of floor. Armstrong developed it for people who like a bright, shiny floor but are tired of the never-ending cycle of waxing, stripping, and rewaxing needed to keep other floors looking their best.

Solarian's high shine comes from its Mirabond™ surface, an exclusive formulation that will retain its gloss—without waxing—far longer than any ordinary vinyl floor.

It's also a lot easier to keep clean. Spills, tracked-in dirt—even black heel marks—come up easily. Customers who have bought Solarian just can't get over the way it relieves them of the chore of taking care of their floors.

Sound too good to be true? Then stop in soon, and let us demonstrate this remarkable floor. Each of the floors shown on this page is a shining example of the dozens of high-fashion colors and designs available.

CASTILIAN

The budget-priced cushioned vinyl floor.

Castilian's built-in layer of vinyl foam absorbs the shock and strain of every step you take . . . and helps muffle the continuous clatter of a busy home. Because it comes in both 6-foot and 12-foot widths, most rooms can be installed with a single piece. So there are no tricky seams to match up. Especially easy to install, Castilian goes anywhere . . . even over concrete.

The stunning designs range from slate and stone tile to those inspired by the excitement of Spain. Each comes in a range of decorator colors. There's a mood for every decor. And, throughout, there's an accent on brightness that brings your rooms a colorful, cheerful warmth. Best of all . . . only you will know how little this handsome floor actually costs.

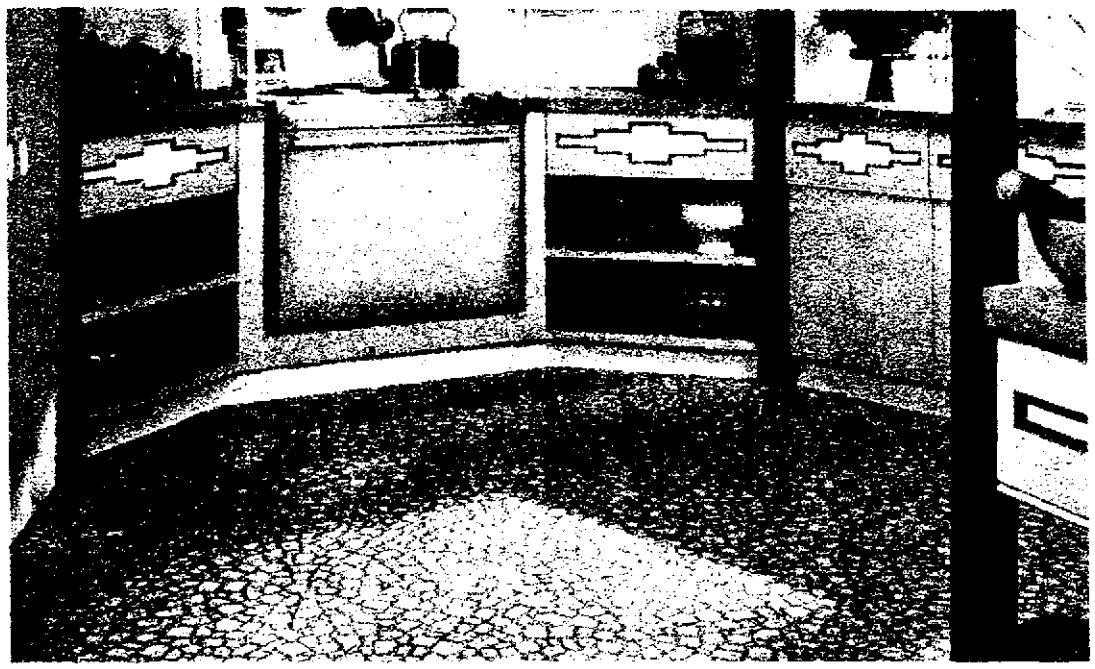
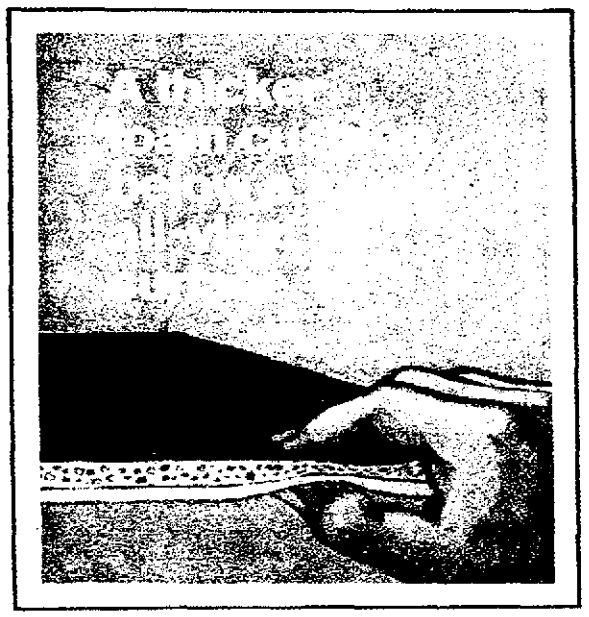
BRIGHT STEP™

A thicker cushioned layer of foamed vinyl means a softer, more comfortable floor.



Carriage Park 68512*

But don't let the softness of this floor fool you. Its wear surface is a tough, nonporous vinyl. So it's every bit as tough as it is good looking. You can stop worrying about scuffs and spills . . . it's so easy to keep bright and shining. Bright Step is an inexpensive, long-lasting floor with the rich good looks to help solve decorating problems throughout the house.



The secret behind Bright Step's luxury look is the extra-deep surface embossing. This brings out pattern detail sharply. And, combined with the especially high gloss, it produces a simply beautiful floor.

It comes 12′ wide, so you can install it without seams in most rooms. It's simplicity itself to install . . . goes right over your old floor. And, because of its exclusive Hydrocord® backing, it can be used above, on, or below grade.

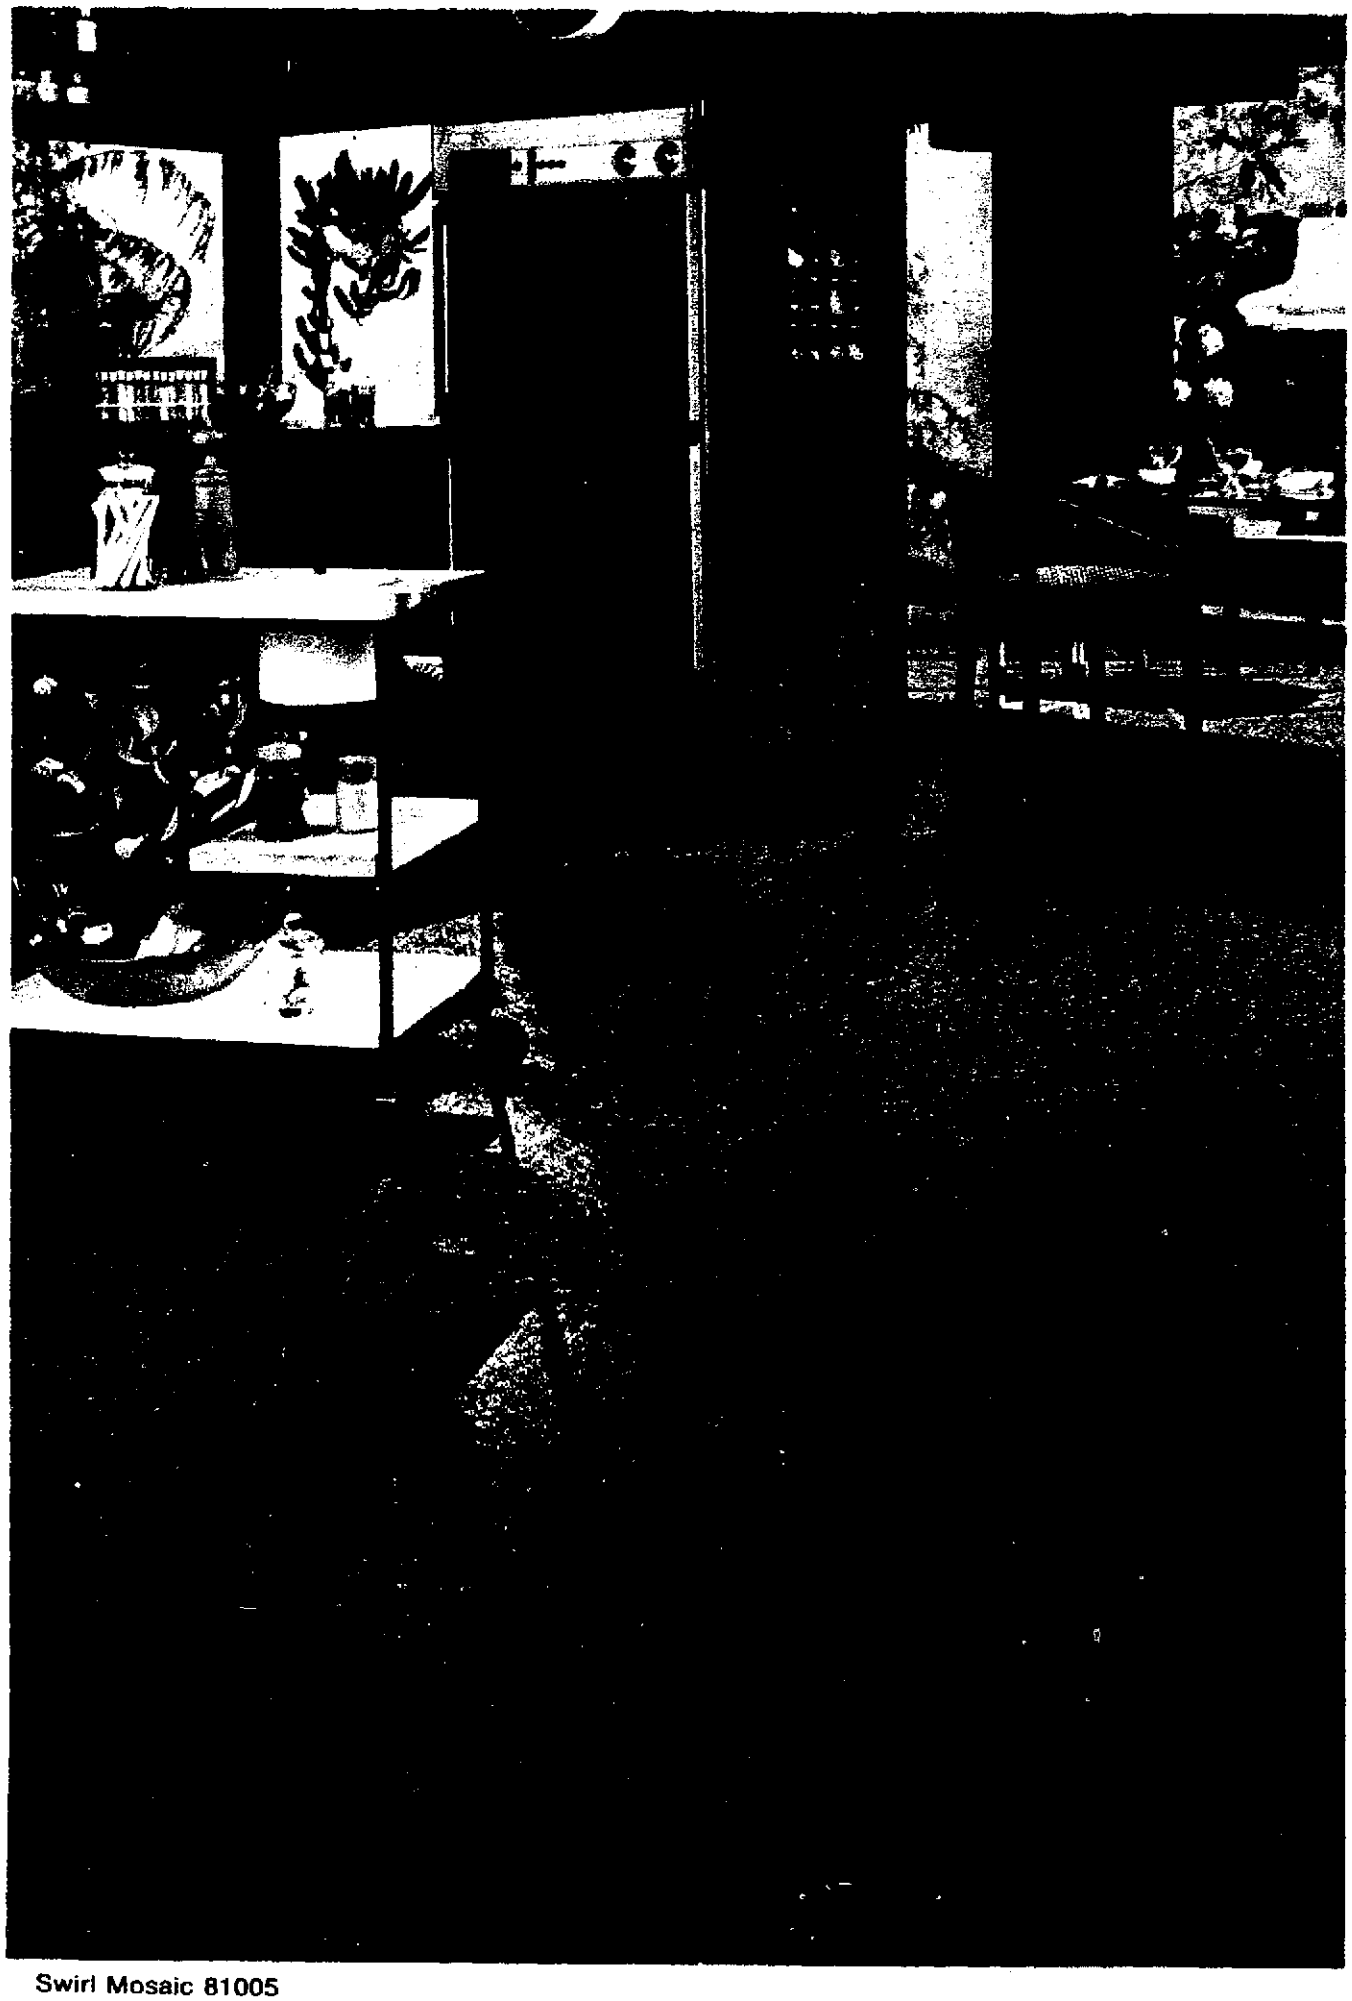
NEW ERA™

Its exceptional toughness makes it perfect for the "heavy wear" areas of your home.



Swirl Mosaic 81005

This handsome floor is also the most durable floor Armstrong makes. New Era is vinyl, like many other floors, but it's manufactured differently to give it special toughness. Its embossed vinyl surface resists damage from heavy objects, dropped items, even the movement of heavy kitchen appliances. And, because New Era resists surface scratching, dirt has no place to hide. So clean-up is fast and easy.

New Era is tough enough to take the roughest abuse your family can give it. But its designs also offer the beauty that will complement even the most delicate decor. They will add personality and interest to any room in your home.

What Else Is Cooking

Soda against odors

Baking soda leads a double life: cooking ingredient and deodorizer. Everyone's heard about putting an open box of the magic stuff into the refrigerator to banish odors, but listed here are a few freshening uses not so well-known.

- Pet dishes, diaper pails, vacuum bottles and lunch pails. rinse or soak with a solution of 3 tablespoons baking soda in 1 quart water.
- Boots and shoes: shake a little dry soda inside
- Drains and traps· Pour ½ to 1 cup baking soda into drain. Flush with warm water to remove grease and odors.
- Hands· Dry baking soda acts as a gentle abrasive, to remove grease and other difficult soil.

Food for beauty

Store-bought cosmetics are, historically, a fairly recent innovation—women have always used food to beautify the face as well as nourish the body. Now the ancient ways have regained popularity According to Stephen Lewis, co-author of both Massage Parlor and The Complete Book of Beauty for the Black Woman, "Cosmetic companies are trying to capitalize on 'natural' products for the face—and few women realize that the best pure beauty aids are probably sitting in their refrigerators right now." Some of Lewis' "homemade" beauty treatments are listed below.

- Milk baths used to be popular with royalty—and the wealthy. Nowadays, filling a bathtub with milk is a bit extravagant, but the same softening and soothing effects can be had by pouring equal amounts of bath oil and milk under the tap when running a hot bath

Milk bath anyone? Claudette Colbert soaks herself in scene from 1932 movie "The Sign of the Cross."

- Vegetable oil, just like the kind used on salad, can be an excellent moisturizer Smooth it over your roughs spots—elbows, knees, feet—before toweling dry after a bath or shower
- Avocados make a good face-nourisher. Peel a half or a quarter avocado; puree the pulp in a blender or mash with a fork, adding a dash of milk Smooth this paste over your face, and lie down to relax for 15 minutes Use lukewarm water to rinse face.
- Lemon juice and peanut oil, mixed in equal parts and applied to the skin, will keep a summer tan from blotching as it fades.
- Yogurt mixed with an equal amount of dark honey makes a refreshing mask—leave the mixture on the face for about 10 minutes before rinsing off with warm water.
- Olive oil can reverse the ill effects of summer sun, wind and water on the state of your hair Heat a generous amount of the oil over a low heat till warm Wash and towel-dry your hair, then, working from root to end, carefully apply the warm oil to sectioned hair. Wrap head in a warm towel or put on a shower cap for a half-hour, then rinse hair or lightly shampoo. For a final rinse, use one part lemon juice to 10 parts water

Whom Can You Trust?

by E. D. Fales Jr. & Dr. Paul Seder

LAWRENCEBURG, IND

Every night here Gene McCann puts $10 in a "borrowing box" on a wooden post by U.S. Route 50. McCann, who is the editor of Dearborn County's Register Publications, was given the money by an unnamed philanthropist who wanted to test people's basic honesty. Under the plan, McCann will keep putting in the bills until a total of $2000 is used up. By that time, the donor is confident that the borrowing-box fund will have become self-perpetuating, with those who have taken out money replacing it.

How is it working out? In the first 90 days, $900 has been taken from the box. Only $3.10 has been returned.

But McCann and his philanthropist friend aren't discouraged. "We still trust people," says the editor. "Some of the money may have been stolen, but I'm convinced most will come back in time."

Near Torrington, Conn., Yankee farmer Edmund Dean leaves a box of change—bills and coins—at a roadside produce stand he operates so buyers of his eggs, syrups and vegetables can serve themselves when he's not around. He's been doing this for 25 years and last summer, for the first time, a thief emptied the box. But Dean's faith is still strong, and his cash box still filled with change. "I trust people," he says.

Are McCann and Dean right? Or are they kidding themselves? And is there a good way to determine who is worthy of your confidence and who is not?

'Profile of trust'

Psychologists and sociologists agree that there are no easy answers to these questions. In recent years investigators at Georgetown, Yale, Columbia, Purdue and other universities have been trying to determine whether there's any such thing as a "profile of trust"—whether such supposedly old-fashioned characteristics as an "honest look," a firm handshake, a steady gaze and a short haircut actually are significant.

Some experts still believe that looks are a good indicator, but the trouble is that too many honest-looking men (and women) have gone to jail for embezzlement. In a Midwest city a community leader, noted for his resolute grip, was recently charged with making off with the life savings left by a dying man to his crippled wife.

Convicts pass test

Some psychologists have concluded that there are no full-time trustworthy people—and no full-time untrustworthy people, either. In other words, the ancient Roman statesman Seneca was right when he advised: "It is equally an error to trust all men or no man."

Dr. Alfred Moseley, of Lexington, Mass., a veteran psychologist and trial expert formerly of the Harvard School of Public Health, says the world "is full of magnificent men and women, people who would give up everything, in some cases life itself, rather than betray a trust."

The problem, Moseley adds, "is to find people in whom such a high degree of trust is a real life style."

Recent research suggests that certain situations also are conducive to trust. These guidelines have emerged:

1. Trust old friends. People rarely betray a friend whom they've known through thick and thin for many years.

2. Trust your child. Sure, there's a generation gap. But the trusted child is least likely to betray his parents, because their feeling of trust makes him respect them. Parents should also remember that they have to merit a child's trust in their own lives.

3. Trust your neighbor. In general, you should be able to trust the people right down the block more than those who live a mile away.

4. Don't rush into a confidence. Be careful when you feel an impulse to trust an absolute stranger who "seems honest." Many con men—and women—are good at putting on the firm handshake and the honest look.

5. Announce your trust. Tell people what you expect of them. A wise parent lending the family car to a teen-ager for the evening would do well to say: "Look, I like that car and I like you. I'm trusting you to drive carefully."

Money for the taking: Gene McCann puts bills in "borrowing box." He has faith it'll all come back, but returns are slow.

6. Keep in touch. Trust may wither if people get the idea you don't really care about them. It's hard to betray the trust of someone who's close by and sees you often.

7. Be reasonable. Don't ask the impossible—like leaving a bowl of candy in a room and telling your little girl to take "only one piece."

Some psychologists say that it takes one trustworthy person to know another. "The key question," declares Dr. Robert C. Sugarman of the Cornell Aeronautical Laboratories in Buffalo, N.Y., "really is how much do you trust yourself, in your daily life with your wife or husband, your children and your friends?"

Prof. Ernest J. McCormick of Purdue University believes trustworthiness is recognizable. "We all know our good points, and we tend to see them in others," he explains. "The man who is honorable will recognize a certain familiar glint in the face of another. It's like looking in a mirror."

Dr. Moseley puts it this way: "A person who trusts closely tends to be trustworthy himself."

Like many other psychologists, Moseley is watching closely the results of Gene McCann's experiment with his borrowing box.

"So far it hasn't proved much about other people," he says. "But it sure has proved something about McCann. There's a man I think I would trust."

Co-author John Harmon recommends giving up marijuana as a better remedy than surgery.

Marijuana And The Male

by Charles Peterson

On Nov. 2, 1972, The New England Journal of Medicine carried an article entitled, "Gynecomastia in Marijuana Users" by two members of the Harvard Medical School faculty, Drs. Menelaos Aliapoulios and John Harmon, both surgeons.

Gynecomastia is the medical term for enlarged breasts in the male.

The surgeons pointed out in their article that they had treated three young men in the 22-26 age group for gynecomastia and that all three turned out to be heavy pot smokers.

Since then, Drs. Aliapoulios and Harmon have treated 10 more young men with the same affliction and have come to the conclusion that there is a positive correlation between heavy marijuana use and breast enlargement.

"There is a strong similarity," Dr. Aliapoulios said "between an ingredient of marijuana, delta ninetetrahydrocannabinol, and the female hormone, estradiol. Young men who smoke pot heavily, and by that I mean one or two hours per day or two to three hours, three or four times a week, such men stand a very good chance of developing gynecomastia.

"Not only do their breasts enlarge and swell painfully but their nipples begin to discharge a white, milky liquid. Obviously marijuana contains a feminizing ingredient.

"We are fairly sure that heavy marijuana smoking will cause breast enlargement in females, but in females it is much more difficult to detect. In males it is easy, because gynecomastia is virtually unheard of in young men, aged 22 to 26."

Dr. Aliapoulios, who was graduated from The Johns Hopkins University Medical School in 1959, has written more than 40 papers on various aspects of breast cancer. "But not until we wrote this article for the New England Journal of Medicine on pot smoking and breast enlargement," he reports, "have we had any lay publicity. Since that one came out we have been written up in college newspapers, interviewed on the radio, consulted by news magazines."

'A risk in overdoing'

Dr. Aliapoulios and Dr. Harmon believe that the full side effects of marijuana are as yet unrecorded and that people who smoke the drug heavily are taking unnecessary risks.

"We know," says Dr. Harmon, "that the side effects of excessive alcohol are far more deleterious than the side effects of pot. But nevertheless there's a risk in overdoing anything. We have operated on three young men, reduced the size of their breasts, because they smoked too much pot. And in another three cases where the men have stopped pot smoking, their breasts have receded in size. So obviously, if someone suffers from gynecomastia, it is easier to remedy the case by staying off pot than submitting to surgery."

All young men who smoke pot heavily, will not, of course, develop breast enlargement. Some, however, will, and swollen breasts in young men are particularly painful and psychologically harmful.

I gave up 87 pounds to get a good job.

By Gwen Scott—as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

Here I am getting ready to put something in my mouth. No wonder I was always having to wear full skirts and blouses that hung out over the fat

How do you like the change in my waistline? My stomach never gets in my way now that I've lost 87 pounds I can bend over easily any time

At 235 pounds, I was probably the most experienced job hopper around. Nobody wanted that much fat near machinery or on a payroll. Sometimes I felt like the only folks who loved me then were my family. And, thank goodness, dogs. Especially dachshunds and poodles. Why, if it hadn't been for dogs, I don't know where my next nickel would have come from.

You see, after I got out of high school in Memphis, Tenn., I took off for Texas to stay with an uncle and look for work. But job openings weren't any better there, so I came home again and started helping out in a boarding kennel. At least, the animals didn't care what I weighed. They just knew I understood them. Unfortunately, I couldn't support myself on their love alone.

My next move was to Senatobia, Miss. where I learned that many big companies had weight limits on employing people. Why, I passed test after test for jobs that were open, but they'd always say: "Come back when you've lost some weight." One place even put me on "limbo". That meant they held my name for the next job or so, to see if I would take off some weight. But I didn't, so I never went back. I just went home and ate—cakes, candy and ice cream.

I knew I shouldn't have. Just like I knew when I was a child and Mamma used to say, "Don't eat so much." The minute I'd hear that word "don't", I'd get worse at stuffing myself.

Funny, now that I think of it, many of the spots where I did find short-time work were connected with food. Like a local grocery store, a barbecue place and a meat market.

At the barbecue spot, I had to work from four to midnight, which I didn't like, but it was a job. At least until I got laid off after the holidays. That's when I ran an ad on the radio, telling folks I could clip poodles. I got answers, too. People brought their dogs to me, so I was able to earn a little pocket money and not have to borrow anything from my Mamma.

Not that I didn't know I had to do something about losing weight. I'd tried before on my own to cut back on what I ate. I did lose some weight, but it was terribly hard. My stomach growled all the time, so I was sure I'd never lose all I needed to. And when you're 235 pounds, you've got a long way to go.

Then an aunt of mine down the road told me she was using those reducing-plan candies, Ayds® and they really helped curb her appetite. So I bought a box of the vanilla caramel kind at the drugstore and I started on the Ayds plan.

I took one or two Ayds with a hot drink—like the directions say—before I ate anything else and those Ayds, without any drugs in them, really helped me cut down on my food. I found they made reducing much easier for me than just trying to use my willpower alone.

One other thing I did was to weigh myself every day. In fact, I was obsessed with getting on the scales. I did it at least three times a day, until I finally wore out the springs. So Mamma got me a new scale at Christmas. And believe me, it was the best gift I ever had, because it helped me to stick to the plan as I watched those scale numbers go down and down.

When I finally lost enough weight on the Ayds plan for it to show, I took a test for a job at one of the big companies in town and I got it! With no questions asked about my weight.

After I got to know some of the girls at work and I told them how fat I'd once been, they could hardly believe it. They kept asking: "How did you get a waist so little?" And I kept saying: "The Ayds plan." It finally made such an impression, a group of them started a reducing pool, betting each other who would lose the most each week. It sure was a switch for me to be the skinny one, watching the fat race.

Of course, my present weight of 148 pounds may not sound all that skinny to you, but don't forget I'm five feet eight. And anybody who's lost 87 pounds has got to feel skinny. Proud, too.

Now, I have a boyfriend, a lot of store-bought clothes, instead of homemade ones, and I've even got some people jealous of me. Me, who grew up fat and never thought I could be thin.

So I'd like to say to any of you folks reading this that if you have a weight problem, don't give up. I didn't. And I didn't have to spend a lot of money at a reducing salon, either. The Ayds plan did it—got me my new name, "Skinny you!"

PP, Box 474, New Kensington, Pa. 15068.*

You can install it behind an existing gable louver or roof vent, and its thermostat activates the fan to prevent heat build-up. $54.95 in stores. Butler Engineering Co., Dept. PP, Box 728, Mineral Wells, Tex.

PP, Box 363, Woodstock, Ill. 60098.*

My Favorite Jokes

by Daphne Davis

EDITOR'S NOTE: "I'm from Australia, and I'm here to break into American movies," Daphne Davis tells her audiences. And, it's a good premise on which to launch her impressions —so varied in scope—of Liza Minnelli, Carmen Miranda, Gloria Swanson, Joel Grey, Jean Stapleton and others. Her jokes and asides are about childhood dreams of stardom, "I wanted to be like Bette Davis and say that dramatic line from The Letter: 'With all my heart I still love the man I killed.' But I could never work it into a conversation."

Daphne's first job in show business was as a singing cartoonist. "I didn't know I could do impressions," she explains, "and my singing voice was rough from smoking, so it wasn't enough for me to sing. I was a sketch artist, too. I'd go around to tables and draw people's pictures, sometimes I'd draw political characters and sing songs to match. When I came to the States I started doing standup comedy, and then, impressions, because impressions bring a change of interest and voice."

Daphne's played at top clubs, the Playboy circuit, The Royal Box in New York, Mr. Kelly's in Chicago, and the Aladdin Hotel in Las Vegas, among them. She likes to compare the U.S. and Australia in her act—"When I was 14 I decided to run away from home. I ran 25,000 miles. I was still home."

Here are some of Daphne Davis' Australian and American stories:

I learned about Americans from watching American movies, and I thought everybody was rich, with big cars, and I'd hear my father say that some American bought $10,000 worth of Australian land—and did we realize how much money that is? I'd think, "Gee, the shipping costs alone . . ."

And I thought American men were more romantic than Australian men. Americans bring a girl flowers, and she doesn't have to be dead or anything.

There are two great shortages in Australia, water and men. If you go inland to some of the dry regions, you can go 1000 miles before you find a man. And when you do, they're only after one thing—water.

I wanted to get to Hollywood. I didn't know how to go about it. I thought maybe if I entered a Miss Australia contest, winning would at least get me to New Guinea. And who knows—someone in Hollywood might see me waving in a National Geographic.

I thought everyone in America was rich. When I came here things weren't going that well; I told the Immigration officials that I had relatives in New Jersey—and they asked me if I could support them until they got jobs.

I wasn't sure the Immigration people would let me stay in New York, so I went around snapping pictures of things I thought I might never see again, like the Empire State Building, the Statue of Liberty, my purse. . . .

"My husband has absolutely no idea of the value of money. Would you believe that we're entirely out of debt?"

When I first came to New York I wanted to be discovered. I'd seen Ruby Keeler in 42nd Street dancing on top of a taxicab. So I went to 42nd Street, looked all over for Ruby Keeler dancing on top of a taxicab. I didn't see that, but I saw some men dancing on top of a cab driver.

Actually, I thought there'd be more Australians in New York, because it's so cosmopolitan. Like they have an Italian neighborhood, a Spanish neighborhood, a Jewish neighborhood. And I asked people where the Australian neighborhood was. They said it meets in Central Park on Tuesdays in front of the kangaroo cage.

What It Costs To Defend Yourself Against the Government

by Lloyd Shearer

Sheinbaum with his wife Betty. He ruefully points to the unlimited money at the government's disposal while the defense fund is "still about $75,000 in the hole."

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.

Why should any man spend almost two years of his life and much of his own wealth raising $900,000 for the Pentagon Papers Legal Defense Fund?

That's approximately how much it cost to defend Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo. And the man who raised that amount is Stanley K. Sheinbaum, 52, a tall, bearded former Michigan State University economics professor.

Sheinbaum, of Santa Barbara, Calif., married for the last nine years to Betty Sperling, a daughter of movie mogul Harry Warner, says, "I became involved with the defense team, because it seemed to me that the case represented some major principles: Do the American people have the right of access to studies they pay for? Do they have the right to see papers which have been improperly and arbitrarily classified? Do they have the right to know as much truth or as little truth as their government chooses about a war into which they poured their blood and treasure? Are men who make the truth available to the American public guilty of espionage? If a man copies papers which have been made available to him so that he can give them to a member of Congress, does that constitute theft?

20,000 contributors

"These were some of the first-time questions which intrigued me, so I became involved in seeing that Ellsberg and Russo were granted a fair trial. A fair trial costs money in this country, and more than 20,000 individuals contributed to the Pentagon Papers Legal

"To have and to hold...in sickness and in health..."

THAT'S A PLEDGE you can live up to when you have "Wide-Range" disability income insurance that can provide up to $1,200.00 A MONTH when you can't work because of a covered sickness or accident...in or out of the hospital.

"To hold" is a fine and powerful promise, packed with many meanings—"to guard," "to keep," "to support." A world of promises in one—tough promises to hold to in sickness.

But you can have help. As the breadwinner, you can select the amount you qualify for (from $100.00 to $1,200.00 a month) to help replace your paychecks when you're sick or hurt and can't work. These monthly disability benefits are all yours to spend as you please for any purpose you choose...yours to use for every kind of bill... yours over and above any benefits you receive for hospital and medical bills.

These benefits are not payable for disabilities that start after retirement or age 65 (whichever comes first), nor for losses caused by war or military service; narcotics, unless prescribed by a physician; childbirth, pregnancy or resulting complications; conditions known or previously treated except as described below.

THERE ARE SEVEN REASONS WHY YOU SHOULD CONSIDER THIS MUTUAL OF OMAHA PLAN:

[1] You may qualify for up to $1,200.00 monthly income benefits to spend as you see fit when you're sick or hurt and can't work!

[2] These disability benefits are provided both IN and OUT of the hospital!

[3] Benefits are provided for both accidents and sickness covered by your policy, other than conditions known or previously treated. Such conditions, if disclosed and not excluded, will be covered after 12 months.

[5] Your policy protects you as a passenger in any kind of aircraft—even a private plane!

[6] Benefits are provided for disabilities incurred both on and off the job. They are available in addition to your Workmen's Compensation or Employer's Liability coverage!

[7] You have this renewal agreement: Mutual of Omaha guarantees that no matter how much you may receive in benefits, you cannot be singled out for policy termination or for a premium increase. The only time your premium can be changed is when premiums for all policies of the same classification in your state are changed!

How much monthly income do you qualify for? Find out. Send for full facts about this basic protection that helps you keep your promise, and you will also receive information about the fine plans to meet your life insurance needs now available from Mutual of Omaha's affiliate, United of Omaha. These facts are yours without cost or obligation if you write to Mutual of Omaha, Reader's Service, Department 1351, Omaha, Nebraska 68131. Or even better, mail the postpaid reply card now.

Good Earth ALMANAC

QUICKSAND IS ONE OF THE MOST WIDELY PUBLICIZED OUTDOOR DANGERS, BUT ONE OF THE LEAST UNDERSTOOD.

QUICKSAND IS ACTUALLY FINE SAND FLOATING "ON TOP OF AND IN WATER." THE WATER IS USUALLY FROM A WEAK UNDERGROUND SPRING AND IS MOVING UP WITH ENOUGH PRESSURE TO KEEP THE GRAINS OF SAND SUSPENDED AND MOVING OR "QUICK." A QUAGMIRE IS SIMILAR TO QUICKSAND. IT IS COMPOSED OF DECAYED MATERIAL OR MUD SUSPENDED BY UNDERGROUND WATER.

THE FIRST RULE IN EITHER CASE IS TO REMEMBER YOU'RE BASICALLY IN WATER AND YOU CAN "SWIM" OR CRAWL FREE.

THE MOST IMPORTANT RULE IS TO NOT PANIC. USUALLY WHEN YOU FIND YOURSELF IN QUICKSAND, YOU'VE ALREADY SUNK UP TO YOUR WAIST AND STRUGGLING WILL ONLY CAUSE YOU TO SINK FASTER.

IMMEDIATELY THROW YOURSELF OUT BACKWARDS FLAT ON THE SAND, ARMS AND LEGS SPREAD AS WIDE AS POSSIBLE.

WHILE YOU FLOAT ON THE SAND TRY TO GENTLY EXTRICATE EACH LEG, THEN ROLL AND TRY TO SWIM OUT.

THE MAIN THING IS TO PREVENT TIRING YOURSELF, SO TAKE YOUR TIME AND REST OFTEN.

PANIC-STRICKEN STRUGGLING ONLY CAUSES YOU TO SINK "BY GRAVITY" DEEPER INTO THE MIRE. IN TRYING TO PULL OUT ONE LEG YOU WILL ONLY FORCE THE OTHER LEG (WITH ALL YOUR WEIGHT) DOWN FURTHER.

AVOID SUDDEN MOTIONS--TAKE YOUR TIME.

USUALLY QUICKSAND OR QUAGMIRE BEDS ARE NOT TOO LARGE, SO DON'T GIVE UP.

QUICKSAND OR QUAGMIRE ARE FOUND ALL OVER THE NORTH AMERICAN CONTINENT, SO LEARN TO WATCH FOR THEM. QUICKSAND IS MOST OFTEN FOUND AROUND AREAS WHERE WATER RISES TO THE SURFACE OF THE EARTH, FOR INSTANCE IN STREAM BEDS, WELLS and AROUND SPRINGS. BE ESPECIALLY CAREFUL IN SANDY SOIL AROUND THESE CONDITIONS.

QUAGMIRES ARE OFTEN FOUND AROUND OLD WATERHOLES, IN MUSKEG COUNTRY AND AROUND SWAMPS, MARSHES and TIDAL FLATS.
